Discontinuing Newspapers.—A. A., P——, Ill., and others.—"When any newspaper or magazine, regularly sent through the mails, has been opened by a postmaster thereto, or not called for by him for one month, the postmaster will write a statement of the fact to the postmaster where such publication is mailed, to be by him communicated to the publisher." This is the Section (392) in full, of the Regulations concerning notifying publishers. As the person refusing, or not calling for, the paper is then no longer a regular subscriber the publisher loses his right to send the paper without prepayment, and if he continue to send it, renders himself liable to a penalty of fifty dollars, according to Section 257 of Laws. But there would be some trouble in collecting evidence, and, as but few papers would be sent after a publisher was notified, we think the better way could he to sell at the end of the quarter what papers do arrive, and credit the proceeds to the Department. (Sec. 39, Reg. 1868.) Of course publishers out of the United States are not subject to the penalty named, and their papers must be sold.

Registration.—J. H. T., L——, N. Y.—The Postmaster at New York places stamps on official letters relating to registration, because he has not time to frank the envelopes as required by law.... T. W. McC., C——, Ky.—Route agents on leaving the office at either terminus will receive and receipt for any and all registered package envelopes that may be tendered them, and when they arrive at the terminus or their route they will take what registered matter they may have for delivery to the post-office, and deliver the same to the postmaster, the registry clerk, or other proper clerk. (Sec. 16, Regn. Reg. 1868.)

Postage.—G. B. C., ——, Md.—Pamphlets on being remailed require additional prepayment. A regular subscriber cannot remail his paper except at transient rates. Packages of transient papers tied with a string are no more subject to letter postage than if wrapped in paper. Small gum bands to secure receipts to registered letters are not furnished by the Department. The Appointment Office at Washington will inform you to what marking stamps you are entitled.... G. R. C., G—— L——, Mich.—It is not lawful to stamp letters with a one cent stamp, and then send them to another office for local delivery.... G. E. W., E——, Mass.—"Dime Novels," being periodical publications, are subject to the rates of postage prescribed for magazines and like periodicals.... Canada letters, unless prepaid by stamp, should be considered as unpaid, and postage charged at the rate of ten cents the half ounce.... J. H. P., P——, N. Y.—Photographic albums are chargeable with book postage, viz., four cents for four ounces.... J. T. H., H——, M——, N. Y.—It is intended that all foreign letters shall be stamped at the office of exchange, in red ink or black, as they are paid or unpaid, but it may occasionally happen that a letter slips through the mail with neither mark, in which case the postmaster must use judgment to determine whether prepaid or not. Canada letters, however, are an exception, for if they are prepaid by stamp, no mark is made on the letter, and if not paid they should be marked in black with the proper postage, or post bill sent with them.

Franking.—With the opening of Congress each year is the appearance of the franking epidemic, and this year is not an exception to previous years, and will not be to coming years, until the privilege—a very gentle name for it—is rationally established and honorably used. We have received several inquiries in the past month concerning it, most of them with reference to sending mail matter to persons possessing the privilege. While it seems clear to our correspondents, and probably to many others, that the privilege covers mail sent by the person on whom the privilege is conferred, it does not seem so clear that it covers matter sent to them. We here distinctly say that it does; "the right to send and receive" is the language of Section 128 of Regulations of 1866. There is a restriction, however, as to the kind and weight of mail matter; in some cases all kinds are included, in others only official correspondence, and in others there is a limit in weight. Sections 265A, 266 and 277 of Laws of 1866, and chapter 15 of Regulations, contain ample information, while the third page of the MAIL contains in its miscellaneous information sufficient for all ordinary cases.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 125 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

REMARKS.—The registry fee for registration beyond Italy is added for each 15 grammes

* Denoting optional prepayment.

† Samples for Greece are subject to letter rates.

To insure the transmission of correspondence to any of the above-named countries or places by this route, it will be necessary to plainly inscribe the name "By Italian open mail." Ordinary letters for Alexandria, Greece and Tunis may be sent unpaid or prepaid, at the option of the senders; but the prepayment of prints and samples is in all cases obligatory. Ordinary letters for Egypt (except Alexandria) and for Tripoli are likewise required to be prepaid.

I am, sir, very respectfully,
Your ob't servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail," New York.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of THE MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessary, subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

The Stamped Envelope Question.

The editorial columns of the MAIL are devoted to explaining the Postal Laws and Regulations as they are rather than advocating what those laws and regulations should be. We aim rather to educate public opinion so far as our specialty goes, than to form or shape public opinion, but the formidable opposition from some quarters made to the use of prepaid stamped envelopes, and the apparent strength of the arguments by which that opposition is supported, induces us to "say our say" as to what we think should be, or, in other words, to endeavor to "form public opinion."

We believe there is no reason why a government may not, indeed should not, employ any means of assistance to accomplish any particular object it has in view that a private individual may, and the fact that a government is, like that of the United States, for the people, is no reason why the business of that government should be so conducted as not to interfere with the business of private individuals. What is true of government as a whole is true of the various departments of government.

Granting this, and that the Post-office Department of the United States was established for the benefit of the people of the United States, it follows that that Department should be at liberty to use, and should use, any and every means that will facilitate its object, without reference to interference with private enterprise.

Among the many improvements—and one of the very best—in the means of postal communication, is the stamped envelope. Its benefits, too, are reciprocal, enuring to the department as well as to the people, and injuring none. It is true that a few whose business it is to manufacture envelopes complain; while this may be matter of regret, it cannot be avoided unless by a greater injury to the public.

One of the most plausible objections made by these manufacturers is, that the stamped envelopes are sold below cost, and hence that their use is a burden upon the people. Grant that they are sold below cost, may they not so lessen the labor of the Department that fewer clerks are needed? and may not the consequent saving in clerks' salaries more than equal the loss entailed by selling below cost? And this certainly is not an unbusiness-like transaction, for how often do we see the very best business men selling articles at a loss, or at extremely low profits, for the sake of the gain they induce on other articles. We knew a country storekeeper who sold sugar at a profit of a quarter of a cent on the pound, not for the sake of the profit, but because it was necessary to keep a popular assortment of groceries. Many, probably one-half, of the post-offices in the United States, are valued only, and sought after, as adjuncts to country stores, the proprietors of which are willing to take the responsibility, labor, and fault-finding at a very inadequate remuneration for the sake of the custom the office brings. But the saving of clerk hire is a small part of the benefit conferred on the people. The great benefit lies in the fact that the use of the prepaid envelope destroys all chance of the annoyance, vexations, and, in many instances, pecuniary loss, consequent on letters being "held for postage" and sent to the Dead Letter Office for not being prepaid at least one rate, as required by the law. We adduce no further argument on this point than the following figures, the record of one day's operations at the New York Post-office. Of letters held for postage and sent to the Dead Letter Office there were 71 mail and 91 city, or drop, not prepaid at all; 141 mail and 7 city partly prepaid, but not one full rate; 11 mail and 31 city with revenue instead of postage stamps; 5 mail and 3 city with stamps not now valid; and 3 mail and 4 city with stamps that had been used, making, 231 mail and 139 city letters, a total of 370 letters in one day that were not forwarded as addressed, but which would have been had stamped envelopes been used. It cannot be doubted that among these letters were many of great importance to one or the other, if not both parties concerned. Why should the ledger balances of a few manufacturers stand in the way of the security of which the 370 writers of these letters might have availed themselves, and of which a great many letter writers, though by no means enough, do avail themselves?

The addresses of these letters have to be copied. The letters sent to Washington, there opened, inclosed in envelopes and addressed to the writers, while those containing valuables are recorded, returned to the postmaster, again recorded in the New York office, notices sent to the writers, receipts taken and forwarded to Washington. Some 370 envelopes at $40 a thousand equal the cost of all this labor! Is it not clear, then, that there is no loss to the Department, and, of course, none to the people in selling envelopes a fraction below their cost.

But, it may be argued, the "Held-for-postage" system should be abolished and all unpaid letters forwarded, charged with postage to be collected on delivery. On the score of economy this would be penny wise and pound foolish, on the score of convenience no more can be said in its favor than can be said on the score of economy.

P. S.—"A friend at our elbow" suggests another argument, which, we think, will stick, viz., the dirty annoyance of licking stamps is avoided.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The first letter we take up was called forth by our "Registration Comicalities or Stupidities" in our last number. It is so good that we publish it entire elsewhere, and refer to it here to remark that, while it certainly instances stupidity that is comical, we consider it much better that such excessive care should be exercised than that such carelessness as we sometimes see should prevail. Better send a return receipts in registered package envelopes than direct the envelopes to the persons for whom the letter they contain are intended, as is sometimes done; although better still that the thing be done right—that registered letters themselves, with the return receipts attached, be inclosed in the red-striped registered package envelopes, accompanied by the proper bills, and that the other bills or receipts be sent in the envelopes furnished by the Department for that purpose; or, if none of these are on hand, then in ordinary envelopes. We take up next a letter from one who says he is "an old man of seventy years," the subject of which is the "counterfeit nuisance," which is so popular, or, perhaps, a better word is prevalent. The writer seems to think that these "confounded scoundrels," as he calls them, really deal in counterfeit money; but they do not—not but they are mean enough and base enough, but they are too cowardly; and besides, it would not be wise, as they can make more by swindling a few dishonest dupes than they can by passing counterfeit money on many honest folks. If the public only could be made aware that one hundred dollars in gold would not buy a counterfeit one dollar bill made by one of these fellows who pretend to make them by the cart-load, the nuisance would soon die of starvation. Our correspondent also refers approvingly to the suggestion made in a communication last month that the names of those who have endeavored to procure counterfeit money, in response to the circulars of pretended dealers, should be posted up in the respective post-offices, and he offers to post up any list we may forward. But we have no list; the proposition was that lists be furnished by the Dead Letter Office from letters sent to that office, as not being deliverable, on account of being addressed to notorious swindlers....Our next is from a subscriber who, besides inclosing the money for a renewal, sends words of cheer this wise: "I wish all our business men would take it" (the MAIL). The common sense and facts it contains would lead them to exercise more charity toward the postmasters and clerks and to appreciate the benefits sought to be conferred by those who manage the Post-office Department." Our next and last complains of the non-receipt of the MAIL for January, and contains the offer paying for a year's subscription for the person who stole it. We have no charity, no consideration for the man who will steal the MAIL. To steal an ordinary daily paper deprives the subscriber of the news of the day, and probably him alone, but to steal the MAIL not only deprives the subscribing postmaster of information useful to himself, but what may be of pecuniary value to many within his delivery.

Three Modest Wishes.

1. We wish that every one who writes to us, would be sure to let us know in what State he lives, as well as in what town or village. Mr. John Jones, who lives in Franklin, Ark., may know, and his neighbors, may know that the Franklin of which Mr. John Jones is an honored resident, is in Arkansas; but we have no certain means of knowing which of the twenty-eight States in which are Franklins, his Franklin is in.

2. We wish every subscriber remitting money, and in the same letter asking a question, would write the two subjects on separate pieces of paper. Letters for subscription and those for the Editor go to two different people, and sometimes, if letters are intended for both, losses will occur in passing from one to the other, and so questions will remain unanswered that otherwise would receive attention.

3. We wish that subscribers who desire their receipts returned immediately by letter would send a stamp to pay the postage. The law gives us the privilege of returning the receipts in the regular papers without extra charge, to do so by letter would involve considerable expense.

Denn Platt and the Postmaster.

I had been at L. G. about two weeks without getting any mail matter, although I sent over almost every day. At last, wearied out, I went myself. I found a little sandy-haired, heavy-jawed, full-stomached man pegging away at an old boot on a cobbler's bench. I asked this industrious son of St. Crispin for the postmaster.

"I'm him," responded the shoemaker.

He might be Sam or him, but I looked incredulously upon the fact asserted or referred to, of postmastership. He continued to drive to the pegs, whistling as only shoemakers can whistle, in a wavy way a tune that, when accompanied by the proper words, refers to some sort of eccentricity of the weasel when popping, whatever that may be. I looked at this vegetable production with carroty hair and reddish cheeks, as he pegged and popped, and finding that he intended taking no further notice of me, I mildly suggested that if he were the postmaster I would be pleased to get my letters and papers.

"What's your name?" he asked, suspending the whistling and the popping of the weasel, but going on with his exasperating work.

I responded by giving the cognomen, and was told briefly in words, to wit:

"Ain't nothing for you," and then he took up the extraordinary weasel. I remonstrated, and asserted that there must be some mistake.

"Well," he said, "go look for yourself. There's the P's."

I did as directed, and found eighteen letters and a pile of newspapers.

"What the devil do you mean by saying I had no mail?"

"Is that your name?" he asked coolly.

"Certainly it is."

"Well, I thought it was Daniel Pratt."

I was rapidly resolving into an indignation meeting with divers resolutions, and a strong tendency to punch somebody's head.

"You thought that name was Daniel Pratt, did you? Well, it strikes me that it would be well for you to learn reading and writing before playing the devil in a post-office."

"Well, stranger," he responded, suspending both music and work, "if I had such an outlandish name as your'n, I'd go back and be a baby, so as to be christened over, I won'd."

A mischievous young man thought to play an innocent trick on a young lady from Niantic, whom he espied a day or two since purchasing some stamps at the post-office in this city, so he informed her, as she was fumbling around her pocket for her wallet, that she was taking unnecessary trouble for "this is the day that they give them away." She swallowed it and was taking her departure when Mr. Robert P. Boss, the urbane clerk, called her back and convinced her after a half-hour's talk that it was no such thing. She finally left, declaring at the top of her voice, "them city chaps is awful."—New London Star.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to he delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected ou delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No hook-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rettimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Until January 1, 1870, letters could be registered, on payment of certain special postage rates, to France, Algeria, Corsica, Bourbon, Nice and Savoy; also to Alexandretta, Tangiers and Tunis. This, however, cannot be done at present. The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a Joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)		30	"
For Tri-Weekly,	"	15	"
For Semi-Weekly,	"	10	"
For Weekly,	"	5	"

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.		6	cts.
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12	"
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18	"
Monthly, not over 4 oz.		3	"
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6	"
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9	"
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.		3	"
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	3	"
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3	"

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 250, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 1 oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 6. NEW YORK, MARCH, 1871. WHOLE NO. 126.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

FIRE-FLY, Feb., 1871.

Grim winter, thus far in location where I have been temporarily sojourning, has behaved himself as well as might be expected for such an old cold-blooded curmudgeon, but for the last twenty hours he has had his celestial-cloud machinery at work showering down snow flakes, until every avenue of escape from this loneliest of lonely places is closed, and from present indications there is little prospect of a stoppage of the supply of frozen dewdrops for twenty hours to come.

In a former letter (which for some cause or other did not reach you) I told you of J. M.'s visit to some relatives at Broadgrade, where she spent the holidays, and we were on our way back to Winter Green, when this terrible snow tempest shut us in at this point. I felt very sorry for this untimely detention, for our old friend Pastor Moddle, of Clambank, had sent us special invitations to be present at a lecture, which he was to deliver the next evening at "Winter Green," on the 'Use and Abuse of Corn as a Beverage." I philosophically accepted the situation upon the principle that "what can't be cured must be endured," but J. M., patient soul as she generally is, was not proof against this hyperborean embargo, and displayed a little more temper than was compatible with Christian resignation. "It was all your fault." "What will Mr. Moddle think?" "I declare it's too bad." "Just what I might have expected;" and sundry other slightly sarcastic evidences of her affection for me greeted my ear as we paced up and down the hotel hall.

"We should have started two or three days sooner, as originally intended, and then we would not have been penned up here like cattle in a barn yard" I gently suggested that that figure of speech was more common than proper, and that our misfortune was no doubt for the best—to which she meekly replied, that if we were both being burnt at the stake, my last words would be "It's all for the best," adding that nothing's for the best that brings discomfort, disappointment or distress upon us. As there was no use in arguing the matter with my gentle mate, I gracefully bowed to her dogmatical judgment, and by her leave proceeded to take the bearings of the hotel, with a view to procure the necessary accommodations for comfort during our blockade. Two trains were snowed in, and the premises of the only public-house in the vicinity were boiling over with guests. By a little judicious management I succeeded in securing very fair apartments, and when a bright wood fire blazed cheerfully and diffused a delicious warmth through our spacious sitting-room, and a little hot punch to keep out the chills (taken as a medicine of course, for we both belong to the temperance society) had been brought up and sipped at a little while, I felt entirely happy, and Jane Mary become quite ruddy and as placid and amiable as ever, and admitted that it wasn't such a bad place after all. An excellent supper put us both in fine spirits, and we mutually agreed that we could stand it as long as the snow could, so it might snow and be blessed. After tea I went below stairs to look through the accidentally-collected congregation of strangers, and such a mixed mass of humanity I am sure I never saw before. From the tone of conversation I soon found out that there was a large percentage of railway magnates in the crowd, who had been attending a convention some miles further west, and I subsequently had the pleasure of a long conversation with one of the leading spirits, and from him ascertained the object of their business congress. The convention had been called ostensibly to regulate the rates of faro and freight on the respective lines represented, but the real design was to form a combination for offensive and defensive purposes, i. e., to league together all important corporations for the purpose of monopolizing and controlling the entire carrying trade of the country, and adopting such measures as would secure exorbitant prices, and prevent at the same time any relief being afforded to the business or traveling public by the advantages hitherto afforded by competing lines. Incidentally the subject of carrying the United States mails was introduced, and during its discussion a cadaverous-looking individual, who represented himself as the President of the Post, Bog and Crab Apple Air Line Railway, "put in his oar," and gave us the benefit of a set speech on the subject which he had prepared for delivery at the convention, but, as he expressed it, "he was choked off." It was the same stereotyped old story of doing too much work for the money. The only remark he made which struck me as worthy of attention was one in regard to the increase of mail matter. 'I kinder thought," said he, "the bags begun to git heavier, so I took to weighin'-of 'em, and followed it up for a month, and I'm blessed if there wasn't a increase of from three to five pounds every day, and I make no doubt it's jest as bad on other roads. We can't stand that kind o' thing, and we won't unless we git more pay." "I presume," said I, "you and all your subordinates send their correspondence in these bags and pay all the required postage thereon, and probably your increasing business has something to do with the increasing tonnage." "No, sir," he replied, "we don't pay no postage, and we don't need no letters by mail. We hev our own people, who we pay for doing our business, and it's part of their business to fetch and carry letters for each other and everybody connected with our line." "You are probably aware," said I, "that it is forbidden by the postal laws to carry letters unless in Government stamped envelopes outside the mail. Now, if the postage you should pay amounts to thirty dollars a day, and no doubt it amounts to much more, it would swell in one year to the snug little sum of ten thousand nine hundred and fifty dollars, which you not only defraud the Government out of, but lay yourselves liable to penalties, which, if inflicted, would make a serious inroad on the profits of your corporations. If you want to be fair about it, however, your road, or any other road can add the amount of the legitimate postage on correspondence to the regular compensation, and it will soon be seen that you are all greatly overpaid for the service you perform." I evidently touched him where he least expected. What I said threw him into a brown study, from which he suddenly roused himself, and, taking the arm of a gentleman alongside, who, I subsequently learned, was the Superintendent of the Enternag Wedge Eastern R. R., he led him to the further end of the room, where they both sat down and commenced figuring at something, and so continued until I left for up-stairs, which I did rather sooner than I anticipated, having received a message from J. M., inquiring if I intended to stay out all night, as she was going to lock up.

After breakfast next morning I stepped into the post-office which adjoins the hotel, and, of course, fed my curiosity by a critical examination of the establishment and its people. It was a nice, tidy place, and there was a quiet dignity about the postmaster and his clerk that struck me very favorably. I made up my mind that no irregularity or dishonesty could exist in such an atmosphere. I apologized for coming into the office, excusing myself as a stranger, having no place else to visit. I was put entirely at ease by the assurance that I was welcome, and invited to take a seat. Of course, my first return for this politeness was to compliment the gentlemanly official on the fresh, tidy and well-ordered appearance of his office, and to assure him that, so far as I knew, there was not a postal institution in the country that could excel his in neatness, cleanliness and arrangement. Said he, "So far as the administration of my office goes, I will modestly claim the credit, but for the rest I owe entirely to the good sense and good taste of my clerks." There was only one present, but a little while afterward a lady entered, and relieving herself of a muff, cuffs, collar and hood, a very pretty and intelligent-looking young woman stood revealed. Forthwith she commenced dusting here and there, where it seemed clean enough before, and picking up tiny pieces of paper and string fragments laying about the floor; and I knew then who deserved the lion's share of compliments. And just so it is everywhere, where competent and dignified females form part or the whole of the clerical force of a post-office. It's a pity there are not more of them in the service. The only exception to anything which I saw about the Firefly Office—and, so far as I know, it may be all right—was an extraordinary accumulation of mail bags. I should not have noticed it probably, but it recurred to me that I had been present a short time before at a conversation between officials, when the subject of the scarcity of mail bags and locks was being discussed and it occurred to me now that there was an unnecessary quantity at this comparatively small office, and that no doubt similar surplusage existed at hundreds of other places, which is very likely the secret of the prevailing scarcity. Of course there is a way officials have of getting at the facts of the case, and I merely throw out this hint for the action of those who have the authority to move in the premises.

J. M. has been importuning me for some time to visit Washington during the approaching carnival, but I have used every argument I could think of to dissuade her from going. I make slow progress, however, in changing her mind, and I may have to yield yet. I tried to make her believe every person would have to wear a mask and domino, and then appealed to her good sense to say how we would look going through a crowd of a million people disguised like ourselves, without knowing, or being known by, human being. This was a terrible mistake of mine, for of all things in the world she would love to put on a mask and the other thing, as she called it. But, said I, the Southern Ku Kluxes will be there in force, and, no knowing what damage they will do with their fearful daggers. This did not disconcert her a particle. She said she would take her scissors with her, and if any daggering was attempted she could dagger too,

I will probably have to take her, for nothing else than to get rid of her importunities. Although I have some misgivings not only on account of the expected crush—and the fear of losing her in the vast throng—but that her vanity will be flattered to a dangerous extent by some of the chivalrous courtesies paid to her by those who delight to do such honors to handsome ladies visiting the capital. Chicago, avaunt! MONS. TONSON.

Aerial Mails.

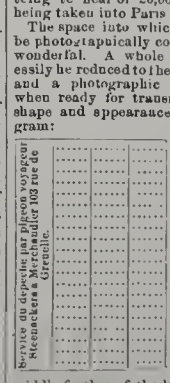
The peculiar value of the carrier or letter pigeon, as a means of communication, has, since the days of the old Crusaders, never been so pre-eminently displayed as at the present time, when it has proved itself the only messenger able to take news from the French provinces into the beleaguered capital. The impossibility at present experienced of guiding the balloons back to Paris, notwithstanding the many prizes that have been offered, has necessitated the calling in the aid of this bird messenger, which, since the days of railroads and telegraphs, has almost gone out of general memory as a bearer of communications. There was a time, not so many decades ago, when the pigeon was in universal use as a bearer of dispatches; the great gold men and speculators of the Continent used the carrier pigeon when quick communication of events was necessary, and the European newspaper editors did not despise the puny postal messenger when it brought the first intelligence of a battle or a horse-race. The European telegraphic agent, Reuter, made good use of them as messengers when the telegraphic communication was establishing between Aachen and Berlin, and a gapstill existed between Aachen and Brussels, the birds carrying the dispatches from one city to the other in the space of about an hour. To this day they are in great demand in Belgium, in Holland, and the lands of the Lower Rhine, as well as on the English race-courses The Belgian newspaper men are great pigeon fanciers, and have frequent occasion to make use of the birds for the transmission of reports. A few months ago a Belgian provincial newspaper correspondent, sent to Brussels in order to report and transmit at once the King's opening speech in Parliament, was furnished with two carrier pigeons, by which to send home duplicates of his copy. Arriving at the capital, he alighted at one of the hotels, where he gave the bird-cage into the hands of a waiter, and ordered a good breakfast for himself. The meal was soon ready, and as quickly devoured, the correspondent being especially delighted with the taste of two delicate birds But he was not so well pleased when, after completing his report, he called for his pigeons, and was told that he had eaten them for breakfast. It is the French, however, who have now come to know best he extraordinary value of the carrier-pigeons. Any one can make use of this means of communicating with Paris by payment of fifty centimes per word for letters not exceeding twenty words. These letters, being collected in the provisional capital—Tours, Bordeaux, or wherever she may be—are legibly transcribed upon large sheets of paper, like newspaper columns—this collective letter then being photographically reduced to the most minute dimensions before being intrusted to the bird-post. The system was first introduced in Tours, on the 8th of November, and on the same day the first journal of dispatches was received by the authorities in Paris who have the task of enlarging the dispatch and transcribing and forwarding the letters to their destination. The first dispatches prepared in Tours contained only some 250 letters; now it is no uncommon thing to hear of 20,000 or 30,000 dispatches being taken into Paris by a single bird.

The space into which these messages can be photographically compressed is something wonderful. A whole newspaper page can easily be reduced to the size of an inch square; and a photographic pigeon-post dispatch, when ready for transmission, has the size, shape and appearance of the following diagram:



The first column contains the address of the Paris depot. The other three columns contain the dispatches, one following the other, without spaces or other marks. On the reverse, the column corresponding to the address is blank; the other three are full of dispatches like the rest. The mode of transmitting the letter thus prepared is to roll it round the middle feather of the bird's tail, or it is inserted in a separate quill, and attached by thread to the same; thus being no hindrance to the bird in flying. The old method of tying the letter under the wing is no longer adopted. Before the Germans got to know the system, they attempted, now and then, to send in some of the captured pigeons with bogus dispatches; but the deception was immediately discovered. The wings of the pigeons also are stamped with the date and place of departure.

The pigeons used for the carrying of the dispatches are larger than the common house pigeons, being about 15 inches in length, and weighing from 1 to 1½ pounds, and strongly resembling the wild pigeon. While the latter, however, have gray plumage, with black wings, the postal pigeon is usually dark brown or perfectly black. Its breast-muscles are very large and strong, indicating great power of flight and endurance. Most ornithologists are agreed that two elements enable the carrier pigeon, with its great power of wing, to perform its astonishing journeys—namely, the love of home and the sharpness of the eye. As soon as a pigeon is released, no matter where taken, it immediately darts upward, circling and constantly enlarging the circle as it ascends higher, getting at last almost beyond the reach of the human eye, until finally, getting the direction of its home, it shoots off with incredible swiftness. A pigeon sent from a floating balloon takes an exactly contrary direction, at first descending perpendicularly earthward, circling as it descends, until it recognizes its position. All this is a matter of training and race. To get good, trusty carrier-pigeons, short journeys must be first made when the birds are still very young, these being continually increased until they are able to perform immense distances with certainty and without interruption Belgium is the land, par excellence, of carrier-pigeons, then Holland, the lands of the Lower Rhine and the north-east of France. Pigeon "fancying" is in Belgium a passion; the Belgian fancier takes greater pride in his dove-cote than probably any other European. Who has not seen him seated on the roof of his house, or at one of the highest garret windows, in the beautiful summer evening, waiting for the return of his pigeons, which he expects from some towns in France, from Germany, and, indeed, at times, from Italy? His heart almost breaks when one of his favorites is lost. But his pigeons, to his honor it must be said, do generally return. His breed or "race" is pure. He knows what they can do—how far they can fly, and what burdens they should bear. He calls the Parisians "know nothings" in regard to their pigeons, and cannot understand why, of so many birds that are sent out from the city by the balloons, only so very few return. A writer in the Vienna Presse reports a very interesting conversation he lately held with one of the most prominent pigeon fanciers of Belgium, who regretted that he had not taken his stock of birds into Paris before the Germans beleagured it, as he would certainly have become rich, and his views are shared by the fanciers of Luttich, Namur, and Brussels, the breeding cities of the noblest race of pigeons. This fancier gave some interesting information about the letter-pigeon which shall be here transcribed. He first of all referred to some agencies now prevalent which seriously injured the usefulness of the pigeon as a post messenger: First, the concussions they get while in the balloon, many being thus killed; secondly, the Paris pigeon is not of good "race," and this disadvantage is seriously increased by the officials taking the pigeons too long distance and overloading them with dispatches. A Belgian fancier knows how to treat his birds with care. "The owner of a good pigeon cote," says our Belgian, "places it at the disposition of the government, or sells it outright. From this moment the cote becomes an official bureau, in which one or more government officials must remain. The pigeons are separated into small lots, and those from one cote, or neighboring cotes, are sent on the same journey whenever possible. The balloon takes the lot in a cage, and, after a successful descent, the birds are delivered over to the proper authorities. It depends very much upon the treatment the birds now receive whether or not they make a successful return to Paris. It the Parisians had bred only the celebrated gray-reddish or blue Belgian race, they would not have had so much cause to fear about their return. They do not go back so quickly as the balloons came, but quicker than the railroad, and a journey from the Belgian borders to Paris is to them but a little task." A balloon letter from Paris was quoted in proof of the imperfection of the French pigeon service. "For a few days past"—so it read—"we have been truly favored in regard to the arrival of news from the provinces. Yesterday came two pigeons; to-day again two; of the latter, one came at 11 o'clock in the morning, and the other at 3 in the afternoon." The Belgian fancier shook his head thoughtfully. "They send the pigeons away by the dozen," he said, "and they return singly; that is a bad race. They remain in the fields, and permit themselves to be shot by the peasants or by the Prussians Probably some of these Paris birds will remain sitting on the roofs of the houses after their return, so that they must be shot down."

A visit to the Belgian's pigeon cote is thus described: The cote was a very high one, looking over the curious roofs and houses of the old city, and facing the ancient cathedral. It was a kind of appendage to the roof, and from it a free view was had on all sides, especially upon the roofs of the neighboring houses. The cote contained about a hundred birds, all reddish-blue or blue, most of them with beautiful fiery tinges, a few with black eyes. All were males. A Belgian first-class fancier will not suffer a female bird in the cote. The breeding pigeons are kept separate. The Belgian let loose a dozen pigeons; he then leaned out of the windows, and gave to the birds, which had not dallied a moment on the roof, but were already high above the houses, the direction which they should take by a single motion of the hand. They obeyed with a promptitude that left no doubt of the perfection of their training. He then suddenly closed the window, and, when the birds came to the neighborhood of the roof, he whistled sharp, and turning round to his visitor, said: "If one of my pigeons settle down upon any other point except upon the trap in my cote-roof, I will screw its neck off." He had scarcely uttered these words when the whole lot flocked home; not a single one had lodged elsewhere. The fancier repeated the experiment ten times, always with the same success. "That is the race," he said. "When my pigeons come from the longest journey, they must always keep to the same rules, and they always remember them. I have not killed a pigeon for its incapability now for a long time." "You believe, then, that things do not work so smoothly in Paris?" "No, they will not have many birds that return so punctually to the cote." "How do they manage there after the arrival of the birds?" "That is simple enough: during the day when the birds are expected, the owner of the cote sits all day upon the roof; the Paris Government will also give him assistants. As soon as the birds come in sight he does just as I have described, and I wish he may always have the same success. If the birds enter the cote, then the officials immediately take possession of the dispatches, and they are carried as quickly as possible to the Hotel de Ville. Voila tout!" There are more than 150 societies or unions of pigeon-fanciers in Belgium alone, and these are connected with branch societies in all countries of the Continent.

The speed attained by the pigeons is from thirty five to forty miles an hour, therefore quicker than the average railroad train. Some instances of speed attained may be here recorded. On the 29th of July, 1859, there was a pigeon race from Orleans to Antwerp; at 7½ o'clock in the morning 114 pigeons were released at Orleans, and of these the one which received the first prize arrived at Antwerp at 14 minutes after 1 in the afternoon, the whole distance of 50 German miles being accomplished in 5 hours and 45 minutes, or about 10 German or 45 English miles per hour. On the 22d of May last two Cologne pigeons were sent up at Pesth, and greetings printed on the wings, at 6 o'clock in the morning At 5 in the afternoon a telegram came announcing the arrival of the two messengers at 2 o'clock, in a somewhat exhausted state, having accomplished the journey of 125 German miles in not quite eight hours, giving thus a speed of nearly 70 English miles per hour! Not unfrequently birds become exhausted during very long journeys, and are unable to proceed further, or in crossing some regions get into storms, and are destroyed: and especially dangerous is the journey from Italy to Belgium and Holland, the storms of the Alps proving very injurious. A well-trained pigeon never dallies on the journey; never stops to make love on the way—never, in fact, appears to forget his duty. True, some make very agreeable acquaintances before they are sent up for the home journey, and cases are recorded where the amorous instinct and the love of home have had a serious conflict. A Belgian fancier relates an instance of this kind: A bird was separated from its mate and sent up with dispatches: the first day it returned; the second and third day, the same; but on the fourth it soared higher and higher, gained its proper direction, and sped toward home.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

SIR—An old gentleman once upon a time procured a new harness for his team, and on observing that his teamster had neglected to tuck the straps into the loops when buckling it unto the team, directed him to take the harness over to the maker, and tell him to cut off those loops. "Why?" said the teamster. "Because they are of no use," replied the employer.

This occurrence is often brought vividly to my mind in view of the practice of very many postmasters in relation to forwarding circulars, transient papers, miscellaneous matter and regular newspapers; also, allowing regular newspapers to pass through their offices, enclosing handbills quack doctors' advertisements, etc., free of postage, suggesting to the mind the propriety of such officials either studying laws and regulations furnished by the Department, or return them as useless. I have heard the declaration from those called upon for postage upon such matter: That "other postmasters don't charge extra postage on each," "Mr. So-and-so forwards them free;" "I have had this paper forwarded to Podwick by the postmaster at Foxville and no postage charged," "Why do you make me pay two cents for them?" so often that his vocabulary is as "familiar as Household Words.' My reply is: "The law requires it." "You probably put it into your own pocket," is the curt rejoinder.

During the last few years I have had controversy with nearly every publisher of local papers received at this office in relation to folding handbills in their regular issue, advertisements of quack doctors, merchants, etc., first without any pretension of a supplement, and when informed I could not deliver them except upon payment of letter postage, changed the form and headed them "Supplement;" and when told that would not do, called me "extra officious;" also that no other postmaster took the same view of the matter that I did, etc. In vain did I tell them the Post-office Department had again and again decided that theirs was not a supplement as defined by law until I received the October number of the MAIL also the October number of the Post Office Gazette, each containing an editorial and decisions, completely ronsing them alive, telling them such practices were a fraud upon the Post-office Department, and also instructing such parties to pursue them for the penalty.

I have forwarded these copies to several publishers, with stamps for return of postage, inviting them at the same time to look them over carefully and return them, as I had use for them. This compelled them to come down and own I was right. I keep these copies on file for such publishers. Now all this vexation to postmasters who use the "loops," as well as the loss of postage that ought to be collected, is the result of not studying the laws and regulations furnished by the Post-office Department: and some pretty good officials are in the bout too.

How shall it be remedied? I know no better way than to compel them to take the MAIL as one condition of appointment to office. I would sooner do without my weekly political paper than dispense with the Mail. How we could train them up if they only took and read it!

But if they can't be reached, have the "loops" cut off at once.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9, 1871.

SIR—Referring to my letter of the 26th of October last, I have to inform you that the General Post Office at Berlin has just advised this Department that an abatement has recently been made in the postage charges on correspondance for and from the English Possessions and Protected States in Farther India, exclusive of Ceylon, via Brindisi and Alexandria; and that from henceforth correspondance for Ceylon, Hindostan China, Japan and Australia may also be sent in the German mails via Brindisi and Australia.

Owing to these abatements of the foreign postage charges, correspondence for the within named countries and places may now be forwarded from the United States in the German mails, via Brindisi, at the rates of postage and conditions of payment specified in the subjoined table:

To insure the transmission of correspondence to the countries in question by this route, it will be necessary to plainly inscribe the same, "by direct German Mail, via Brindisi," or, "by German Mail, via England and Brindisi," as written in the body of the accompanying table.

Ordinary letters for the English Possessions and Protected States in Farther India, exclusive of Ceylon, may be sent either unpaid or prepaid, at the option of the senders; but the prepayment of letters for all other destinations herein-named is compulsory, and, in like manner, the prepayment of the postage charges on printed matter and samples is obligatory in every instance.

The postage rates on packages of printed matter and samples exceeding the weight of 3¾ ounces are not expressed in the anclosed table, but as the foreign charges on such matter progress at the rate of 1½ silbergroschen, or 3 cents per each 2½ loth or 1¼ ounce to Aden and to the English Possessions and Protected States in Farther India, exclusive of Ceylon; and at the rate of ¾ silbergroschen, or 3 cents per each 2½ loth or 1¼ ounce to all other places named herein the full rates on heavier packages can be easily ascertained by adding these amounts to the international charges on the same.

I am, sir, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of THE MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We take up a letter which relates to insufficient prepayment of postage on two packages, each containing clothing. The contents of one package being two shirts, one pair of stockings and one pair of mittens, on which ten cents postage was paid at the mailing office, the weight of the package being seventeen ounces. The postmaster at the office of delivery—who writes the letter before us—did not see the law in the same light as the mailing postmaster, and so charged for deficient postage in accordance with section 152 of regulation of 1866. Whereupon the person to whom the package was sent became angry, threatened the terrors of the law, and found an attorney who offered to undertake the prosecution of the case gratuitously. We are not told whether the prosecution was commenced, but we presume not. We hope, however, if it ever is, that we shall be informed of it and of the verdict, for we must confess that we are a little suspicious of a community that promises a living to an attorney who would have the hardihood to undertake the prosecution of any officer who so clearly has the law on his side, as the postmaster who collected this deficient postage. He, this generous attorney, may be one, indeed, who can "divide a hair, 'twixt south and southwest side," and make white appear very black; but we should rather judge him to be a presumptuous ignoramus. But what shall we say of the mailing postmaster who, in addition to his not charging sufficient postage, follows up his ignorance by a letter of remonstrance to the other postmaster for collecting the deficient postage, alleging that the original postage was correct; for "he put up the packages himself," and the other "had no right to charge letter postage." While we admit that many questions must arise, and there must be different opinions respecting some of the provisions of the postal laws, as there must be of some of the provisions of all laws, it is to us a matter of surprise that any question can arise whether or not shirts or gloves, or such like articles, are included in the lists in the sections defining mailable matter. They are not there, and no amount of wisdom or ignorance can constrne them there; but there has got in to "the heads" of some postmasters, and a small portion of the public, an idea that if a package is cancelled and contains no writing the postage should be at miscellaneous rates: and then, when some postmaster who understands the law makes the correction required by the law, he is assailed with complaint and abuse, and threats of legal prosecution.

Law is an exact science, however much its administration may be at fault, and words mean just what they are and no more. "Mailable matter" is defined by law, and nothing else but what is mentioned in the definition, sections 221 and 222, laws 1866, is mailable matter—although other matter may be mailed at letter rates of postage (sec. 245); and where the law says weekly, only weekly is meant, not semi-weekly, or deily, or monthly, or any other time than weekly. Where it says "book" manuscript, it means "book" manuscript, and not author's manuscript, as some have "got it into their heads," or newspaper manuscript, or any manuscript but that intended for hooke. We might pursue this subject further, but as we believe we have said enough to comply with the request of our correspondent, and "have put the case in such a shape as will enlighten the darkness which hangs over the subject," we take up the letter wherein the writer alleges, as excuse for tardiness in remitting for the MAIL, "shortness of funds"—a chronic epidemic, by the way—and asks "where is the justice in keeping a man out of his money two months after he has earned it?" alluding to the fact that he has not received his audited account for the fourth quarter of last year. Our correspondent must misapprehend the mode of keeping postoffice accounts, for, except in a few cases, postmasters are in debt to the Department at the end of the quarter, and not the Department to them, and hence auditing accounts has no bearing on the payment of salary. It occasionally happens in some small offices that the amount of business falls so far below the basis of adjustment that the Department become indebted to the postmasters. It is only in these cases that a postmaster is not paid in full at the end of each quarter.

Death of William B. Taylor.

Mr. William B. Taylor, late Assistant Postmaster of this city, died, it is supposed, from heart disease, at his residence, No. 202 West 28th street, on Sunday evening, the 12th ult. The deceased was born in 1800 in New Brunswick, N. J., and, when a boy, entered the village post-office. In 1822 he obtained a place in the post-office, then in Garden street (now Exchange place), in this city, under the administration of Gen. Theodorus Bailey, who, in his seventy-first year, was both a hero of the Revolutionary War and Postmaster of the city. In those days a half dozen persons performed the work of the office, and in 1825 Mr. Taylor, as chief clerk, assorted all the mails himself, and the good postmaster, with his family, lived in rooms adjacent to and forming a part of the office.

General Bailey was succeeded as Postmaster by Gouverneur and Coddington. John L. Graham, Robert H. Morris, William V. Brady, Isaac V. Fowler and John A. Dix, under all of whom, except for a short time under Coddington, he remained as chief clerk. He succeeded Dix as Postmaster, but his administration lasted only one year. His successor, Abram Wakeman, made him his deputy. Prior to the close of Wakeman's administration he resigned. When General Jones was appointed Postmaster he called Mr. Taylor to fill his old desk, and his appointment received the indorsement of the entire business community. He filled the position until the time of his death, to the admiration and satisfaction of all who had business at his desk. At the time of his death he was seventy-one years and one month of age.

At a meeting of the officers of the Post-office, held in the Postmaster's room, with the Postmaster in the chair, the following resolutions were adopted yesterday:

Whereas, One friend and official associate, William B. Taylor, has been suddenly and unexpectedly removed by the hand of death, and as we desire to give some proper expression to the feelings with which that sad event has inspired us, in common with all who enjoyed his acquaintance and friendship, therefore

Resolved, That by his death we are called on to mourn the loss of one whose conduct in his official capacity served as an example to us all of what an upright and faithful public officer should be, and whose private virtues, though perhaps not so widely known, were not less conspicuous to those who had the opportunity of observing them.

Resolved, That while we shrink from intruding upon the sacredness of the grief which must now overwhelm those whom this sudden blow has placed beyond the reach of earthly consolation, we cannot refrain from expressing to the surviving members of his family our profoundest sympathy in their affliction, and the assurance that the memory of their lost husband and father shall be forever cherished by us.

Resolved, That we will attend in a body the funeral of our deceased friend.

(Signed) J. GAYLER, D. T. MORGAN, W. R. GILLETTE, } Committee.

Registration.—E. C. C., W——, Mich.—The Third Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes envelopes for registration business. . . . W. W. M., P—— C——, Utah.—A registration fee is required on all registered official letters addressed to persons not connected with the Post-office Department.

Returning Newsdealers' Packages.—L. R. J., C—— C——, Ind., and E. W., L——, Mass.—Newsdealers' packages returned to the publishers are subject to postage at transient rates to be prepaid at the mailing office. They cannot be returned unpaid, under the section by which they were received.

Postages.—F. McD., A——, N. Y.—The postage on all matter sealed against inspection is at letter rates. . . . J. B. L., T——, O.—There is no provision for quarterly postage on papers sent to foreign countries; but postage is chargeable on each paper according to the rate in our Foreign Postage Table.

Billing Unpaid Letters.—J. C., S—— D——, Pa.—1. The New York office does bill unpaid foreign letters, but sometimes the bills and letters become separated. 2. Some of the large offices use postage stamps on some official correspondence, because the postmasters have not time to frank all the envelopes required.

Delivering the Mail Pouch to the Carrier.—G. W. K., O——, Mich.—Section 80, Regulations of 1866, applies as well to the delivery of the mail pouch to the carrier as to receiving it from him. That is, the carrier should drive as near to the door of the post-office at he can, and the mail pouch should be delivered to him there. He is not required to go into the office for it.

Sample Copies of Small Newspapers.—J. H., M——, N. Y.—Sample copies of newspapers should be prepaid at the mailing office. That it is not done, and that packages of sample copies such as you mention pass through the mails without prepayment is owing to the ignorance or carelessness of postmasters, or niggardly dishonesty of publishers. Such cases should be reported to the nearest Special Agent. (See section 206 Regulations, and 257 Laws of 1866.)

Mail Messenger Delivering Mails.—J. W., S—— L——, N. Y.—1. A mail messenger should deliver the mails to some one authorized to receive it. This may be a railway employe, or may be a route agent or railway postal clerk, according as the service is performed. 2. A mail messenger is required to be at the train to take charge of the mails intended for him, and if the train is "over due," he should take care to be at his place when it arrives.

Paying Contractors.—F. B., E—— G——, Ind.—The rule of law is that the debtor must go to the creditor to pay a debt. Under this rule the postmaster would be required to go to the contractor, but he is not required to "run after him:" one call at a proper time is sufficient; after that the contractor must do the running. Such questions, however, are difficult to answer satisfactorily; for questions of courtesy, convenience, good nature, etc., etc., as well as of legal right, may be involved.

Post-office Hours.—J. W., P——, Ind.—It is difficult to say exactly what are the business hours of a place, for some places of business in some towns are kept open until after midnight, and in others till ten or eleven o'clock. It would be safe to say, however, that no post-office, except in large cities, need be kept open later than eight o'clock in the evening, unless a mail arrives within half an hour of that time. The main object should be to give people time to call at the office after the arrival of the mails; or in the evening sufficient time to accommodate those employed during the day.

Mutilated Currency.—R. H. L. H., G——, W., Va., and others.—Postmasters are not required to redeem mutilated currency. But by mutilated currency is meant currency of which more than one-tenth is missing, though the popular use of the word includes all torn or frayed currency. The instructions of the Department are to "receive in payment for stamps and stamped envelopes United States notes of which not more than one-twentieth is missing, and fractional notes of which not more than one-tenth is missing, if clearly genuine;" but they are not required to receive mutilated notes—that is, notes not worth their full face value. The Third Assistant Postmaster General furnishes a circular of instructions on this subject.

Franking.—T. E., S——, Iowa, and others.—One of our correspondents on this subject asks us to be very clear and explicit in replies to his questions. Can any thing be clearer than the information on our third page? Time and again we have found that some postmasters have a confused idea that the franking privilege does not include matter sent to, as well as by those possessing it, and time and again we have said it does; and section 123 of Regulations of 1866 commences thus: "The right to send and receive letters," etc. Can anything be clearer? If a man has a right to receive letters, etc., free of postage, it follows, as a matter of course, that postage is not required on letters, etc., sent to him. But while we can give no clearer instruction, we may by illustration make it more impressive. Open your Book of Regulations of 1866 at page 22, look at section 124. There you have a list of the persons entitled to the franking privilege, divided into four classes. Now, exactly the same kind of mail matter that each of these four classes may send franked may be sent to them franked or free. That is, a member of Congress may send free anything weighing not over four ounces; therefore, any one may send free to a member of Congress anything weighing not over four ounces. Again, the long list of officers under the fourth class of franks may send free only official correspondence. Therefore, any one may send free to them correspondence on official business; and by Section 139 (277 of Laws), it is no longer necessary to even endorse the envelope "Official business." If the poorest, humblest, least-known individual in the United States writes to the President, or Vice-President, or to a member of Congress, his letter is entitled to go free, or if he writes to the Secretary of State, or to the Secretary of the Treasury, or to the Commissioner of Patents, or any of the officers mentioned in class four of franks, concerning any business of their respective offices, his letter is entitled to go free, or franked. (Sec 136 of Regulations answers clearly the question of one of our correspondents respecting the inclosure of letters for another in franked envelopes.) Some others, besides those mentioned in section 124, have the franking privilege. (See sections 143, 144 and 145; also the third page of the MAIL before referred to.)

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no donbt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five c nts. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery U paid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada, is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns, and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

Until January 1, 1870, letters could be registered, on payment of certain special postage rates, to France, Algeria, Corsica, Bonrhon, Nice and Savoy; also to Alexandretta, Tangiers and Tunis. This, however, cannot be done at present. The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves Ne York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, pa er plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four onnces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilega as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 134 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulers, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four onnces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advence, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)			30 "
For Tri-Weekly,	"	"	15 "
For Semi-Weekly,	"	"	10 "
For Weekly,	"	"	5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for shorter terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religions, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office a the rates of transient printing matter.

Size No. 1, boxes 3½ by 4½ in	$2 75
" No. 2, " 2¾ by 4½ in	2 50

The prices include boxes of white pine, varnished, with the fronts attached, complete and ready for use, except numbering.

The cut above shows the No. 2 box in use.

Each lock is furnished with three keys, and we guarantee that none of the keys of different boxes shall interchange.

Nests of 100 boxes (10 high by 10 wide) constantly on hand ready for shipment.

DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS containing two photographs of the Lock-Boxes, sent on application; and where Postmasters contemplate ordering, a sample box will be sent for their inspection.

The boxes have in some cases been paid for by the U.S. Government, but usually by the Postmasters; and we have yet to learn of a case in which they have not been universally liked and readily rented, at an increased charge of from two to four dollars per annum.

Postmasters can reimburse themselves by selling the locks and keys to the persons renting the boxes.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 7. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1871. WHOLE NO. 127.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, March, 1871.

I intimated in my last epistle that J. M. had made up her mind to visit the Federal city during the late carnival season, and when she makes up her mind about anything experience has taught me that there is no use in demurring—she is a law unto herself—and, nolens volens, she would go and I had to go with her, and go we did. I might have put my foot down and said No, but she has such a persuading way about her that I am impressed with the idea that I would have raised that foot almost as quick as it was planted and said Yes. This, of course, would not proceed from timidity, for I think I am naturally brave; but "what's the use of being disobliging and contrary" (J. M.'s own words) when domestic comfort and concord are involved; and then she is bruve too, and ——. The fact is it's all well enough for men to blow and swagger about being lords and masters of their own domicils; but, bless your heart, there's not one in twenty dare make such an assertion within earshot of his (big or little) better half. Married reader, "you know how it is yourself." There was more or less preparation to be made for our trip, and the dear good woman well nigh exhausted herself in stitching and starching for the occasion, and a portion of my apparel came in for its share of the latter process, particularly my standing collars, to which the mutilated loss of my ears will plainly testify even at the present writing. I will not recapitulate the incidents of travel toward the capital, but will simply relate a little circumstance which occurred to vary the monotony of a three hundred miles' railway ride. The train had stopped to dine at Bullud Junction, and I left the car to procure some refreshments, as J. M. declined to leave her seat; but while I was in the saloon a train from an opposite direction arrived, and so gently, too, that I did not hear it; and having purchased my supplies, I hurried out, but somehow or other I got turned round, and entered a car on the wrong side of the depot, and before I discovered my mistake the other train had started and was a mile away, and soon disappeared round a curve in the road, while I stood dumbfounded on the track. I soon recovered my presence of mind, however, and proceeded to confer with the station-master as to what was the best to be done under the trying circumstances. I learned there was no other passenger train until midnight, by which time J. M. would be—heaven knows where; and the advice of the obliging factotum was to "telegraph to your wife to stop off at Blindbridle, and then sit down and take your comfort until the next caravan leaves." So far as telegraphing was concerned, that was all very well, but the idea of staying at Bullud Station until midnight was terrible. I offered everything for a horse and wagon, but there was no wagon, and the only horse in the vicinity was a forlorn-looking blind brute doing treadmill duty on a wood-sawing machine, and of course there was no hope for help in that direction. I was in great distress, and hardly knew what to do, when the the shrill scream of a steam-whistle pierced my ear.

"What's that?" I eagerly asked of the presiding genius of the locality.

"Oh, that's only a freight," was the reply.

"Does it go to Blindbridle?" I inquired, hastily.

"Certainly," said he.

"Then can't I go on that?"

"Oh, no," he replied; "the freight cars are all locked, and there is no place for you to ride."

This apparently settled the matter, when, to my great joy, a Milesian who had come up to us unseen spoke up:

"Roid on th' injoin—be gorry, yees coudn't foind a hotther shot—if th' ould felly that dhrives it 'll give yees a sate in his caboose."

Upon this hint I acted, and was soon ensconced in the "lookout" of the "Lone Jack"—one of the most diabolical-looking locomotives I ever set my eyes upon. With a shriek that quite unstrung my nevers the ponderous machine left the station, dragging after it an apparently interminable string of box-cars, which a used it to belch out steam and smoke to such an extent as to almost blind and deafen me. Once under headway, however, the smoke clouds lifted and the giant's breathing grew easier, and I rose and looked out over the landscape. I did not look long, however. The track lay along the top of a high, narrow ridge, the slopes of which could not be seen unless one leaned out over the side of the engine and looked down; and it appeared, therefore, as if we were flying through the air—and we were literally flying, for the valves were open and the grade of the road was slightly descending; and, to my mind, no comet ever careered through space with half the velocity that this infernal engine was hurrying us along to what I regarded as inevitable destruction. I was perfectly horror-stricken with the situation, and would have given worlds were they mine to have been elsewhere. But I had to remain where I was, and when we reached Blindbridle I was completely overcome. I had a vague impression that J. M. met me at the door of the station, and that she gave me a salutation which savored somewhat of severity, and then I settled down in a seat in a state of semi-unconsciousness, from which I was aroused by some superserviceable wretch applying a bottle of forty-horse power hartshorne to my olfactories. With a snort and a shout I sprung to my feet, and, peaceably-disposed Christian man as I am, had it not been for J. M I verily believe I would have made war upon every man, woman and child in the establishment. By a peculiar method of her own she soon mollified me, and before the next train arrived she understood all about my mistake and its consequences, and we resumed our journey as lovingly as ever.

We reached Washington on the morning of the first day of the carnival, and had a good deal of difficulty in securing quarters; but we finally succeeded in getting a front room on the tenth story of the French Roof Hotel, on the thumb-hand side of Pennsylvania avenue, and proceeded forthwith to array ourselves in our level best, preparatory to sallying forth to see the sights of the crowded city.

Prior to leaving our sky-parlor, we took a bird's-eye view of the great broad thoroughfare stretched out on both sides of us, which appeared to be packed and running over with human beings of every sex, age and condition. The sidewalks were crammed and jammed, although it was only early breakfast time—windows and doorways were thronged, and temporary stagings and platforms erected for speculating purposes, were loaded with living and excited people. Boydom hung and swung on the branches of the trees, and crowds peered down from the tops of the badly-matched houses which disfigured this noble avenue by their dissimilarity and irregularity. Indeed, the view from our eyrie wrought such fear in the heart of J. M. that she at first resolved not to venture out, and of course that would have kept me in; but just at the critical moment the booming of a cannon close by shook the house and rattled the windows, and so alarmed her (for in the innocence of her nature she supposed the building was about to fall), that she seized me by the arm, and implored me to hurry with her down-stairs before we were crushed in the ruins, and in three minutes we were struggling with the surging masses on the pavement below, and pushed and shoved about, first in one direction and then the other, until there was scarcely a breath left in our bodies. By a desperate effort I succeeded in re-entering the hotel with J. M. in my wake, and repairing to our room again (all fear of the structure falling having subsided), and locking the door, we determined to do all our sight-seeing thereafter from our elevated lookout. During the little time we were absent I lost my umbrella, smashed my hat and nearly ruined my best coat, and J. M. had the skirt of her best dress almost torn off by the elephantine foot of a freedman who was vainly striving to "get to de front, if you please, sah." My gentle dame glanced wofully at her damaged garment—and then at my much-abused hat—and her lips were just parting to say something severe, when we were startled by a rap at our chamber door. In our country fashion we said "Come in"—but as the door was locked, that was impossible. So I opened it and found one of the servants there who handed me two cards, upon which were the names respectively of Septimus Dardledot, attorney-at-law, Muggywaseo, and Luke Woolfur, Jr., Wildvineton. I could not invite the gentlemen up, so the next best thing was to go down. J. M. was loth for me to leave her, but I assured her "they were prominent and influential gentlemen, and it wouldn't do under any circumstance to slight prominent and influential gentlemen at the seat of Government. No one ever thinks of doing such a thing; besides, it's fraught with danger—duelling is not dead yet in the District."

"There, there," said she, impatiently interrupting me—"go down, for mercy's sake, but don't talk about duelling; some folks couldn't shoot a cent; I don't mean you, my dear." There was a little ambiguity about this speech, but I left without seeking further explanation, and descended to the reading-room, where I found the gentlemen who had carded me. I recognized Dardledot as the brother of a postmaster in one of the Northern States; but his companion I did not know until Dardledot introduced him to me, adding that "he (Woolfur) was an applicant for the post-office at Wildvineton, had influence enough to lend a ship, and papers enough to shingle a meeting-house, and was certain of the appointment, and he was most happy to have us know each other." I assured him the happiness was mutual and wished him success in his expectations. Woolfur was evidently a man of few words, and had probably paid Dardledot a good fat fee to do the talking for him. He merely thanked me, and nothing more; but the Muggywaseonian spoke for him and laid the blarney on so thick that poor Woolfur fairly sunk under it. "Mr. W., as you perceive, Mr. Tonson, is a young man; but that's nothing; it's no fault of his that he was not born sooner. He is, I say, a young man, with a good education and a rich father, and is just the kind of person to make a good postmaster. He don't want the position for profit; he wants it for the honor of the thing, and by Jove he'll get it. He don't want to do the work or get the pay. There are half a dozen storekeepers in Wildvineton that will give the room for an office and run it for half or quarter of Woolfur's salary, and he needn't trouble his head a mite about it. Of course as P. M. he will be legitimately entitled to certain rights and privileges which he intends to exercise, but in the management and labor of the office he will take no active part, trusting to the individuals he may deputize to do the work, and bear the blame, if any attaches."

Happening to know the incumbent at Wildvineton, I asked what objection there was to the present postmaster.

"Oh, he's had it long enough, and he's too confounded strict. He permits no one to go inside of his office, except on business; and then he keeps no chairs for folks to sit on. He won't accommodate our bank by depositing his post-office and money-order funds in it; he won't credit our best men for box rents or quarterly postage on newspapers; he won't put a stamp on a letter unless it's paid for, and every one does not have the change in his pocket. And yet I have seen this stickler for three cents give away nickels and ten-cent stamps to miserable beggars, who made him believe they were famishing for sustenance, without even questioning them."

'Well, really, friend Dardledot," I rejoined, "if you have no better reasons for asking the displacement of your old postmaster than those you have given, I opine that Mr. Woolfur's chances are rather apocryphal; for I think the Department will sustain him in his official actions. According to my view of the case, no man should apply for a postmastership unless he wants to perform the duties as well as wear the honors; and if he does receive the appointment, and takes the oath of office, I think he forswears himself if he neglects its duties or transfers them to any other than his legitimate and necessary assistants."

"That's all very well, Mr. Tonson, but there are scores of other complaints against this man. He refuses to allow people who own boxes close to the delivery window to reach through and help themselves, to save time. He refuses to put stamps on letters for anybody but old people and children. He charges letter-postage on newspapers, if people wish to write only a word or two to their friends on the margin. He won't keep his office open later than 9 o'clock at night, and on Sunday only an hour before and after church. He weighs nearly every letter dropped into the office, and if it is what he calls 'overweight,' he charges additional postage. He refuses to deliver anonymous letters. But the crowning objection to him is, that he refused to clean out the office, boxes and all, for one night and let a fair he held there for the benefit of our base-ball club."

But, bless me, I have lost sight of the carnival, and my letter is too long to think of it now.

MONS. TONSON.

CORRESPONDENCE.

B——, O., Feb. 23, 1871.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

I notice some of your correspondents are giving vent to their opinion as to how the Post Office should be conducted, etc., etc. I have a plan for lessening post office labor and relieving the government of a heavy expense. It seems to me that if the Post Office Department would require all letter writers to use the "return address" envelope, that the "Dead Letter" Office would become a "dead letter" indeed. The government would furnish "request" envelopes to all who would buy; and if the manufacturers of envelopes knew that such envelopes were required they could easily furnish them with words similar to these:

"If not called for in 10 days (leave the number of days blank), return to

A B C,
Hoboken, N. J.

The number of days left blank, and the writer could fill this blank, also inserting his name. As the mails have to carry letters not delivered to the Dead Letter Office, they could just as well return them to writer, and save postmasters the trouble of making out dead letter bills, etc.

If this plan was adopted, it would do away with the Dead Letter Office and save a great expense to the people, and probably the Post Office Department would not have to show an excess of expenses over receipts, but would derive a comfortable revenue from the same.

The people might complain awhile, but if the Department would issue posters, to be placed conspicuously before the people, showing the great expense saved to the government and the great benefit of having letters returned to writers, instead of the Dead Letter Office; showing, also, that the expense of such envelopes is not much greater (if any) than those now in use, they would soon be satisfied.

I have a hand-press, and I furnish envelopes, with a blank request to return, at 20c. for twenty-five envelopes, or less than 1c. each, not any more than 5c. per pack difference, and certainly five cents benefit would be derived from it.

I have written to the Hon. John Sherman, in Congress, my views as above.

I think this reform is needed, and if the Government can save by it, it ought to do it. Excuse my long letter, but I got started and could not stop.

I should like to say a few words in regard to newspaper postage.

Would it not be a better plan if publishers charged, in addition to their present rates, the U. S. postage, and make the subscriber pay it in this way? As the subscriber has it to pay he could just as well pay it to the publisher and save postmasters the trouble. The publisher could make affidavit as to the number of copies, and pay the P. M., at publication office, the necessary postage. It would be no more trouble to the publisher, as the names are on his books, and he could as readily collect the postage extra as to get the subscription. The publisher can furnish the transmitting postmaster with a list of names or number of papers, and he (P. M.) can make it appear in his quarterly report.

The postage has to be paid. The question, then, is this: Shall the publisher charge extra, to cover postage, and pay it at the depository office, or shall it be left as it is? The former, I think, is best.

Truly yours, A. E. M., P. M.

ED. U. S. MAIL:

MINN., March 6, 1871.

It is neither fair nor wise to condemn a policy or system until it has been thoroughly tested and carried out according to the letter and spirit of the originator.

Why not then stop talking and writing about a "new plan" to collect newspaper postage until the present system has been proved?

HOW TO DO IT.

Let the Department adopt a mode of operation by which "contraband" newspapers will come to grief. Say they charge letter postage on all such, or attach some fine; and when Mr. B—— has a paper sent him with letter postage charged thereon he will not be likely to take it out of the office. Let the postmaster indorse the facts on the wrapper of the paper and forward to the proper officer whose duty it shall be to prosecute the offending publisher to the full extent of the law, and would be these 'wild cat" advertising sheets, "sample copies," "complimentary," etc., etc., would not pay more than one five of fifty dollars until they would conclude it more profitable to prepay their papers, and then we would have peace, quiet and order.

I have yet to hear of the first publisher being prosecuted for the violation of Section 255, yet the law requires them to be; and no one will deny that they frequently violate it, and to my certain knowledge have been reported for it more than a few times; therefore, let us try the old plan. SUBORDINATE.

Without expressing our opinion on the plan of our correspondent for collecting newspaper postage, we feel bound to correct his impression that delinquent publishers are not held responsible for violations of Section 255. Not a report has been made to the New York Office but had received the attention of a Special Agent. Prosecution very seldom follows because the delinquents pay up and promise to do so no more.

JEFFERSON, OHIO, March 13, 1871.

EDITOR OF THE MAIL:

I do not see anything in the MAIL for March in regard to the payment of postage on publications at the issuing office. I regard that as a reform equal to cheap postage. A correspondent in the January number suggests the use of stamps as the best way for this to be done, while your correspondent in the February number hoots at the idea. Now, for my part, being a postmaster and at the same time belonging to the fourth estate, I see no insurmountable objection to the stamp project.

Now, for argument's sake, we will suppose that the postage on all papers be 1-3 of a cent, as that amount will return more to the Department, if paid in advance in stamps, than the 20 cents a year on a weekly paper, collected and not collected as it is now done. We will have stamps 1-3, 2-3, and 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, etc., just as we now have

In offices, such as the Tribune for example, that send large bundles to one address, it would be a small matter when the mailing clerk writes a wrapper and puts the designating figures for the number of papers to put a stamp on. If the package contains forty-six papers, put on a 15 cent and 1-3 cent stamp.

Where single wrappers are used the Government could furnish them already stamped, just as we use newspaper wrappers now, only that the stamp should be placed in the middle of the wrapper as a revenue stamp is placed on a check, so that writing or printing the name over it should cancel it. The Independent, Sun and other large offices mail all their papers in bands. These could be furnished by the Government with stamps on as cheap as the papers could buy the bands of the paper dealers.

Every postmaster in the country should talk this matter up. We all know how hard it is to corner everybody and collect all the postage. Every little while along comes a flood of Eastern papers without stamps, addressed to parties who are not subscribers; then the deuce is to pay when you rightfully collect two cents from the parties to whom the papers are addressed.

And then, just think, brother P. M.s what a relief it would bring to quarter day. Further it would equalize the postage. It certainly is out of proportion to charge twelve cents a year on a monthly paper and only twenty cents a weekly paper; and then twenty-four cents on a semi-monthly, while only twenty cents on a paper that comes twice as often.

Yours fraternally, P. M.

One of our correspondents has furnished to us a copy of a decision of the Department sent to him, which we give, as it interests publishers, subscribers and post masters:

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4, 1871.

If publishers introduce supplements inclosed with copies of their regular issue, so as to make the package exceed four ounces in weight, the excess must be collected at transient rates of postage. I am, respectfully,

G. W. MARSHALL,
First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Groundless Complaints.

While there are doubtless many mistakes occurring through carelessness and inefficiency in the postal service, we doubt if they are in excess of the errors committed in any business of like extent, or whose ramifications are as numerous and far-reaching. There are upwards of 28,000 post-offices in this country, employing, directly and indirectly, more than 75,000 persons. It is simply impossible to find in all these thorough efficiency and an honest proof against all temptation. But we do not doubt that where one loss is caused by the post-office employes there are a thousand occasioned by the ignorance or carelessness of the persons using the mails.

These thoughts are suggested by a case which came under our observation yesterday. A usually careful correspondent mailed a letter about the 1st of November last, containing a small sum of money, which failed to reach its destination. He was sure that the address was correctly and plainly written, giving name, number of the street, city and State with especial exactness. Its loss he blamed himself for, since he could have insured the safety of transmission by a money-order or registered letter. A day or two since he was informed by a circular from the New York Post-office that a letter of value, supposed to have been mailed by him, awaited his identification. Applying at the office, the courteous Assistant-Postmaster handed him the letter, duly returned through the Dead Letter Office. The address was entirely correct as to name and number of the street, but this city was in another State and more than two hundred miles from the place where the letter was supposed to have been addressed. It was a very agreeable satisfaction to the recipient that he had not put his foot in it by abusing the Post-office employes as thieves and inefficients, as is the too common practice. Comment is unnecessary.

We take the above from the New York Sun. But the instance is by no means a solitary one. The careless addressing of letters is a "crying evil," which it would be well for our school reformers to look after. During the past month we know of a delay of six weeks in the payment of a money order, that should have been paid the day after issue; the issue of a duplicate order; the writing of seven letters (besides those necessary to procure the duplicate); and any amount of personal inquiry and hurrying to and fro, by three or four different parties, because the writer, in addressing his letter, instead of writing Lexington in full, wrote an abbreviation, which could not be possibly taken for anything but Sixth.

Registration Fee and Postage.

Postmasters should bear constantly in mind that there is a material difference between the fee or charge for registration and for postage, and not confound the two. Whenever we speak of postage, either in our foreign postage table or elsewhere, we mean the charge for transmission without regard to any charge for registration; and whenever we speak of registration fee we mean a fee for registration, without regard to postage. For instance, on domestic letters the postage is three cents a half ounce; registry fee fifteen cents, without regard to weight—a letter weighing a half ounce would thus be charged, postage 3c., registry fee, 15c., making 18c.; if weighing an ounce, the postage would be 6c., while the registry fee would still be 15c. This caution is particularly necessary in consulting our foreign postage table, where, in some instances, it will be found that postage on registered letters is greater than on ordinary, while the registry fee is a fixed sum, and in others the registry fee increases for each additional standard of weight as well as the postage.

SIR—Referring to my letter of the 18th of November last, relative to the rates of postage and conditions of payment applicable to the correspondence for Egypt, Malta, Tunis and Tripolis, when forwarded in the German mails via Brindisi I have to inform you that this Department is now advised that the following changes have been made in the postage rates chargeable on registered letters for Malta by this route, viz.:

No charge for ordinary postage in excess of that chargeable apon ordinary letters is hereafter to be levied, but, in lieu thereof, a fixed register fee of 2½ groschen, or 8 cents per letter, is to be charged in addition to the international fee of 8 cents.

The combined rates of postage and registration fee, to be levied and collected on the registered letters for Malta so forwarded, are therefors as follows, viz.:

By direct German mail, via Brindisi, 15 cents per each half an ounce or under.

By German mail, via England and Brindisi, 18 cents per each half an ounce or under.

And in addition to these rates the combined registration fea of 14 cents per letter.

Please amend the table of postages accordingly.

I am, sir, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9, 1871.

SIR—The General Post-Office at Berlin has just advised this Department that the correspondence for Aden, and for the English Possessions and Protected States of Farther India, exclusive of Ceylon, which the senders may expressly desire to have forwarded through Germany, via Trieste, will, from henceforth, be subject to the following rates of postage, and conditions of payment, viz.:

For letters, by direct German mail 27 cents for each single rate of half an ounce or under; and by German Union closed mail, through England, 30 cents per single rate of half an ounce or under; prepayment optional in both cases.

For Newspapers, book packets and samples of merchandise, 4 cents per each 1½ ounce, in addition to the ordinary rates of international postage chargeable on the same, prepayment compulsory.

Registered letters are subject to a combined registration fee of 30 cents per letter, in addition to the rates of ordinary postage, as designated above.

Correspondence intended for transmission by this route to any of the within-named destinations should be plainly inscribed "via Germany and Trieste."

Please make such alterations in the "table of postages" as are rendered necessary by this information.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27, 1871.

SIR—From information just communicated by the German Post Department, it appears that the same rates of ordinary postage are now chargeable on all letters, registered and unregistered alike, sent to Hindoostan, Ceylon, China, Japan, or Australia, in the German mails via Brindisi. The registered letters so sent, however, will be subject to a fixed register fee of 14 cents per letter, in addition to the rates of ordinary postage chargeable thereon.

Please make the necessary correction in the next issne of your paper.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER Esq.,
Editor "U. S. Mail," New York.

Sundry Post Office Matters

Our first letter, after calling our attention to the fact that it inclesses one dollar for the U. S. MAIL, as the writer prefers it to all the postal papers printed, continues:

"You are wrong in saying so often that weekly papers are to be delivered free to subscribers within the county of publication; you should say published and printed, or partly printed, at the office of publication." We cannot now say to what our correspondent refers but we are certain that we intended always to state the matter as he states it, viz.: that county papers must be at least partly printed at the office of publication. Sections 251 of Laws and 228 of Regulations, use the word "printed and published." It has been decided, however, that the printed "outsides" furnished to county publishers to complete with "local insides" to be printed at the office of publication come within the provision of the law." And we cannot but think that an "inside," purely local to the county of publication, although from motives of economy printed elsewhere, comes within the spirit, though not the letter, of the law. Still, we are certain we never have said such are entitled to the privilege of county papers, and would not be so understood.....Our next letter is from Pennsylvania, and contains an inquiry whether it is contrary to the regulations for a postmaster to add "Center" to the address of mail matter coming to his office, which he knows is intended for a neighboring office having a name like that of his own, but with the addition of "Center" (a by no means uncommon way of naming places). We consider that an address on mail matter is evidence of the name of the person for whom the matter is intended, and of the place to which he desires it to be sent. On this ground we always discountenance the practice of postmasters making changes in addresses, although they may know, or think they know, that by so doing the party will receive mail matter sooner. It is not a part of a postmasters duty to judge what an address should be, but what it is. But cases undoubtedly will arise, where the change may be made, of which the postmaster must be the judge, and which, however, would not affect the postage chargeable on forwarded matter.....Our next is on "Sundry Post Office Matters." First, on the "Manuscript" controversy: an authoress who writes for magazines and newspapers, and resides in New Jersey, claims the "author's manuscript" privilege—which exists nowhere but in authors' brains—and quarrels with the postmaster because he will not mail her effusions at book-manuscript rates. He complains that her case is strengthened by the fact that she sometimes receives back her manuscripts from the New York Post Office paid at those rates. This may be, because in the immense quantity of transient matter mailed at the New York office, and, we regret to add, a want of a proper appreciation of and deference and obedience to postal laws in some, and unblushing efforts to evade those laws in others, it is impossible to know that every piece passing through that office is correctly paid. Second, this same lady declares to the postmaster, on his demanding postage on a New York paper, that she had taken the paper for twenty years and had not paid any postage on it. We have only to say that she then should be satisfied to begin to do so. Third, with regard to delivering papers "coming in clubs." How shall the postmaster tell to whom he has delivered the papers, unless he writes the names on them; and to write the names on one hundred or more papers is a burden, especially when the subscribers demand their papers immediately on the opening of the mail. We know and can appreciate this difficulty. We, if a postmaster, would, on opening a mail, lay the papers in question aside, distribute and deliver the letters, and take time to carefully address the papers. The Department requires that postmasters should deliver, from a list, papers received in clubs, but does not require that in doing so the delivery of letters should be interfered with, or the delivery of such papers made under circumstances that subject them to annoyance and abuse.....An inquiry respecting the cost of lamp-post letter-boxes we are unable to answer.

Mail Contracts—Close of the Lettings.

Prompt to the date of advertisement, the spring lettings of mail contracts were completed at the Post-Office Department on March 31st, and by the time this paper reaches the public eye every accepted bidder may be officially apprised of his success, and the terms upon which his proposal is accepted. The regular lettings af this season embraced al the service in the Southern States (about eighteen hundred routes), and we may congratulate the people of that section upon the liberal extension of mail facilities, furnishing, as they do, ample accommodations to every community, from the remotest villages to the most populous cities, and, indeed, upon the dissemination of the advertisements of routes ever that whole country they seem to have met with universal approval. The competition for this service has been far greater than at any period since the letting of 1859, many of the routes having elicited from thirty to fifty-five bidders. The terms, generally, are reasonable, and the offers evince thorough knowledge of the responsibilities involved. Besides the mail transportation in the South there were about one thousand "miscellaneous routes." These have been authorized by Congress nearly every State and Territory since service was regularly let therein, to meet the growing demands of enterprising people whose migratory propensities defied all dangers and opened up new roads, in many instances causing "the wilderness to bloom and blossom as the rose." It is remarkable here that in the "Northwestern section," let only last year, hundreds of these new routes have already been called for, and are now granted. Here, we notice, some of the bidders are staunch men of Maryland, who will, doubtless, prove themselves worthy, energetic citizens, and by way of pleasantry we add that, so great is the rivalry, on some routes quite important the price asked is only "one cent per annum," and, being fully guaranteed and certified, all the requirements of law being met, the Department was bound to accept them. The details of this letting, from its first preparation to its completion, have been under the supervision of the veteran Chief Clerk of the Department, E. L. Childs, Esq., and John L. Freech, Esq., the obliging Principal Clerk of the Contract Office; and it is due to the talented topographer, Walter L. Nicholson, Esq., that in traversing the various lines of travel his new and accurate maps were duly appreciated. In conclusion we add that, greatly as the whole force of the Contract Office has been drawn upon during this whole month, none of the current duties have been postponed or delayed, even for a day. Postmaster-General Cresswell and General Giles A. Smith may well be congratulated on this great and important spring work of their great Department.

"NO SUCH OFFICE" was the endorsement on the wrapper of a U. S. MAIL for last month sent to a new subscriber in Ohio and returned to us. We consulted our file of the MAIL and found there is such an office as the one in question, that it was established in January last, and is on route 9,362. A similar circumstance took place about two years ago, when two papers, addressed to Ohio, were returned to us with the endorsement, "Don't you know there is no such office?"

We replied then as we reply now, and suggested to postal clerks and route agents that they should subscribe for the MAIL, provide themselves with indexed books, and immediately on the receipt of the MAIL each month, enter in those index books the names of such offices on the list, a knowledge of the exact location of which, and route of supply, must be a part of the requisite knowledge to enable them to fulfill their duties. The large number of new offices established every month makes some such course necessary.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Postage.—R. V. D., M——, O.—A book containing a written bill is subject to letter postage.

Franking.—J. Z. L., L——, Texas.—Proposals for carrying the mails are clear y "official business," and can be sent free to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

Post-Office Directory.—J. S. McD., B——, N. J.—The Appointment Office, Washington, D. C., furnishes Post-office Directories. The latest edition was issued last October.

Wrapping Papers.—F. N. S., C——, Md.—Postmasters whose salaries exceed $12 50 a quarter are entitled to wrapping paper and twine. A reasonable quantity is all they would be allowed. (Sec. 13, Reg. 1866.)

Books from Canada, etc.—J. S. L., N——, Pa.—Books from Canada are chargeable with the domestic rate of four cents for four ounces, or each fraction thereof, to be paid on delivery. (Sec. 261, Reg. 1866.)

Name of Subscriber on a Paper.—E. S. N., W——, Md.—The name of a subscriber printed on a paper can be torn off or thoroughly erased with a pen if the subscriber wishes to mail the paper to a friend.

Distributing Weekly Papers.—F. H., B——, Miss.—By act of July 27, 1868, postmasters are required to deliver to subscribers, free of postage, weekly county papers when deposited in the office nearest the place of publication.

Newspapers from Canada.—D. B. J., S——, Ill.—Canadian newspapers are subject to the same postage as domestic. That is, postage may be paid as quarterly rates, on regular papers. Transient rates must be collected on transient papers, notwithstanding the postage paid at the mailing office in Canada.

Distance Between Offices.—J. O. H., F——, Ky.—There is no restriction in regard to the distance between two offices, though we believe the practice is not to locate them nearer than three miles.

Official Envelopes.—F. M. A., G——, N. Y.—The First Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes a list of blanks and envelopes provided by the Department, on which to make requisition for such blanks and envelopes.

Hours for Issuing Money Orders.—H. N. B., D——, N. Y.—The hours for issuing money orders must be regulated by the mutual convenience of the public and the postmaster. There would be no impropriety in making a rule not to issue money orders after 4 o'clock P. M., where banks close at that hour.

Boxes.—O. R. G., M——, Mich.—The law is specific, that if boxes are needed in a post-office, rent must be charged thereon. If one hundred persons club together and get a set of boxes and place them in a post office the postmaster would be obliged by law to collect rent on them. Sections 92 and 240, laws and chapter XLII., regulations 1866.

Insufficient Prepayment.—J. S. B., L——, Ky.—We hardly understand your question; letters knowingly insufficiently prepaid, may be returned at once to the writers, or the writers may be notified that they are "held for postage," just as the postmaster pleases, but the letters should not be held beyond the week. Section 374, regulations 1866.

Postage on Drop-Papers, Catalogues, etc.—Z. W., C——, Ind.—1. The postage on drop-papers, catalogues, etc., is two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof. 2. Apply to the Superintendent of Money Order System, Washington, D. C., for information concerning the establishment of money order offices.

Regular Papers to Canada, etc.—S. S. M., M——, Mich.—1. Regular papers to Canada are chargeable with regular quarterly rates, to be paid at the mailing office; this pays only to the line. 2. Notices delivered from a post-office are chargeable with postage. 3. Only letters can be forwarded free. 4. See above.

Pennies.—E. S. S., W——, Mich.—Four cents is the legal tender for pennies, or rather cents. We are under the impression that some provision has lately been made by which holders can get rid of surplus cents. The director of the Mint, Philadelphia, Pa., can give you information. Write to him, enclosing stamp to prepay a reply.

County Line.—M. L. B, G—— S——, O.—The county where a person has his home is the county of his residence, and not the county in which his place of business is situated. In cases where the county line runs between the two, papers published in the county of residence should be delivered free of postage, while those published in the county of business are chargeable with postage.

Letter Paper.—C. F. C., P——, O.—Letter paper containing a communication pricked in the paper is as much subject to letter postage as though the communication were written. We would like to see the person who would take the time and the trouble to prick information in a sheet of paper, rather than write it, to save one cent, the difference in postage on a blank and a written sheet.

Registration.—S. L. G., E——, Pa.—We have repeatedly stated that the postmasters at New York and other large cities use stamps on registry envelopes, because they have not time to frank all the envelopes required..... J. W. W., S——, Montana.—Where a registered letter is unaccompanied by the proper bills, the postmaster receiving it should make such entry of it as he best can, and make with the entry a memorandum that will explain the case.

Mutilated Currency.—F. R. L., P——, Pa., and many others.—The ruling of a stupid, not to use a harsher term, judge in North Carolina, that a postmaster must take all mutilated currency tendered to him, has had an extensive run through the press, and elicited much inquiry. We said last month and we say now that a postmaster is not required to take fractional currency of which more than one-tenth is missing and which is not clearly genuine, United States Judges to the contrary, notwithstanding. The idea that postmasters are obliged to take all sorts of torn and mutilated treasury issues to uphold the credit of the Government, is about as incid and sensible as the idea once attempted to be foisted on the community by a United States Judge, that the color of a man's skin affected his rights.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate set out in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada and to be mailed to a United States Exchange office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Montreal or Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rettimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Lisbuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokobama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Until January 1, 1870, letters could be registered, on payment of certain special postage rates, to France, Algeria, Corsica, Bourbon, Nice and Savoy; also to Alexandretta, and Tangiers. This, however, cannot be done at present. The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to aq accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, for four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mention'd in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all bandbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)	30	"
For Tri-Weekly, " "	15	"
For Semi-Weekly, " "	10	"
For Weekly, " "	5	"

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6	cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12	"
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18	"
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3	"
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6	"
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9	"
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1	"
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2	"
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3	"

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office a the rates of transient printing matter.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss, Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, and Belgian Mails.

Philadelphia and Chicago are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Baltimore and San Francisco offices of Exchange for British Mails only.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI. NO. 8. NEW YORK, MAY, 1871. WHOLE NO. 128.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POKN LILY, April, 1871.

I brought my last epistle to an abrupt conclusion, because I thought it was quite long enough. I had intended to say a good deal more about the carnival, but it's an old story now, so I'll forbear.

Between you and me, J. M. was sadly disappointed after all the preparations she made for displaying her wardrobe, and when I returned to our chamber after my interview with Durdledot and Woolfur, I found her a good deal out of temper, as thus:

"Well, sir, you have returned; I hope you did not hurry yourself!"

"Why, my dear," I replied, "I hope you are not angry; you know one has to be courteous and polite to everybody here; its a time-honored custom, and dates back a long way. Now don't be cross, and I will not leave you again for any one; and this evening we'll go to the theatre, where, as Durdledot informed me, one of the most exciting moral dramas of the day is being performed, and that may compensate us for being cooped up here so close to the clouds all day."

"Why, Mr. Tonson, you don't mean to say you are going to the theatre and want me to go with you? Oh, dear, dear, can it be possible that you would suggest such a thing to me—me that never dared to enter into such sinful places (whatever you may have done during the years we were separated). Oh, fie on you to propose such a thing; I am really vexed with you," and here followed a shower of tears.

"Now don't take on so, my dear dame," said I; "it ain't like the theatres in New York and Philadelphia and other Northern cities, where they have all kinds of people on the stage in all kinds of plays; what they are playing here is called a moral drama, which is, no doubt, patronized by the clergy. Durdledot is going; and Durdledot, you know, is the leading member of his church in Muggywasco, and I am very sure he would not visit such a place if it were objectionable in any way."

To be brief, I finally overcame all objections, and when the time arrived, we elbowed our way to a street in the rear of the hotel, running parallel with the crowded avenue, and, getting the necessary direction to our destination from an oleaginous colored lady who, with arms akimbo, occupied the larger moiety of the doorway, making it a pretty tight squeeze for us to pass out, we soon found ourselves in the vestibule of a huge building which was all ablaze with gaslights of every color under the sun, and before we had time to recover from the effect of this sudden dive into the dazzling brilliancy, I had purchased tickets, and we were passed through a green baize door, down a gloomy avenue and then ushered into a vast amphitheatre more gloomy than the gloomy avenue we had just passed through, and smelling, as J. M. described it, just like "burnt rags." There were very few persons present, as we had come a little early, no doubt, but it was evidently all the better, for we supposed we had a choice of seats, but no sooner had we located than a young fellow with his hair parted in the middle and a sunflower in the lapel of his coat, stepped forward and said, "Those seats are reserved," and he kept that cry up until we had tried twenty or thirty places, when he was kind enough to show us to a couple of chairs in the back row of the family circle. However, we were glad to get anywhere after beating about as we had, and after the usual coughing and nose-blowing that invariably follows when any one takes a seat in a public assemblage, we made ourselves as comfortable as possible, and patiently waited for what was to come. J. M. asked me what the name of the drama was, and I told her, as near as I could remember, that it was called the "Book Rack." Presently people began to flock in, and we were so engrossed with watching them and hoping to see the faces of some friends, that we both felt almost as if we were in our own church, when suddenly, slam bang, a band of music struck up away in front, and the inside of the building grew brighter than sunlight. This almost overwhelmed J. M., but I was rather used to such things, for I had been to a theatre once in Shottledock and, of course, the novelty was worn off. The sweet, plaintive music which followed the opening crash almost brought the tears to her eyes, and she whispered in my ear, "What heavenly strains!" when just then up went the curtain, and pretty soon a sight met our eyes which is beyond my pen-power to describe. Suffice it to say that during the play J. M. commanded me, in the most peremptory manner, to take off my spectacles, and keep 'em off," and at the end of the second act she rose and said, "Let us get out of this," and suiting the action to the word she started and I had to follow. I was very much mortified, but there was no help for it, and we left the place and walked almost back to our hotel before a word was spoken. "And that's Mr. Durdledot's moral drama, is it?" That's all she said; but there was a good deal in the way she said it, and I had no reply to make. Just then we passed a large placard, and I saw that the play was "The Black Creek" instead of "The Book Rack," but I did not think it advisable to call her attention to the slight difference. There was nothing so very bad about the piece; but J. M. is very fastidious—perhaps a little too much so. Early next morning we seated ourselves in a railway coach and turned our faces homeward, entirely disgusted with our excursion. Only once I ventured to remind the madam that I had forewarned her how it would be, which she frankly admitted, but put a sting in it by adding that I knew everything—quite a "moral drama." On our way home we stopped over at Deapeo, at the urgent solicitation of an old and cherished friend named Reddove, the postmaster of the place, and, to my mind, the very beau ideal of an efficient official. It took but a little while to wear off the restraint of new acquaintanceship among the women folks, and, while they were passing their time pleasantly my friend and myself devoted a portion of the spare hours to a social talk upon national matters in general, and post-office matters in particular. It was really a pleasure to go through his office and see how it was conducted. He employs an assistant and four clerks, and all have their specific duties to perform, and they perform them. System exists everywhere, and the establishment moves like a well regulated clock. Every book and blank required to be kept is to be found in his office. Knowing that letters are lost and that delays in the transmission of correspondence occur, his employes understand that they must give a respectful hearing to every one, high or humble, who makes inquiries in regard to missing letters, and that a record of the facts must be made in a "complaint book," which he knows it is his duty to provide for the purpose, and from which copies must be sent promptly to the proper bureau at Washington for record, and reference to officials specially appointed to investigate irregularities and improprieties in the mail service. In the registration of letters extreme care is taken in the stamping, numbering and billing, and every package envelope is subjected to a critical examination before it is deposited in the bag, to see that it is properly and securely sealed; not a single registered letter has ever failed to reach its destination safely and promptly. In paying money orders, due and proper caution is exercised in interrogating the applicants and in scrutinizing their manner and appearance, with a view to detect fraudulent holders of such orders, or to be able to identify them should they succeed in securing the improper payment thereof. This office has paid a large number of money orders, but not one to the wrong person. Every letter that is deposited in the office is carefully examined to see that it is clearly postmarked and the stamp unmistakably canceled before it is mailed. Every advertised letter is expunged from the list when it is delivered, leaving no room for doubt afterward, and all letters held for postage, illegibly addressed or without an address at all, and all advertised, uncalled-for letters are dispatched to the Dead-letter Office, according to the regulations, with the most unexceptionable promptitude. Every letter arriving is carefully inspected to see that this office is its proper destination, and, if not, it is sent to its legitimate locality immediately. The postmaster does not permit his clerks to assume that the writer may have made a mistake, that the letter belongs to some one of a similar name within his delivery, but the letter is sent to the office designated on the superscription; and, if the writer has made a mistake, when he comes to acknowledge of the fact he will be more careful in the future. Circulars and newspapers are treated as respectfully as letters; and business men and newspaper publishers have no reason to complain of carelessness or negligence in regard to such mail matter. Boxes are not rented to "frauds" and "bents," and these ghouls are effectually discouraged from mailing their cart-loads of stuff, although it would increase the revenue of the office and the compensation of the postmaster. He never allows his stock of postage stamps and stamped envelopes to run out, but always keeps on hand a supply equal to any demand that may be made on him. Every one in the office is familiar with the requirements of the postal laws and regulations, and knows just where to point if a question arises. A great many officials never think of looking at the book, and, if they did, they would probably be unable to find it, buried away, as it is, under years of accumulated dust and dirty papers. The official books and records are promptly written up to current dates, so that a glance at them at any time shows how matters stand, and business intercourse with the Department is unc evintingly regular and always solemn and comprehensive, and consequently mutually satisfactory. In fact, the Deapeo office is so perfectly systematic and so nicely regulated, that it works together in all its branches like a masterpiece of skillfully adjusted machinery. We spent three or four days at Deapeo, and I was in the post-office a number of times, but I never saw any one, except those legitimately attached thereto, touching or meddling with letters or papers. Stage-drivers and mail messengers were regarded as such, and were not permitted to exercise the functions of postmaster or clerk; and if the butcher or baker or candlestick-maker had any business to transact, they did it at the proper time and at the proper place, and when it was done they went about their business. It is very different with some places that I have accidentally visited, and if I had you with me sometimes when I am feeding my curiosity by sly peeps into post-offices, I could show you queer collections of inside loungers and setters occupying the sanctum sanctorum, tumbling and thumbling letters and papers about to a degree which would puzzle you to tell whether there was a raffle, a vendue or a caucus to nominate a postmaster being held.

Ask the postmaster who these people are, and he will tell you they are leading citizens of the locality, men of influence and responsibility, and it would never do to prohibit them from coming into his office. Ask these same favored individuals what kind of a postmaster they have, and they will tell you "he is a poor excuse, and not fit to be there, because he lets anybody run in and out of his office at will, and they could carry off everything in it without his being the wiser: the office is unsafe, and miserably conducted, and we are trying to get a new man who will keep his doors closed, and deliver letters and papers to their proper owners before they have been thumbed and smeared by a lot of bummers who are privileged to lie round when the mails are opened and distributed."

This looks a little like ingratitude; but I have no hesitation in giving it as my candid and unqualified opinion that those who are granted the greatest liberties about post-offices are the first to ridicule the donors, and always foremost in any movement that has for its object the displacement of those who lacked the nerve to do their duty without fear or favor.

MONS. TONSON.

CORRESPONDENCE.

POST-OFFICE AWAY UP IN VERMONT. April, 1871.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

Dear Sir—I think my subscription expires with the April or May number, so I inclose the dollar in payment for the year to come; for the question arose, "How can I do without the MAIL?" and I recollected I had on a former occasion ordered myself booked for life, and then to think of getting along without the gentle hints of "Monsieur Tonson Again" in relation to how not to run a post office—bless his soul, how could I stop the MAIL? Never!

M. Tonson's last effusion brought to mind a remark in a former number of the MAIL, expressing the hope that time would weed out all the careless, reckless and ignorant officials, upon which I have often reflected, and as often come to the conclusion that, under the present system of appointments, as many would be likely to be weeded in as out; and was confirmed in that opinion upon inquiry of our M. C. whether the Department would listen to direct appeals to fitness, capacity or integrity of an applicant in relation to that of the incumbent, otherwise than through the member from the district. The answer implied that the decision of the M. C. would be paramount to any other influence; in other words, if the applicant had "influence enough to load a ship, and papers enough to shingle a meeting-house, he would be certain of the appointment." Now, I am acquainted with a postmaster who has held his commission the last ten years; has given his entire personal attention to the duties of his office; has taken extra pains to post himself in relation to the laws and regulations; takes the MAIL, and has subjected himself to all the objections and complaints mentioned by "Durdleoot" in M. Tonson's article, except that he has not had occasion to refuse the loan of his office for the benefit of any "clnb," and says he is confident the Department is hundreds of dollars in funds more than it would have been had he let his office run itself; and yet an earnest effort was made at the last election to change the M. C. in his district by misappointed office seekers of the "Woolfur" kind, described by M. Tonson; and had they succeeded, lots of influence would have gone forward by "Durdledot's" kind of complainants to secure the removal of this particular official, and probably it would not have required a "shipload" of it to repay their efforts to aid in manipulating a nomination of a plant tool to do work for which he had been specially created, and the Department would probably have removed an efficient officer to make room for one of the "Woolfur" kind, when, by a proper elucidation of facts direct to the Appointment Office, two shiploads of influence would have been of no avail, as facts would demonstrate that the incumbent was just the man they wanted. Bless your genial soul, friend Tonson! this method won't weed out many.

But I take courage by reading M. Tonson's experience of opinion in the "Wildvinetou" case, and if any effort is made for MY removal, I intend to retain M. Tonson (after securing the good-will of J. M.), state my case fully, and insist on a trial upon the merits.

"Bully for you," M. Tonson! long may you wave!

FAIR PLAY.

P. O., R——, IND., April, 1871.

ED. U. S. MAIL:

I think all postmasters are agreed that prepayment of newspaper postage, if practicable, would be of great advantage to the postal service. I wish to propose a plan of prepayment which I think has not yet appeared in the columns of the MAIL, and which, in my opinion, will meet the objections urged against the various schemes heretofore proposed.

Let us have established a uniform rate of postage on regular printed matter (say one cent for each four-ounce rate). Publishers, known to the post-office as such, will bring their mail to the post-office in a bulk. It will be but a few moments' work to weigh, on large scales, this entire bulk of mail and collect postage at the established rate. No stamps need be used, simply a record kept of the number of pounds of such matter received for mailing and the amount of postage collected.

This would necessitate an addition to the clerical force of very large offices, such as New York, but in the large majority of offices at which such matter is received for mailing the work could be performed by the clerks now employed, and the gain in collections of postage would more than compensate for the additional expense.

"ADVANCE."

Home Letters.

Alas, it is only too easy a dozen times a week, and in every variety of circumstance, to be selfish, unsociable or indolent. It is selfish not to be willing to put ourselves out of the way to help and gratify those who are willing enough to help us, and who, when they write to us, of course expect us to answer them. It is unsocial never to dare to interchange a single idea with relatives, or neighbors, or friends. It is indolence that refuses the expenditure of a little time and trouble to remind distant kinsfolk that we still feel we belong to each other, and that we think it worth while to be at the pains of a letter, though we may have nothing very special to say. The secret of all is to have a kind heart, and to be willing to please. Often the busiest men are those who contrive most opportunities for friendly letter writing. Their paper may be small, their hand-writing large, their words few, and under some circumstances these are legitimate devices, without which they could not continue to write at all; but some men's short letters are worth more than other men's long ones; and those who remember Bishop Villier's short notes will have often felt as if his own magical smile shone out through them, as with the warmth and brightness of summer. Have you a sick sister, whose lonely life has but few bright clouds in it? Now and then make her feel that she is not utterly forgotten by the friend and companion of her happy childhood. Is there an old acquaintance whom you seldom see, but whom you ought not to forget, who knew and loved you when you were both children together, and who still prizes your friendship, though it is of little use to him? Now and then write to him. "Thine own friend, and thy father's friend forsake not." Is there a servant, retired from your service, who has nursed your children, been a kind and true friend to you in sad and dark hours, who is growing old, as yourself some day will grow old, with few changes in a dull life, and few pleasures in a poor one? Occasionally send a message to that dear though humble friend, if not always in your hand, at any rate by your wife or child. It will stir thoughts of slumbering happiness in a kind heart that has loved you with a love as good as rich man's love, and served you with a service that no mere wages could repay. Or have you aged parents, living far away, it may be, in some remote home, whose monotonous and ever shortening life is never so pleasantly broken as by news of you; whose midnight thoughts and noonday musings are ever full of you; who grow young and brave in the thought of your success, and whose constant prayers have much more to do with it than you know of? Never let them feel that you are too busy to think of them, or too important to care for them. Visit them when you can; you will not have them much longer; but regularly make time to write.—Sunday Magazine.

Mutilated Currency.

We continue to receive inquiries concerning the rights and duties of postmasters in taking worn, frayed and mutilated fractional currency, and we have concluded that we cannot more satisfactorily reply to these inquiries than by publishing the circular and instructions issued by the Department:

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT, FINANCE OFFICE.

SIR—In accordance with the rules of the Treasury Department, the Postmaster-General directs you to receive, in payment for postage stamps and stamped envelopes, United States notes, of which not more than one-twentieth is missing, and fractional notes, of which not more than one-tenth is missing, if clearly genuine.

You are not required to receive mutilated notes (by the term mutilated is meant notes not worth their full face value under the subjoined rules), which notes are redeemable by the Treasurer of the United States, and by no other officer. Nor will you receive notes so much soiled or defaced that their genuineness cannot be clearly or satisfactorily ascertained. Notes received by you that are unfit for circulation should be returned to the "Treasurer of the U. S., Washington, D. C.," for redemption. When remitted the notes should be assorted, strapped and labeled, as described in the rules subjoined, and remittances by mail should always be "registered." When the value of a package is $100 or upward, postmasters have the privilege to forward the same by the Adams' Express, and their connections, at the cost of the Treasury Department.

Each Assistant Treasurer or Designated Depositary of the United States, or National Bank designated as a Depository of the United States, will redeem fractional currency, not mutilated, as shown by the annexed rules.

Through such agencies, also, mutilated currency can be transmitted to the Treasury Department. To them all applications should be made, when practicable.

The best method to prepare money for transportation to the Treasury is to make of all the assorted notes one compact package, sealed or neatly tied together, and then to place such a package, with an open and separate letter of advice, in another envelope or wrapper, which is to be sealed and addressed to the "Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C." It is essential that a letter accompany each remittance of currency sent to the Treasury for redemption. Such letter should contain, in plain characters, the name of the owner or person to whom return for the money is to be made, the name of the post-office, county and State, and the amount of the whole remittance. Letters of advice should be written upon paper not less than a half-sheet of commercial note, that they may be filed. All parcels and packages of currency received at the Treasury without a letter of advice will be retained until such letter shall come to hand.

Very respectfully,
W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Asst. P. M. General.

RULES.

FIRST.—Mutilated notes that have been torn, no matter how much, but of which it is evident that all the fragments are returned—or defaced, no matter how badly, but certainly, satisfactorily genuine—will be redeemed at their full face value on presentation.

SIXTH.—Until further orders, mutilated notes and fragments will be redeemed only at the Treasury of the United States at Washington, whither they can be sent, addressed to the "Treasurer of the United States." A draft on the Assistant Treasurer at New York for the amount allowed will be returned by mail to the address of the person remitting the same.

These rules, promulgated on the 18th of May, 1862, for the redemption of mutilated United States notes, are not intended to apply to such notes of which the abrasion or loss of substance from the corners or edges does not exceed one-twentieth of their original proportions. Such are not understood to be mutilated notes within those rules. They are regarded as entire notes, and when of the issue known as Demand Notes, are receivable for custom duties.—(October 9, 1862.)

1. All fractional currency, not mutilated, when presented for redemption to an Assistant Treasurer or Designated Depositary of the United States, or a National Bank designated as a Depositary of the United States, must have been assorted by the holder, according to denominations, with the faces and upper sides in corresponding order in the packages.

2. When presented in sufficient numbers, each package must contain one hundred pieces; it must be securely pinned, with a paper strap at least one inch wide, and on the strap must be written, in ink, the number of pieces, denomination, date of deposit, and the name of the owner.

3. The entire deposit must be securely done up in one package, and upon the wrapper, indorsed with ink, the date of the deposit, the amount contained, and the name and residence of the owner.

4. No less sum than three dollars will be redeemed, and packages will be paid for in lawful money of the United States, in the order, as to time, in which they shall have been received, as soon as the currency can be counted and passed upon.

5. All Government officers will receive for public dues all United States notes of the several kinds, and on account for which they are respectively receivable, as per Treasury Circular of October 9, 1862, in explanation of the rules promulgated May 18, 1862, no matter how badly defaced or torn they may be, so long as their genuineness can be clearly ascertained, and so that it is certain that not one-twentieth part thereof is missing. But all such notes as are unfit for re-issue, so received, should be kept separate and distinct, and, as occasion may require, be returned to the Treasurer of the United States, to be retired from circulation. Fractional currency, from which not one-tenth part is missing, will be received in the same manner.

Probably few schools are superior for the study of the effect of mind on muscle than to attend to a post-office general delivery window.

Expressions of fear, anxiety, joy and other emotions of the mind are often exhibited, according to the supposed contents of the letters received. Sometimes a smile o'erspreads the countenance, and a hearty "Thank you" escapes from the lips; while to the frequent "No sir," or "No ma'am," the face changes its color, a fire kindles in the eye, and the responses "Very strange," "Something wrong," "I expected something to-day," or "There must be a letter for me to-day, look again," and many other tokens of disappointment, and very often epithets more expressive than polite are used to the attendant, insinuating that postmasters are not infallible, negligent in the performance of their duties, unnecessarily delaying the mailing and delivery of letters, or, through carelessness, delivering to wrong individuals. While postmasters cannot claim entire exemptions from some of these charges the causes of long delay and anxiety can be traced generally to the writers, who either neglect to address properly, or omit giving their names and addresses to their correspondents.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, MAY, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 128 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21, 1871.

SIR—I inclose herewith a notice respecting correspondence for Alsace and German Lorraine, with request to publish the same in the next number of the UNITED STATES MAIL.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, Esq.,
Editor U. S. "Mail," New York.

NOTICE.

Mails for Alsace and German Lorraine.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21, 1871.

The Provinces of Alsace and German Lorraine, formerly a part of France, having been ceded to Germany, and being now in possession of the latter Power, the postal system in those Provinces is under the direction and management of the General Post Department at Berlin.

Correspondence for Alsace (Department of Upper and Lower Rhine) and for German Lorraine (Arrondissement of Metz, Saargemund, Thionville Chateau, Salins and Saarburg), should therefore be dispatched in the mails to Germany, subject to the same postage rates, conditions of payment, etc., as those applicable to similar correspondence addressed to other parts of Germany.

Postmasters will take notice of this change, and levy postage accordingly.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14, 1871.

SIR—I have to request that you will please publish in the next issue of your paper the following notice for the information of persons mailing letters to Russia for transmission in the mails to Germany:

HOW LETTERS TO RUSSIA SHOULD BE ADDRESSED.

The General Post-office at Berlin has called attention to the circumstance that letters are frequently received in the mails from the United States to Germany, for dispatch to Russia, on which the place of destination is expressed in Russian characters and the locality not clearly indicated; and a request is made that the public in the United States be informed that when on letters for Russia the place of destination is expressed in Russian characters it is recommended that the sender add the same in German, French or English, as the Russian characters are not sufficiently known in the German post-offices. And it is further requested that on letters addressed to the smaller towns or places in Russia the situation of the place of destination be distinctly and fully designated on the address.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER Esq.,
Editor "U. S. Mail," New York.

The Contract Office.

During the month of April, this important branch of the Department has fully sustained its hard-earned reputation. The spring lettings for mail transportation closed on the 30th of March. Since that date all the contracts—two copies for each route—have been transmitted to the postmasters for execution by the accepted bidders on 600 miscellaneous routes, about 100 in Florida and 175 in West Virginia. Six hundred contracts for routes in Virginia, 210 in North Carolina, 100 in South Carolina, and 123 in Georgia, are now drawn and duplicated, and will follow within a few days.

This promptitude gives assurance that all the contracts of the entire letting will be executed, returned, examined, accepted and reported to the auditor before the 1st day of May, when the service will be put in operation.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Our first letter is accompanied by several blanks, for reports by State officials, such as election returns, school reports, etc.; and the inquiry is made, whether the filling these in, in manuscript, subjects them to letter postage. We answer that it does. State, county or town reports and papers have the same standing as though they were personal, and are liable to postage or to the franking privilege the same as ordinary business matters, and this whether they are sent by State officers to other State officers or to private persons, or the reverse. These remarks apply also to the blanks that may be sent to officers for the purpose of being filled in, that is, they are subject to just such postage as they would be were they private matter. By State officers we mean all persons holding office under State laws. So, also, all communications to the Editor or the Publisher of the MAIL are subject to postage, for there can be no "Official Business," in the meaning of the law, with either of them..... Our next contains an inquiry whether "The Internal Revenue Record" is subject to postage? Is reply, we say, that by a special provision of law, assessors are allowed to receive it free. Our next is on sundry post-office matters, for it embraces quarterly postage, and states the difficulty of collecting it; the suggestion, frequently before made, that publishers should prepay the postage on their papers, and touches quite largely upon the box question wherein our correspondent evidently misapprehends the question, for she (it is a female postmaster—not postmistress, there are no postmistresses—who writes) says she owns the boxes, and that the Department charges her rent for them, while she allows the use of them free because she cannot collect the rent. The Department charges no rent except on the boxes rented, and a postmaster who cannot collect rent for boxes had better give them up at once; or if she or he has the mind to pay the rent and give the public the use free of the boxes, the Department certainly is not to blame..... We take up next another letter on the "box" question, to which our preceding remarks apply. Fix the rent at your respective boxes; if a person will pay that rent assign him a box. If he will not, do not. If, after having occupied a box for a quarter or more, he refuses to pay for renewal, close the box at once. It is not necessary to have over a couple dozen words about the matter, and not one of those should be harsh or irritating. Simply say, "The law requires that no box shall be assigned unless rent is paid in advance, and I have no discretion in the matter." .....And now comes a surly question from one who does well to sign only his initials (we here depart from our rule of not noticing anonymous communications), it is whether a postmaster is obliged to look in a glass box at the request of one of the children of the holder. For reply we refer the inquirer to his own good nature and spirit of accommodation; suggesting—suppose the child were sent by the parent and could not distinctly see into the box.... Who was it that stopped a copy of last month's MAIL some ten or twelve days, and then wrapped it in white note paper, without bill or subscription number and forwarded it to the subscriber? As the paper is reported to have had the appearance of having seen service, it may be of additional service to know that a penalty attaches to the detention of mail matter by post-officials.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

County Papers.—J. S. B., E—— V——, Me.—We have repeatedly stated that it is only weekly county papers that can be delivered free. (Sec. 155, Reg. 1866.)

Newsdealers.—H. S. W., C——, Wis.—1. Newsdealers cannot return packages of papers to the publishers on the same terms as they receive them, but postage must be paid at transient rates. 2. Newsdealers' packages sent in accordance with section 254, laws of 1866, are not restricted, to four pounds in weight.

Liability of Subscribers. M. M. D——, Wis.—A subscriber who takes a paper from the office after the term for which he has paid has expired, is undoubtedly liable for the price of the paper. But this is not a question of postal law, and postmasters have no authority or duty in enforcing payment of subscriptions. Their duty with regular newspapers is to collect postage, and if a paper is not taken from the office, to notify the publisher. (Sec. 391 and 392, Reg. 1866.)

Postage on Daily Paper.—J. H. B., L——, Pa.—The postage on a daily paper for four months would be the regular rate for one quarter, and one-third of a quarter—that is, forty-seven cents; on a paper published six times a week, it would be forty cents, not, however, ten cents a month; because not less than one quarter's postage should be collected. (Sec. 154, Reg. 1866.)....M. H. McC——, Pa.—The preceding answers your question; not less than one quarter's postage should be collected; if the person is not willing to pay one quarter's postage, he should be required to pay at transient rates.

Folding Newspapers.—C. N. N. J——, Cal.—It is the duty of publishers to fold their newspapers. "Newspapers should be sufficiently tied and closed in proper wrappers." (Sec. 214, Laws 1866.)

Marking Stamps.—S. M. A., G——, N. Y.—We are unable to say exactly what marking stamps you would be allowed. Write to the Appointment Office, Washington, D. C.

Payment of Contractors.—E. W. L., C——, Pa.—It is a question whether a contractor has a right to refuse fractional currency. As such currency is a legal tender only to the amount of five dollars, it would seem that contractors have a right to refuse all over that amount. But on the other hand, as postmasters are "prohibited from using, leaving, investing, depositing in bank or exchanging moneys received for postages" (Sec 281, Reg.), it would seem that the contractor must necessarily take such money as the postmaster himself has received. We do not know that the question has ever been officially decided. .....L. J. S., S—— W——, Conn.—1. See preceding. 2. The mail-messenger should start with the mails immediately on receiving them from the route agent.

Railroad Brakeman Carrying Letters.—J. S. H., B——, N. Y.—A railroad brakeman has no right to carry letters out of the mail, unless they are in stamped envelopes furnished by the Department. (Sec. 45, Reg 1866.)

Wrapping Letters.—A. E. M., B——, O.—Postmasters are required to wrap letters, unless their offices are supplied wholly or in part by railway post-offices—in which case they will be governed by instructions from the Superintendent of the Railway Postal Service. (Sec. 88, Reg. 1866.)

Forwarding Letters.—M. B., W—— P——, N. Y.—A letter cannot be forwarded free, after having been delivered to a person authorized to receive it.

Delivery of Pension Papers.—L. W., T——, O.—1. Pension papers should be delivered according to the addresses; if to the care of an attorney, they may be delivered to him. We consider the order restricting the delivery of such papers applies to such as are claimed by attorneys, by virtue of a power of attorney, and not by being addressed to their care. 2. You have a right to require a deposit as security for the return of the keys to a lock-box.

Postmaster's Assistant.—A postmaster's wife may be his assistant.

Unpaid Letters Without Post Bill.—A. J. A., W——, Pa.—When a postmaster receives an unpaid letter without a post bill, he should make an entry in his account of Mails Received, with the memorandum "No bill."

Report of Lost Letters.—R. E., N —— M——, Conn.—Reports of lost letters should be made to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

Boxes.—E. C. W., M—— S——, Iowa.—It is an invariable, inflexible, statutory requirement that rent must be paid for Post-office boxes, Section 240 Law, and Chapter XIII. Reg., 1866. There is no provision made for persons clubbing together to have boxes made, and then have the use of them without paying rent; and where this has been done the owners have the privilege of taking away the boxes, if they are unwilling to pay rent.

Account Book for Newspaper Postage.—C. H. S., R——, Iowa, and J. F. P., L——, Mo.—Any of the account books advertised in the MAIL within the past year are good. We have examined them all and can recommend them.

Delivery of Mail Matter.—J. M. W., S——, MISS.—A Postmaster cannot deliver letters not directed to his office, unless it is the office nearest a discontinued office. (Sec. 63, Reg. 1866.)

Letter Without Address.—H. C. H., P——, Fla.—A letter without address is unmailable, and should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. (Sec. 360, Reg., 1866.) In no case may a postmaster open a letter not addressed to himself. (Sec. 76.)

Mail Carrier Delivering Mails at the Post-office.—J. W. G., S—— B—— V——, Cal.—A mail carrier should deliver the mail on schedule time. If he does this he may drive anywhere about town he pleases before such delivery. If he does not deliver it on schedule time report the delinquency to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General. Study Chapter XII. of Regulations.

Registration.—G. R., C—— L——, Me.—Letters to the Treasurer of the United States, containing money for redemption, or any other official business, may be sent free of postage, but, if registered, the usual registration fee of 15 cents is required.

Postage.—E. T. G., T——, Conn.—Small temperance papers, as well as small agricultural, educational and religious papers, are entitled to the privileges of Section 202, Regulation of 1866. Did you not see the word "temperance" in the section as well as religious, educational and agricultural..... S. H. B., W——, R. I.—Postage on seeds to Australia, via San Francisco, is at latter rates.

On our first page will be found the Circular and Instructions of the Department respecting fractional currency. The subject has lately become of such importance that we will be excused this second reference to it in our present number.

Stick, wall and securely, registered package envelopes containing registered letters, and after they have had a chance to dry examine them to see if you did stick them well.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything thet is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must thers he any letter, nor eny communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or npon its cover, cannot he received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine hookpackets, petterns, samples, or other postal peckets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Petterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic velne; which rule excindes from the mails ell articles of a saleable netnre, or whatever may heve a merket value of its own epart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any meterial sent ostensibly as a pattern or semple is so great that it could fairly be cousidered as having on this grounn an intrinsic valne.

No packet of petterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 luches in breadth or depth, or 24 onnces in weigbt. Patterns or semples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 onnces cannot he sent hy mail to the North German Union.

Petterns or samples must not hear any writing other then the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, e trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must he no enclosures other than the petterns or samples themselves. The particulers allowed to he furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the petterns or semples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or semples must he sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot he sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the malls.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodicel, or article of printed matter, may contain eny word or communication, whether hy writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspepers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed dete when snbscription expires. DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all corresponden e wholly or partly in writing, except that mention d in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclnsively in p int, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition hy writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, hooks, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and semple cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, pa er plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent hy meil are limite to a weight of four ponnds, except books published or circnlated by order of Congress Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent hy mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half onnce or fraction thersof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half onnce or fraction of a half onnce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must he prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, end others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid hy stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of goverument, or heads of hureens therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall he received and conveyed hy mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolntion of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjntants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit throngh the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded hy the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, nnder snch regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilego or en official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, mey he forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail metter to those possessing the privilege as en official trust esn only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 nomes the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Edncation possesses the official privilege; and ell copyright books, maps, etc., mey be forwarded to the Lihrarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right metter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters ere required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenne officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors mey only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Depnty Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of Mareh 1, 1869, releting to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to he charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to he charged with letter postage hy weight.

POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 9. NEW YORK, JUNE, 1871. WHOLE NO. 129.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, May, 1871.

The month of May was ushered in by a rainy day, and this rainy day was followed by nine reinier days, making in all ten of the rainiest days within my experience. There is no way now of telling how much water fell, as we had nothing to measure it with, and it is probably of no consequence any way to your readers, but there was enough to swell two or three heretofore timid, bashful, and scarce observed little rills, into great brawling, blustering, dirty-faced rivers, and these scoundrelly young beginners, instead of running away, and burying themselves in greater streams, whose proportions they were successfully, but temporarily usurping, laid their bloated heads together to cut us off from the outside world, and they succeeded in making an island of our lawn and garden grounds, in the centre of which our antiquated mansion, with its six gables, stood with its strong, broad breast, bravely bared to the elements, and from whence we could gaze out and watch the gradual encroachment of the watery ring. The prolonged, pelting rain played havoc with the flower and kitchen departments of our garden. Tulips, geraniums, fuschias, petunias, violets, and a hundred other fancy varieties of flowers were washed out and mixed up with peas, lettuce, asparagus, cabbage-plants, young onions, and other early vegetables, and everything had to be planted again; so after the storm we went to work. I dug and hoed and J. M. sowed, and damages were soon repaired.

During the moistness our domestic animals sought shelter on the island, and huddled round the house, and appeared to have lost their vim, while the poor fowls, with soaked plumage and drooping tails, clustered together in the sheds and under the trees, apparently in the last stage of exhaustion. At the supposed encroachments of these poor creatures our two dogs (a Newfoundland and a Scotch terrier) had barked themselves hoarse, and they really made the nights hideous with their ceaseless vocal demonstrations, in which they were intermittently joined by a donkey, which formed a portion of the live stock employed in cultivating the farm. As a brayist this long-eared, meek-looking quadruped was always a success; but his basso profundo "for this occasion only," coejoined with the tenor and treble of his canine assistants, made the serenades of the trio, monster concerts indeed, during the period of our insolation. I bore with the dogs patiently, but the male music was more than I could submit quietly to, and in a moment of excitement I exclaimed, "Drat that cursed jackass;" but J. M. took me to task at once so vigorously for "swearing" that for the balance of the time I held my peace and suffered in silence. In due course, however, the rains ceased and the floods subsided, and, under the influences of the bright sun, vegetation opened her wardrobe, and the earth and the trees and the flowers, as if by magic, were soon clad in their robes of green grass, green leaves, and many-hued blossoms and petals; and at this present writing, I don't believe there is a more inviting spot on the footstool. And, by the way, I might as well tell you a little something about "Pond Lily." It is neither a city, town, village or hamlet, but simply an old-fashioned country seat of baronial dimensions. By referring to Dumbwater's colonial history I find that the present mansion was erected and the grounds laid out in the year 1771, by Sir Robert Shafto, Marquis of Pond Lily, a son of the then Lord Lieutenant of the Shetland Islands, and heir apparent through his mother to the throne of Old King Cole, as she was the only daughter, and only living relative of that festive and fun-loving veteran monarch. From the records it would appear that the Marquis lived in lavender in this new-world paradise for five or six years, when an unpleasantness occurred between an English George and an American George. The Marquis had a profound regard for the English George, and was very demonstrative in showing it: but as the American George was more than a match for his English namesake, and his friends to boot—they all fled to "where the woodbine twineth," leaving their various estates, Pond Lily among the rest, which were subsequently confiscated, behind them. The chronicler Dumbwater goes on to say that the sudden departure of Sir Robert was followed by sad results to a young lady, the daughter of a lager-beer brewer, to whom he was betrothed. The blow was too much and too sudden, her reason fled—she became a subdued maniac, and "forever afterwards" she was to be found daily throughout the year, seated on an inverted wash-tub, gazing vacantly across the sullen waters of the Hackensack, and chanting ceaselessly, in tremulous tones,

"Bobby Shafto's gone to sea, with silver buckles on
... his knee,
When he comes back he'll marry me. Pretty Bobby

Whether he ever did return, or whether the Teuton Ophelia, in the flesh or in the spirit, still sits and pensively sings upon the classic shores of the Hackensack, I am unable to say, as our author Dumbwater is silent in this regard. However, Pond Lily remains, and it wears its weight of years nobly and dignifiedly. The old house shows no indication of wear or tear internally or externally. The venerable oaks and elms rejoice in foliage so luxuriant, as to warrant the belief that their vigor is unimpaired, the trout ponds are in excellent condition, and all alive with the descendants of the first settlers; the sun dial bearing date July 10, 1771, has not varied a hair from its original position, and is as reliable after a hundred years are gone, as the sun. The hedge, the old well, the sprig-house over a wide-awake brook, and numerous other landmarks, have suffered no change or decay—and all over, everywhere, from the centre to the circumference of the estate, Time hath gently mellowed everything—destroyed nothing. The property now belongs to a distant relative of J. M.'s, and we are here taking care of the establishment, while he is enjoying a tour abroad. The last we heard of him, was that he was in Paris, where he was, he said, determined to remain until the "statu quo" was restored, whatever he meant by that. J. M. feels very uneasy about him, especially as it is uncertain whether he made a will or not, and his warm friendship for her lately, and his dislike to his other relatives, certainly indicated a preference. Of course there is nothing necessary in her solicitude for our second cousin—it is perfectly natural under the circumstances. I do think he made a will before he left; but I don't think he has been foolish enough to get in the way of a Red Republican bayonet, or a petroleum shell—Nous Verrons.

The only inconvenience we have to suffer here is the distance we have to travel to the post-office at OBTUSE ANGLE, three miles away. The Scalskin and Gum Elastic railway runs within about a half mile of our house, and I tried to get the route agent to pick out our letters and papers and throw them off at a designated spot, but he positively declined to do it. He said my mail matter was addressed to Obtuse Angle, and would have to go there. I told him I knew some mail agents elsewhere that did such things. He said that if they did so it was contrary to the rules of the Department, and they could be dismissed for it if they were known. I told him I would get the consent of the postmaster at Obtuse Angle. He replied that the postmaster had no authority in the premises—he could not direct him to deliver letters before they had reached their destination, any more than he himself could deliver letters addressed to other offices, without a violation of law. He referred me to authorities on the subject, and I found he was right; and yet the thing is done. I found this route agent to be a very intelligent gentleman, and entirely familiar with the requirements of the service, and conscientiously inclined to conform to them unqualifiedly. Incidentally he mentioned that he knew a number of officials who openly boasted that they could make more by trafficking and trading along their routes, and driving a surreptitious express business, than they received for compensation from the department. Of course to do this they would be necessarily obliged to neglect their legitimate work, or do it so hurriedly as to involve numberless mistakes and delays incident to a careless distribution. His idea was that if a man wants to barter in butter and eggs, cheese, chickens, cherries and huckleberries, maple sugar, green corn and grapes, and other rural productions, he has an undeniable right to do so, but he thinks a mail car should not be converted into a freight car, and that a mail agent who is in the produce business up to the eyes, is a very improper person to fill an official position which requires his strict attention, great caution, and unlimited energy.

The post office at the "Angle" is susceptible of great improvement. From the looks of the place any one would be justifiable in forming the opinion that if cleanliness is godliness, the letter attribute thrives badly thereabouts. The head of the institution is the proprietor of a lime kiln, which occupies his entire time, and the office is conducted by a deputy or assistant who is always to be found there, when he is no where else, which is seldom. A son of the postmaster, however, is in attendance all the time, and shows a disposition to be accommodating, but he is ambitious to become a musician, and as I have been credibly informed, there is scarcely "an hour of the day or dreaming night" that he is not vigorously engaged in endeavoring to blow sweet strains through a French horn, which has so discolored his face and distorted his upper lip that his countenance presents a hideous appearance to strangers, who look upon him as the victim of some terrible chronic disease. The first time J. M. saw him she kindly inquired if he had been stung by a bee? The only reply she received was a fearful blast from his horn, which sent her out of the place on a double-quick. Since then "Grawdle's boy" is with her a synonym for everything that is rude or impertinent. He had better keep clear of Pond Lily. But I must do him the justice to say that he is naturally a civil and obliging boy, and, apart from his obliquity on the horn question, a very competent clerk, and could probably run the office better than Mr. Woolcomber, the assistant, if he were placed in authority by his father, but Woolcomber's father is one of Postmaster Grawdle's securities and, of course, that secures him the best place in the office. That, I suppose, however, is the custom almost everywhere.

Recently a letter was returned to me from the Dead-letter Office which I had misdirected. Young Grawdle took it from a pile of soiled letters and handed it to me. I asked him if they were all "dead letters?" He replied, "if they ain't they ort to be, for some of 'em have been here for nearly a year. I told Mr. Woolcomber they ought to be sent to Washington, but he said he'd send 'em when he was ready, and he hain't got ready yet." Why do you not speak to your father about them? I asked. "O," replied he, "Woolcomber's sweet on the old man, and does as he pleases, but the first time a special agent comes along I'll show up the shop, and you bet you'll see the far fly." So my dear Assistant Postmaster, if you have been doing anything to make these "dead letters" rise in judgment against you you will be in a bad fix.

MONS. TONSON.

Bogus "Supplements."

In a recent case tried in Ohio, before Judge Shermae, of the United States District Court, the following decision, which is of great importance to postmasters and newspaper men, was rendered:

This is a motion for a new trial, on which the court is asked to review the evidence on which a verdict was rendered against the defendant at the present term. The defendant, the proprietor and publisher of the Alliance Monitor, a weekly paper published in Stark County, was indicted under the thirteenth section of the Act of Congress of March 3d, 1825 (see Brightly's Digest, p. 218, sec. 85), for enclosing in a newspaper a printed advertisement of the "Opera House Shoe Store," by one O. W. Nash, which he then delivered into the Post-office at Alliance, to be carried by post to Mt. Vernon free of postage. The section of the Act above referred to provides as follows:

"If any person shall enclose or conceal a letter or other thing, or any memorandum in writing in a newspaper, pamphlet or magazine, or in any package of newspapers, pamphlets or magazines, or make any writing or memorandum thereon, which he shall have delivered into any post-office, or to any person for that purpose, in order that the same may be carried by post, free of letter postage, he shall forfeit the sum of five dollars for every such offense," &c.

The facts, as they appear, show that an advertisement or advertising card bill of the shoe store of O. W. Nash, a dealer in Alliance, where the newspaper was published, was enclosed, as charged, in the edition published December last, 1870, and so mailed for distribution to all subscribers who received that paper through the mail, one of them being for a subscriber at Mt. Vernon.

The question raised in this case is of considerable importance to the publishers of papers, and a ruling upon it has been desired by the post-office department, although in the case at the bar it is conceded that the defendant had no intention of violating the law, it having been the custom, to some extent, for publishers of newspapers to send such circulars or advertisements through the mail, supposing it was permissible under the post-office regulation, which provides as follows: "Publishers of newspapers may, without subjecting them to extra postage, fold within their regular issues a supplement. But in all such cases the added matter must be a genuine supplement or appendage to the newspaper in question, and of the same character, conveying intelligence of general interest." Under this regulation it is undoubtedly competent for publishers, as is frequently done in eastern newspapers, and not unfrequently in our home papers when tax-lists or other voluminous advertising matter is to be published, to print and enclose, for distribution by mail or otherwise, regular supplements containing the advertising or other general matter crowded out of the regular or usual columns. But a handbill, circular or poster of the description here in question is not such a supplement, although, as in this case, it may be so called or entitled by the publisher. It is not "a genuine supplement or appendage to the newspaper." It does not meet the common popular understanding of the term "supplement," nor is it of "the same essential character as a newspaper," nor does it convey "intelligence of passing events of general interest." It is more in the nature of a private circular, advertisement or poster, and it may also be remarked that it contains woodcuts of a large style of print, which could not be inserted in a newspaper without great trouble and expense. It is not an advertisement crowded out of the regular issue, but such a one as never would be in a regular issue. It is true that each case of this nature must be judged of by its own peculiar characteristics, but there is a wide distinction between the "genuine supplement" spoken of in the post-office regulation, and as here designed and described, and a handbill advertisement or circular, the distinctive character of which as distinguished from a newspaper supplement, is readily appreciated by the popular understanding, and determines the law of the case.

It does not appear, as I have before remarked, that the defendant in this case purposely violated the post-office acts and regulations, but having done so, although ignorantly, the law requires us to overrule the motion and impose the statutory penalty and the costs.

[For the U. S. Mail.]

Postal Reforms Demanded.

1. Abolition of Franking privilege, so earnestly urged by P. M. Gen. Creswell.

2. Prepayment of Postage at the mailing office on all periodicals, whether daily, weekly, monthly, quarterly, or semi-annual, at one uniform rate by weight, by stamping. Let the publisher put his entire issue into a single paper-bag, or into as many bags or packages as may suit his convenience, and then put the requisite stamps on each package. Safety to the government and expedition to the publisher are what is needed, and if any one has a safer and more expeditious plan let him present it.

3 Simplify letter postage by having only one rate for all letters, whether drop or to be transmitted. Let this rate be either one cent, as advocated by Sumner, or two cents as supported by P. M. Gen. Creswell. This letter, with one-cent postage cards, suits my notion very well.

4. Require that every sender of a letter endorse his address on it that it may be returned to him in case of non-delivery—the return to be without charge, as at present. The penalty for omission to be a fine of 25 cents, to be collected of the sender on the return of his letter to him from the Dead-letter Office.

5. Let there be a fine for deficient postage, to be collected of the receiver of the letter, as there is now on foreign letters. Simply collecting the deficient postage will not abate the nuisance, but a moderate fine—say 5 cents—will be effectual. No injustice is done to the person addressed, who is under no obligation to receive the letter, but may decline it and so escape the fine, if he pleases. In this case let the letter be returned to the writer, and the fine collected of him. I guarantee success.

6. Let the return request system be extended to all printed matter, the same as to letters, with this difference, that return shall not be free, but subject to ordinary postage, to be collected of the person to whom return is made. It is often very important that printed matter should not be lost, and this provision would contribute to its safety.

7. Let it be lawful for the sender of a book or other printed matter to write upon it his own address as well as that of the person to whom sent. The present prohibition is mean, and fails to increase the revenue of the department. Away with it.

8. Let there be no more counting of pieces either for newspapers, circulars or anything else. Let all go by weight.

9. The following postage rates are suggested:

a. Letters—2 cents for each half ounce.

b. Periodicals sent from the house of publication—1 cent for each four ounces.

c. Transient printed matter (including circulars)—1 cent for each two ounces. (Not 2 cents for each four ounces, as now.) This will enable one to send a transient newspaper for one cent instead of two cents, greatly to the accommodation of the people and to the increase of revenue of the P. O. Department.

d. Books and all other mailable matter not specified above—1 cent for each ounce.

Prepayment in all cases by stamps.

10 Let there be a 5-cent money-order rate for sums not exceeding ten dollars. I often send small sums—(under $10)—in currency when I should send a postal money order, if there were a 5-cent rate.

OUTSIDER.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Withdrawing Registered Letters.—J. H. T., M——, Minn.—A registered letter may be withdrawn from a post-office on the same conditions that an ordinary letter may. The conditions will be found in sections 64 and 65 of Regulations of 1866. But in section 64 the words "except the writer thereof," should follow the word "whatever."

Forwarding Mail Matter.—J. B. S., L——, N. J. —— Letters that have not been delivered or passed from the custody of the post-office, may be forwarded free of postage, but miscellaneous matter and regular newspapers can only be forwarded upon pre-payment of a new postage at transient rates.

Hand Presses.—D. W. F., C——, O.—We are not acquainted with any manufacturer of hand presses.

Assistant Postmaster Franking, &c.—F. M. A., G——, N. Y.—1. An assistant postmaster has not the right to frank official correspondence, even in the absence of the postmaster. But if franking should become necessary in such absence, the assistant should frank by writing the postmaster's name, and then his own as assistant; thus—A—— B——, P. M., by C—— D——, Ass't P. M. Sec. 296, Reg. 1866. 2. The franking privilege of a member of Congress expires on the first Monday of the December following the close of his term of office. Sec. 263 A., Laws 1866

Delivery of Letters to Officers.—V. J. W., D——, Iowa.—The right of the officer rather than the individual to receive letters, is not an exception to Section 58, Regulations of 1866, but is in accordance with it. It is a very proper rule, and the only one, in fact, on which public business could be done, for if an ex-officer has the right to receive letters clearly intended for his successor in office, the business of the office would certainly suffer in consequence of the delay in the receipt of official documents, which the ex-officer might carelessly, if not intentionally, withhold for several days. Indeed cases would not be unusual where letters of importance would be forwarded, probably hundreds of miles, and then found to relate to the affairs of an office in which the individual receiving the letter has no interest.

Receipt of a Registered Letter.—G. P. B., W——, Mass.—The office stamp of a business firm impressed on a registered letter receipt is sufficient when the firm make a practice of giving such receipts in their business.

Registration.—R. P., A——, O.—Registered letters endorsed with a request to return, or with the name of the writer, as required by regulation of September 1, 1870, if not delivered to the party addressed, should be returned to mailing office, registered free, that is neither postage nor registry fee is required for the return of such letters to the writer. The postmaster who sent a letter properly endorsed, mailed and registered at your office, to the Dead-letter Office, because no provision was made for a registry fee for its return, committed a great mistake, he should have registered the letter to your office free, and not have sent it to the Dead-letter Office.....G. R., C—— L——, Me.—A package of mutilated currency sent in the Treasurer of the United States, if registered, requires the usual registry fee of fifteen cents.

Oath of Mail Carrier.—G. H. E., C—— N. Y.—A mail carrier employed continuously on a route need not be re-sworn under a new letting, but if his service has been discontinued, and resumed, a new oath would be required.

Regular Papers to Canada.—W. P., N—— F——, N. Y.—Regular papers to Canada, although sent to an exchange office in the county of publication, are chargeable with postage; they are not weekly papers sent to a subscriber residing in the county of publication.

Forwarding Regular Papers.—F. K., W——, Texas.—Newspapers whether regular or transient cannot be forwarded except upon the prepayment of a new postage at transient rates.

Office Rent and Clerk Hire.—F. H., B——, Miss.—As a general rule office rent and clerk hire are not allowed to offices below the second class, but in some cases where offices are designated as separating offices, allowance may be made for these expenses. Application should be made to the First Assistant Postmaster-General. Sec. 32, Laws 1866.

Delivery of Request Letters, &c.—T. C. C., H——, Iowa.—A delivery to a box at a post-office, is a sufficient delivery to the holder of that box. A question may arise, in the case you mention of notices to makers and endorsers of notes, &c., but this cannot enter into postal law. A man must use the ordinary means of business intercourse and take the chance. If not satisfied to do so, he may use any extraordinary means he pleases; for instance, if it is necessary to secure to him the payment of a note that a letter should reach a certain person within ten days, he should take measures to know that the person receives his notice, and not run the risk of the absence of that person from his place of business.

Postage.—E. E. T., M——, Mass.—1. The rate of postage or drop letters, where there is not a "free delivery," was changed from two cents to one cent, by sec. 15, of Act. of March 3d, 1865, being section 261 of Laws of 1866. 2. Postmasters are prohibited from delivering mail matter unless the postage is paid. On regular publications, the postage on which is paid at the delivery office, the quarter's postage should be collected on delivery of the first number of the publication coming in the quarter. It is not proper to send this number to the subscriber, with "Postage due" marked on it. You may, indeed, under section 154 of Regulations, charge yourself with the amount of the postage, but then this makes it a private debt between yourself and the subscriber, and you lose your right to detain the numbers of the publication coming afterward. If you wish to accommodate your neighbors living at a distance, who might be apt to forget when quarterly postage is due, you might send them notice with the last publication of a quarter, that postage would be due on the next number. Among the items of postal education, to which our people should pay attention—is not to go to a post-office without having a little money with them, in most cases 25 or 30 cents would be all that would be needed. Our experience is that postmasters may be ready educators in this item of postal education. A decided but kind refusal to violate the law, and a detection of the paper, has a wonderful effect. We are cognizant of one case where a gentleman was very desirous that a memorandum slip of a postage of five cents on his weekly paper, should be put in his box and he would pay it when he came again, as he had no money about him. But the law was imperative, and the paper was returned to his box, he walked away. Before, however, he reached the door of the post-office he recollected he had five cents with him, and unconsciously revealed that he had quite a number of five cents in his pocket. After that he always had change to pay his postage....A. S. S., L——, O.—Newspapers from Canada are subject to the same postage as domestic papers, with only this difference, that transient domestic papers must be prepaid at the mailing office, while the postage on transient Canada papers, must be paid at the delivery office....H. E. D., T——, O—1. A small paper issued by a business house as an advertising medium, may be sent in a package at the rate of two cents for four ounces, if deliverable to one person. 2. If the papers are deliverable to two or more different parties, postage should be paid on each paper. 3. Manuscript music, surveyor's maps, diplomas, and such like articles filled in with ink are chargeable with letter postage. 4. Letters directed simply to a box, should be delivered.....W. H., J. N——, N. J —Certificates of membership of societies, filled in with writing are chargeable with letter postage. See preceding reply.

SIR—It is reported that the postage charges on printed matter from the United States for the Provinces of Manitoba are frequently left unpaid, and I have, therefore to request that yon will insert a notice in a conspicuous part of your paper calling the attention af postmasters and the public to the circumstance that the United States domestic rates of postage must invariably be collected at the office nf mailing in the United States on all kinds of printed matter for Manitoba; and, also, at the office of delivery ta the United States on all kinds of printed matter from Manitoba, the exchanges af editors accepted, which pass free; and that the levying and collection of such postages should be made in a'l respects the same as upon domestic printed matter.

I am,
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22, 1871.

SIR—Arrangements have just been concluded with the Swiss Office for tha introduction of "return receipts," for registered letters, in the mails exchanged between Switzerland and the United States on and after the 1st of June next.

I. The issuing to, and the transmission from, as well as the return of such receipts to the United States is to take place under the following regulations, viz.:

1. The sender of a registered letter for Switzerland who desires to have it accompanied by a "return receipt" should inscribe and underscore on the face of the letter the words "return receipt requested."

2. Such receipt will be annexed to the letter bearing such request by the dispatching office of exchange, and both transmitted in due course to tha office of destination in Switzerland.

3. The receipt will be signed by the person receiving the letter, or, if the letter cannot be delivered the cause preventing its delivery will be indorsed thereon.

4. In either case the receipt will be immediately returned to the office of origin in the United States for delivery to the sender of the letter which it accompanied.

5. No charge is to be levied or collected in the United States for the issuing or transmission of these receipts to Switzerland, or, for the delivery of the same on their return from Switzerland.

II. With respect to the "return receipts" from Switzerland, the following rules are to be observed:

1. The annexed "return receipts," after being signed by the party to whom the accompanying registered letter is delivered, must be properly dated and forwarded direct to the Postmaster of New York by first mail.

2. Should the registered letter not be delivered, the "return receipt" should ho returned to the same way (to the Postmaster of New York) with the cause of non-delivery of the letter noted thereon; but the letter should be sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington, D. C., in registered mail.

I am, sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

SIR—I have to request that you will please cause the following notice to be published in the next issue of your paper.

I am very respectfully, &c.,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

NOTICE TO PERSONS MAILING LETTERS FOR GERMANY.

The attention of the Post-Office Department has been called to tha circumstance that lottera for Germany are frequently received at the Post-Office in New York, which bear upon them special directions to forward "per Prussian closed mail," are prepaid at the close mail rate of postage, and yet the name of a particular steamer of the Bremen Line, which takes direct mails only to Germany, is also indorsed upon the covers. As the New York office is governed, in dispatching lattors which bear such conflicting directions, by the route of mail communication indicated by the indorsement on the covers and the amount of postage prepaid by the sender, it is important to correspondents to remember that the steamers of the North German Lloyd (Bremen) Line, sailing on Saturdays, do not at present convey any closed mails for the Continent, to be landed in Great Britain.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

In our first letter we find the question, "What amount of business must a post office do to entitle the postmaster to a clerk paid by government?" Clerk-hire, as also rent, lights, fuel, and stationery are allowed only to offices of the first and second classes. As the salary of the office in question is $1,800 it belongs to the third class, and hence is not entitled to an allowance for any of the items named. But in certain cases where an office is designated as a separating office, the Postmaster-General will make an allowance for the necessary cost in whole or in part of clerical services (Sec. 32 Laws 1856); for which application should be made to the First Assistant Postmaster-General. To provide for an increase of salary, somewhat commensurate with increase of postal business, the Postmaster-General is authorized to review and readjust the salary of any office in the third, fourth, or fifth class at any time that the quarterly returns show that the salary is ten per cent. less than it would be on the basis of commissions. (Sec. 8 of Act of June 12th, 1866.) For instruction under this section apply to the First Assistant Postmaster-General..... A letter before us asks if it is not singular that the Postmaster-General should direct postmasters to take mutilated currency, and require them to pay the registration fee in sending it to the Treasurer. First—The Postmaster-General does not direct postmasters to take mutilated currency—let us be distinctly understood, as we have lately undertaken to make the distinction between worn and frayed currency, and mutilated currency, that is made by the Treasury Department; postmasters are required to take worn and frayed currency, but not to take mutilated currency. And what is the difference? Just this; worn and frayed currency is that of which not more than one-tenth is missing; mutilated currency is that of which more than one-tenth is missing. But postmasters are not prohibited from taking mutilated currency, and we would advise them to do so, if the owner and they can agree upon its value, for it costs no more to send it with the worn and frayed, and taking it would no doubt be a convenience to many. But, second—This has no bearing upon the question requiring postmasters to pay the registration fee on their packages of currency to the Treasurer. Doubtless some provision should be made for this expense to be borne by the public treasury, and a movement was made to that effect, a year or two ago, which, however, failed to accomplish anything, probably because, in the words of our correspondent, "it is a small matter," but then, as he continues, "right wrongs nobody," and we hope to see this matter righted..... The question of delivering mail matter to the office, or to the person, is next presented. A similar question has received consideration in our "Answers to Correspondents." The illustration given by our present correspondent, viz., a letter addressed, J. M., U. S Coll. Int. Rev., R——, Va., where J. M. was formerly collector, while A. W. M. is collector now—to whom should the letter be delivered? The Department has decided that the right is in the officer, and hence the letter should be delivered to A. W. M., the collector. It would be a wise and judicious plan where a letter is intended for the person and not the officer, to endorse on it "Personal" We have elsewhere spoken of one item of postal education for the public, another is, to address letters so that there can be no mistaking the parties for whom they are intended.

SPECIAL REQUEST ENVELOPES—NEW REGULATIONS.

Circular to Postmasters.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D.C., MAY 1, 1871.

In the appropriation by Congress for the supply of stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1872, it is provided—"That no envelope, as furnished by the Government, shall contain any lithographing or engraving, and no printing except a printed request to return the letter to the writer;" and in conformity with this provision the "Regulations respecting Special Request Envelopes" have been modified to read as follows, viz.:

1. No order is to be taken on credit except at the Postmaster's own risk, and in no case for less than 500 of any specified denomination bearing the same printing.

Special Request Envelopes must, in all instances, be ordered on the blank form furnished by the Department (No. 514.)

2. Special devices and the address of correspondents will not be printed under any circumstances whatever.

3. The printing of cards and requests across the end has been discontinued. In future they will be printed on the upper left hand corner only.

4. Business avocations or employments will be excluded from cards and requests. The name of the writer only should be given, without any reference to his occupation.

5. Should it be desired to leave in blank the post-office address of the party to whom the envelopes are to be made returnable, it must be so stated.

6. When the name and post office address only are desired, without a request to return, the order must so specify. By law all letters bearing the name and address of the writer on the envelope are required to be returned if not delivered within thirty days.

7. No variations will be made in the style of type, the color of ink or the form of request, adopted by the Department; neither will cards or requests be surrounded by borders of any kind.

8. If possible, a printed card should always accompany the order; if not, the matter desired to be printed must be plainly written, in order that mistakes may be avoided.

9. Envelopes that may be refused on account of a misprint that has occurred through no fault of the Department will, if returned, be treated as spoiled in directing, and only the value of the postage on the same be placed to the credit of the Postmaster by whom they were ordered.

10. Envelopes of the first quality, except the note and extra official sizes, will be furnished of either white or amber color, as may be preferred.

In the absence of any instructions to the contrary they will be supplied in equal proportions of white and amber.

Envelopes of the second quality, except the note size, will be of cream color only; and of the third quality, amber only.

Of the note size, the first quality will be white only; and the second, amber only.

The extra official size will be of white or cream, as may be preferred.

11. No envelopes will be ruled or black-lined unless specially ordered.

12. Cards or requests will not be printed on newspaper wrappers, or on envelopes for covering circulars.

Under the foregoing regulations the printing of ADDRESSES and SPECIAL DEVICES (lithographing or engraving) will be entirely discontinued.

The dies now in custody of the department will, upon application, be returned to their owners.

CARDS and REQUESTS must be limited to the following matter, or so much thereof as may be desired, to wit:

First. The name of the writer, whether individual, firm, company, or corporation.

Second. The post office address, including number and name of street, name of city or town, county and State.

Third. A request to return if not delivered within a given or blank number of days.

The occupation of the writer, as "merchant," "claim agent," "attorney at law," "dealer in dry goods, groceries," &c., &c., must be rigidly excluded.

This prohibition does not, however, apply to cases in which an employment may be indicated by a corporate name, or by the usual style of an individual, firm, or association, as "Baltimore and Ohio Railroad," "Treasurer's Office, Erie Canal," "Henry Johnson's Banking House," "Washington Lime and Cement Co." which may be printed as the name of the writer; but the name of any individual or individuals will not be printed apart from and in addition to such recognized business appellation.

These changes take effect on the 1st of July, 1871, and any order in conflict with the new regulations that may be received at the Department on and after that date will be returned unfilled.

It must be understood that the provision of law quoted restricts the action of the Department only, and does not of course prevent parties from having stamped or other envelopes purchased by them printed in any manner they may desire, at their own expense.

W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

CIRCULAR TO POSTMASTERS.

STAMPED ENVELOPES AND NEWSPAPER WRAPPERS.

NEW PRICE LIST.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., MAY 1, 1871.

Owing to a change of contractors, and of contract prices, it becomes necessary, under the law requiring that "Stamped Envelopes shall be sold at the cost of procuring and furnishing the same," to change the schedule of rates at which Stamped Envelopes and Newspaper Wrappers of the issue of October 1, 1870, are now sold to the public.

The change will take effect on the 1st day of July, 1871, and all Stamped Envelopes and Newspaper Wrappers supplied by the Department on and after that date, must be sold at the prices specified by the new schedule, a copy of which accompanies this circular.

Envelopes and wrappers furnished prior to the 1st July next, whether they be of the present or previous issue, must be sold by the postmasters at the rates at which they were obtained from the Post-office Department, and they must neither be returned nor must any reduction in price be made except at the postmaster's own loss.

In connection with the sale of Postage Stamps and Stamped Envelopes, attention is called to the 2d section of the act of March 3, 1855, (sec. 303, Postal Laws and Regulations of 1866, page 73,) which is as follows, viz.:

"It shall not be lawful for any postmaster or other person to sell any postage stamp or stamped envelope for any larger sum than that indicated upon the face of such postage stamp, or for a larger sum than that charged therefor by the Post-office Department; and any person who shall violate this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars."

W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

PRICES AT WHICH

ARE SOLD TO THE PUBLIC.

SALES OF IRREGULAR QUANTITIES.

In making sales of envelopes and wrappers in quantities other than as above set forth, it is expected Postmasters will evince a due spirit of accommodation, but they are not required to lose the fractions of a cent; and if a Postmaster cannot make change, the purchaser must tender the exact amount for the number required.

STAMPED ENVELOPES AND NEWSPAPER WRAPPERS SPOILED IN DIRECTING.

The postage on stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers spoiled in directing will be refunded in stamps by a Postmaster, if satisfied they have never been sent by mail, and that the misdirection actually occurred at the place where the redemption is claimed; also, provided that such envelopes shall be presented in a whole condition. (See sections 189 and 174, postal regulations of 1866.)

SPECIAL REQUEST ENVELOPES.

When ordered in quantities of 500 and upward, of any specified denomination, the Department will, if desired, print on the upper left hand corner of any of the above-described envelopes, except Nos. 4, 8 and 9 (circulars and newspaper wrappers), without additional charge, the NAME (excluding business employment) and POST-OFFICE ADDRESS of parties, WITH A REQUEST TO RETURN, if unclaimed within a given time. These are officially designated as Special Request Envelopes; AND PARTIES MUST IN ALL CASES ORDER THEM THROUGH POSTMASTERS, AND NOT BY DIRECT APPLICATION TO THE DEPARTMENT.

W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

Post Office Department, May 1, 1871.

Valuable Information.

Many postmasters may not be aware that there is much valuable information respecting their official intercourse with the Department at Washington, to be found in the Post-Office Directory. Following the title-page of that Book is a list of the officers of the Department next to this is a statement of the organization of the Department, with instructions to whom to write on the different branches of business. These instructions are very useful, and if followed would in many cases save time, in receiving replies and in others secure replies, which now are seemingly not made. Next is the list of post-offices, prefaced by the official abbreviations of the names of the States. Though not bearing on intercourse with the Department, this is a very useful table, and postmasters should endeavor to have letters addressed according to it. Much confusion would thereby be avoided. One instance will be sufficient: a letter addressed, "Portland, O.," was sent to Portland, Ohio, and remained there thirty days, whereas it was intended for Portland, Oregon, had the abbreviation "Oreg." been used instead of "O," the letter would have been accurately despatched.

Postage to Manitoba.

We call the special attention of postmasters to the letter of the Superintendent of Foreign Mails, respecting the postage on all kinds of printed matter to and from Manitoba, Canada. Postage on such matter sent must be prepaid at the mailing office, and on such matter received, must be paid at the delivery office. The exchanges of editors, however, are excepted, and these are allowed to pass free both ways.

The circulars from the Third Assistant Postmaster General, notifying postmasters of a change in the prices of stamped envelopes, and in the style of indorsement of request envelopes, has crowded out a considerable amount of interesting matter which we had prepared for this number of the MAIL. It will, however, hold good till next month.

We have not received the copy for our usual Carrier's List this month, and hence have been obliged to omit it.

Some important changes and modifications in the rates of postage to some of the European countries are now engaging the attention of the Post Departments of those countries and the United States.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION. FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Lettere to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no douht, in many cases, causing serious lose and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. U paid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over four ounce, 4 cents; over four oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over four oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; hook-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficicut postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REOULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No hook-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any hook-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine hook-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; hooks, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Deseado,	Martinique	Tortuga.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Fort-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and hook-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Quarterly, not over 4 oz	1	"
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz	2	"
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz	3	"

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 239 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 3 cents for each oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 10. NEW YORK, JULY, 1871. WHOLE NO. 130.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, July, 1871.

Notwithstanding the stamping out of the rowdy element in Paris, and the restoration to power of the Thiers Government, which may last for sixty days or more, and the resumption of mail communication between that ill-used city and the rest of the world, not a line had as yet reached us to tell whether J. M.'s relative was still in the land of the living or has "gone to that bourne from whence no traveler returns." Indeed, the dear good woman felt so much solicitude for the absent one, that she contemplated calling upon Puddell, Granny & Mudd, solicitors, at Obtuse Angle, who are the attorneys for the Pond Lily estate, and the supposed custodians of the last will and testament of Gratius Saikes, Esq., of the towaship of Bog Ore, County of Sumoame, and State of Ditteau, Gentleman. Her paramount desire was to learn, if possible, through them if her dear, distant relative still survived; and to institute some polite inquiries in regard to the will and the legatees, which, under the circumstances, I think was entirely justifiable, for the long absence of Mr. Saikes, and a rumor of his death started by somebody, had the effect of bringing a swarm of people round the house who claimed to be connections of the owner of Pond Lily, who did things and said things that were particularly annoying to both J. M. and myself. One impertinent young fellow, who said he was the President of the Thirteenth National Bank of Duluth, drove up to the door a fortnight ago, unloaded baggage enough for half a dozen people, asked who ran the machine in the absence of Cousin Grashe, and declared his intention of stopping until the old top came back," if it took till Christmas." It would have been in bad taste to shut the doors in his face, particularly as there was some uncertainty as to who would be greatest in the event of a certain departure, and we therefore bade him welcome, and had his luggage conveyed to a room designed for his use. But would you believe it, the wretch came rushing down stairs like an infuriated demon, crying out at the top of his voice: "Who in thunder do you take me for, to stick me in that dog kennel? Where's the fellow that carried my trunks up stairs? I want him to put 'em in that big room opposite, and right away, too." Now, as the big room opposite happened to be our room, I did not feel like yielding so much accommodation to the fastidious youth, and I informed him that "that room was engaged." "Of course it is," he replied, "and I've engaged it; so get some one to change my baggage." "You can't have that room, sir," I calmly replied; "and if you are not satisfied with the one assigned you, you are at liberty to leave the premises forthwith." This set him ablaze, and he retorted: "Look here, my old boy, I think I have as much right, and more than you have, here, and I therefore propose to room where I please, go where I please, do as I please, and if you don't like it you can lump it. My name is A. P. Nutt, I am President of the Thirteenth National Bank of Duluth, cousin by marriage of Mr. Saikes, the owner of this property, and if I can't make myself at home in this ranche, I'd like to know why?". Before I had time to answer him J. M. interposed, and in her majestic manner quenched the Duluth spark by telling him that she had directed his "traps" to be hauled back to the station at Obtuse Angle, and that he could ride back with it or walk—he "might suit himself about that;" and while she spoke two of our most stalwart farm hands made their appearance, and in a few moments the Nutt chattels were transferred to a hay-cart and hauled away from the place. The driver did not wait for Nutt to jump in, but this individual, probably fearing that his possessions might be lost to him forever, started after them on a run, shouting back, as he turned away, "I'll get even with you on this, you bet." We have heard nothing further from him since. We had other visitors quite as annoying, but not so demonstrative as President Nutt, and if some transatlantic intelligence had not reached us, we would have been obliged to close our doors for want of supplies. As catists, the generation of Saikes may claim the banner; and if their forefathers and foremothers dwelt in Egypt during Joseph's governorship, and the rest of the inhabitants were blessed with similar appetites, the seven years' famine is easily accounted for. A few days ago, however, among the letters handed me at the post office by Woolcomber was one plainly addressed, "Madame Jane Mary Tonson," which had been torn open and indorsed on the end "opened by mistake." It bore a foreign post mark, and my curiosity was aroused; but I had too much respect for the madam to look inside until she had read it. It proved to be from Gratius Saikes, and after giving a detailed account of his adventures and hair-breadth escapes in the once gay and festive but now dilapidated French capital, he wound up by informing us that he intended starting for home via Havre on the next day, and expected to be with us in a fortnight from the date of his letter. I really believe J. M. was glad to hear of Mr. Saikes' safety, and so was I; and then, you know, there was no certainty about a will or who were the heirs. I called attention to the mutilated condition of J. M.'s letter, and the indorsement thereon, when I handed it to her, but she was so anxious to get at the contents that she forgot the circumstance for the time; but after the excitement had subsided she handed it back to me, with the remark that she hoped I would take the trouble to find out who had the impertinence to open her letters and scribble upon them, and I forthwith started for the Obtuse Angle Post Office, and found Woolcomber alone therein. Holding the letter in my hand, and pointing to the words "opened by mistake," I asked him what it meant. "Oh," said he, "some one has called for that letter, and finding it was not for him or her, wrote that on it, and threw it back in the office again." "Have you any idea who called for it, Mr. Woolcomber?" "Of course not," was the reply. "Then, sir, if I understand you, anybody can call for anybody else's letters, receive them, open them, read them, write upon them "opened by mistake,' and return them to your office without interrogation, observation or identification." "Well, I suppose that's so," was the astounding reply. "Now, Mr. Woolcomber," said I, "I am aware that letters may be delivered to wrong parties, owing to a similarity of names, but persons opening such letters, I believe, are required to write thereon 'Opened by mistake,' and affix their signatures thereto." "Yes, that's the law," said he; "but it we have got to look out for all such mistakes it would take all our time, and we would be unable to attend to any other business." And that's all the satisfaction I got. My opinion is that Woolcomber opened that letter himself, at the instigation of A. P. Nutt or some of our other anxious visitors, under a promise of a consideration for good news, and I think it very probable that in a very large number of cases where a letter is treated in this manner, and afterward handed to the rightful owner, simply indorsed "opened by mistake," without the name of the person subscribed thereto who made the mistake, the disreputable act was committed by some one connected with the post office where it occurs. That's my unqualified opinion.

The news of the expected arrival of Mr. Saikes was soon on the wing, and personal and written inquiries poured in upon us like an avalanche. A whole family, consisting of Ghoodnus Saikes, Marsy Saikes, four little Saikeses and a cousin named Saikes Alyvo, approached in force, and, as they appeared to be quiet and unobtrusive people, and showed an appreciation of our efforts to entertain them, we installed them in good quarters, in due form, to await the coming man.

As the time of his arrival approached we drove to the station at the Angle daily to receive him, and on one occasion I was highly gratified to meet Mr. Durdledot, whom I had not seen since we met in Washington. The train stopped twenty minutes for dinner and we had twenty minutes to talk, for Durdledot was not fool enough to sit down to a depot dinner of slop soup, second-hand meats, decayed vegetables and addled eggs, and pay a dollar therefor, when he could carry with him a toothful luncheon put up at home by clean fingers out of healthy viands; so he ate his food as we talked, and this is what I learned of him:

Wildvineton still rejoices in its old postmaster; Woolfur, with all his influence and all his money, was ruled out of the succession, and everybody was glad of it. He was disposed to be a little ill-natured, and insinuated that he had been sold out, but he was undeceived when he was personally informed at headquarters that running post offices by substitute would not be countenanced. It was in evidence that the postmaster at Wildvineton attended personally and closely to the duties of his office, that no objection had been or could be made against his administration, and that it would be inflicting a wrong upon the community to divide and scatter among several persons official authority which is now well and worthily reposed in one responsible and approachable individual. In conclusion, Durdledot said he was very glad no change had been made, and I was glad to hear it. He wished me to inform a much esteemed friend of his named Hannah, who was temporarily sojourning at the village hotel, that Verry Bland was still postmaster at Wildvineton, and so far as he knew or could learn he would be likely to continue so until death or his own wish relieved him.

Woolfur was properly rebuked, for it was a shame to ask for the removal of so good and efficient an officer as Mr. Bland without any cause whatever, but if he (Woolfur) removes into some other locality, where the time of the postmaster is wholly absorbed in cultivating peanuts, speculating in ox shoes or digging post-holes by contract, while his office is run by some storekeeping deputy with four or five unsworn clerks—if he moves into such a locality, I say, and promises faithfully to perform the duties of postmaster himself, I do hope he will get the appointment, and for his benefit I will tell him he will not have to travel far to find such a place.

Postal Telegraph in England.

We take from the Nation the following articles on the postal telegraph system in England. It shows what might be done in this country under an efficient civil service system:

The loud complaints which arose against the British post office immediately after it had assumed control of the telegraph lines throughout the kingdom, soon died away; and though the transfer was made in the face of the most formidable difficulties, the result has been a complete justification of the undertaking. When the subject arises again in Congress, as it can hardly fail to do, the report of Mr. Scudamore, Second Secretary to the Post Office, will furnish some very forcible arguments for consolidation in this country also. Some of his statistics are highly interesting. To show, for example, the great extension given to the public's facilities, he states that of all the messages handed in at Birmingham, Leeds, Liverpool and Manchester, from 14 to nearly 40 per cent. were at stations previously unsupplied with accommodation; while in London, deliveries which used to take hours are now made within an average of ten minutes. The cost to the public of inland messages, including porterage beyond the free delivery, has been reduced from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 1½d. or 1s. 1d. Any sender of a message can now reckon the cost of it (the standard rate is one shilling for twenty words), and a great many messages are handed in prepaid; and the government even goes so far (not without the protest of the stationers) as to furnish frequent senders with books of message blanks, on which the names and addresses of the senders are printed, and in some cases of the receivers also, and to provide envelopes with printed addresses for those who receive numerous messages. Whereas the telegraph companies had but 1,869 instruments, the post office had, last August, 4,153; and whereas the former had but 2,514 clerks—viz., 2,035 males and 479 females—the post office employed, in the month just mentioned, 4,913 clerks and assistants, of whom 1,535 were females; the messengers not being counted in either case.

Many of the women clerks were secured by recalling those who had been discharged on marriage by the telegraph companies. Of this class, as a whole, it is said (we quote directly from the Times):

"They have the essential qualifications of quickness of eye and ear and delicacy of touch, are more patient than men during long confinement to one place, and take more kindly to sedentary employment; that the wages which will draw men from but an inferior class will draw women from a superior class, and hence they will generally write better than the former and spell more correctly; and that they are less disposed than men to combine for the purpose of extorting higher wages. Where the staff is mixed, the female clerks raise the tone of the whole staff. Civil servants expect their remuneration to increase with their years of service, even though from the nature of their employment they can be of no more use or value in the twentieth than in the fifth year of service; but women will retire for the purpose of getting married as soon as they have the chance, and only those will return to the service whose married life is less fortunate than they hoped. Mr. Scudamore concludes that if we place an equal number of females and males on the same ascending scale of pay, the aggregate pay to the females will be less than that to the males, and there will be fewer females than males on the pension-list."

In the training-schools of London, it is stated that the average time occupied in instructing a male learner is two months, and a female three months. In little more than twelve months the department "added to the effective telegraph force of the country not less than two thousand persons who knew nothing whatever of telegraphy prior to the transfer." Even the uncouth messengers, "apparently a set of irreclaimable scamps," were taken in hand, paid a rate per message delivered as their only wages, drilled in walking, and obliged to keep themselves clean. The social effect of the change thus appears not inconsiderable, while the throwing open the lines to the press without distinction or preference has produced a great increase in business, and cannot fail to improve the quality of the newspapers, and enlarge the intelligence of the people.

CORRESPONDENCE.

E—— P——, N.Y., May 13, 1871.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

Having been a reader of the MAIL for over a year, and interested in the information it brings, I conclnded to write yon on a snbject which I have not noticed as having been discussed in said paper by any of the correspondents, that is. "Prepayment of postage on transient mail-matter." If anything will provoke postmasters or employes I think that finding unpaid printed papers, &c., among the contents of the mail bag, directed to non-subscribers, is one of them. It shows that those who send them wish to defraud the P. O. Dep't of its just dues. In a majority of cases the persons named in the addresses decline to pay the postage, and, therefore, the matter intended for them is usually consigned to the waste-paper bag. The majority of these publications are small religious or literary papers, published by several religious denominations in New York, Philidelphia, Boston, and other places. The greater part comes from New York City, generally sent to pastors of churches or those connected with them, for the purpose of increasing their circulation, and introducing the paper into neighborhoods, &c. The old adage, "the more haste, the less speed," would apply here—1st, The publishers are too eager to introdnce their respective issues when they seek to do it at the government's expense by not prepaying the proper postage thereon, therefore, not more than one in ten is read by the persons addressed. 2nd, When postage is prepaid the papers generally reach the parties addressed, and their merits noted. "That which costs nothing is worth nothing," is an old and true saying.

It is claimed by some that those who are the most benefitted should pay the expence. Some publishers think if they send their publications free the receiver should pay the postage. This is all right where the party addressed agrees to do so, but if they decline, where does the P. O. Dep't get its compensation?

In conclusion I would say to those who use the mails of the United States, fully prepay all transient matter sent therein. Plainly and properly direct it to its destination in full, if you desire the party addressed to receive the same in due time, and by no means try to defraud the government of its just dues.

I could write more on the above subject, but fear I shall make it too long.

H. J. S., Ass't P. M.

P. O., P——, Vt., May 9, 1871.

TO PUBLISHER U. S. MAIL:

SIR:—In October last I received enclosed in a package of the Weekly W——, addressed to me individually (which I distributed from a list of names furnished), a large poster advertising the W——, and not willing to withhold them from the subscribers, chose to deliver them and trust to luck for the letter post age, $1 74, and immediately notified the W—— of the fact, telling them they or I must pay that amount, as I had no right to deliver them without. In reply I received, as a justification for so doing, a decision of the Post Office Department in relation to some prepaid matter in case of Harper's "Bazaar" and poster, also a two cent stamp, saying that was all I could claim for the poster. I replied as before, that one of ne must pay the $1 74, and as I had the courtesy to deliver them and rely upon his obligation to answer me for his fault. I trusted he would not suffer to pay it, as I should have returned the package for prosecution, to which I had no reply. Soon after I received another poster in like manner, and refused to deliver the papers until letter-postage was paid, (about $1.80) which the party addressed paid, and called upon the W—— to remit the amount, which they did. I have notified the publishers if they do not remit the amount of postage upon the package I distributed I should report the facts to the proper authority.

On reflection I think I ought to have reported the facts at once, as I have no doubt they are sending out hundreds of their posters in the same way, as I have known them to be sent to this office under the frank of a member of Congress.

Very respectfully yours, J. R., P. M

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

1.—Marking Stamps.—S. F. H., N—B—, Mc.—Application for marking stamps should be made to the Appointment Office, Washington, D. C. Sec. 14, Reg. 1866.

Unclaimed Seeds.—F. M. A., G——, N. Y.—An unclaimed package of seeds should be sold at the end of the quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department (Secs. 391 and 392, reg. 1866).

Removal of Post Office.—A. E., S—— A——, N. J.—A postmaster is not allowed to make any material change in the site of a post office, without permission of the Department. Apply to the First Assistant Postmaster-General.

County Papers.—M. L. B., G—— S——, O.—The provision of the law allowing county papers to be carried free of postage within the county, appliee to all the different weekly papers published in the county, and does not restrict the subscriber to one only.

Printed Circulars Filled in with Figures.—J. N. B., P——, W. Va.—The introduction in a printed circular of prices or other matter, even in pencil mark, subjects the circular to letter postage. The MAIL, of December, 1868, contains an official decision to this effect.

Charging Up Letters in Transit.—S. J. M., K——, Ind.—The charging up of letters inefficiently prepaid, and of letters not prepaid at all, where this has not been done at the mailing office, should be done at the office of delivery and not in transit, except when received at a distributing office, where they should be properly rated and billed.

Request Letters from Canada, etc.—T. F. M., P——, Mass.—1. Request letters from Canada may be returned to Canada unpaid; it is then optional whether postage will be charged or not. 2. If the enameled cloth in which engravings are wrapped is to protect them, they would not be subject to letter postage. 3. Post offices are generally called Class I., Class II., etc.

Registration.—H.T., C——C——, Tex.—Letters from postmasters to the Post Office Department may be registered free, but no others. Although the "Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department" is not legally an officer of that department, but of the Treasury Department, yet virtually he belonge to the former, and is included among its officers.

Packages of Letters to One Address.—R. W. H. B., M——, Iowa.—It is irregular and not permissible to stamp letters for different people with a one cent stamp, and then inclose them in one package to one address and forward the package at letter rates, that the person to whom the package is addressed may deposit the letters as drop letters (Sec. 217, laws 1866). Letter postage is required on each letter to a different address.

Franking.—E. E. T., M——, Mass.—A postmaster has no right to frank directly to a publisher; he must send his communication to the postmaster at the publisher's place of business (Sec. 392, reg. 1866). But this does not give him the right to frank on renewals, change of addresses, etc. All franking to private persons is prohibited. If a person writes to a postmaster, even on official business, the postmaster in replying directly to the writer must pay postage, but he may reply through the postmaster at the writer's place of address by franking.

Carrying Letters Out of the Mail.—W. H. C., E——, Md.—Letters may be carried on a railroad ont of the mails and without postage, if they relate to anything carried at the same time, but not otherwise. (Sec. 45, reg. 1866)....T. S. G——, Tex.—Except as previously stated, no person can regularly, and as a business, carry letters out of the mail....I. B, F——, Neb.—A mail messenger has the right to carry ont of the mail bag letters handed to him to give to a route agent at a station to which he is carrying mails.

Quarterly Postage.—W. J. B., W——, N. H.—A subscriber cannot pay postage for one quarter on a regular paper, the term of payment to commence at any time. If the quarterly postage shall be paid at any other time than the beginning of a quarter it must be paid to the end of the next quarter. Read carefully section 154 of Regulations of 1866. Section 310, regulations of 1866, applies to postage on papers the publication of which is discontinued during term of subscription, and is not intended to allow subscribers to evade the law concerning quarterly postage, by subscribing for a paper for less than a quarter, paying a quarter's postage, and then at the end of the subscription term receiving back a pro rata part of the postage.

Postage.—A. S., S—— L——, O.—Canada papers are chargeable with postage on delivery, either transient or quarterly, as the case may be; but English or Scotch papers must be delivered free of further charge, than the postage prepaid in those countries.....E. E. T., M——, Mass.—1. The law changing the rate of postage on drop letters from two cents to one cent was passed in March, 1865. Sec. 261, Laws of 1866. 2. It is not right to mark on a paper the amount of postage and then send the paper to the owner; the postage should be paid before delivery. The proper way is to send notice that the postage is due, or, if you can, that it will be due at such a time.....H. E. D, T——, O.—Small newspapers, of the character of advertising sheets, are chargeable with postage at transient rates of two cents for four ounces, whether for mail or local delivery, and whether addressed or not. 2. A separate postage should be charged for each address. 3. Manuscript music, surveyor's maps, diplomas containing any writing, or any like articles containing writing are chargeable with letter postage.....W. H. J., N——, N. J.—Certificates of membership of societies and lodges are included in the "any like articles" in the previous reply. The introduction of a written memorandum, even in pencil, to a printed blank of any kind, subjects it to letter postage.....D. W. H., H——, Md.—The Missionary Visitor, Dayton, Ohio, is a small religious paper, and is entitled to the provision respecting such papers, that is, one cent for four ounces to one address.

Samples.—W. H. P. D., C——, O.—It is difficult to answer the question—"What is meant by flexible patterns, samples and sample cards?" or, at least, so much of it as relates to samples and sample cards. An effort was made by the Department some years since to put a satisfactory solution, when it was decided that the correct solution of the words "'sample and sample cards' is that they apply to specimens of cloth, dry goods or other dry flexible material of no intrinsic value and not intended for use, and the cards to which such specimens are generally attached." But this decision bearing hardly as it does on dealers who could make good use of the mails for sending samples, such as grocers, tea and coffee dealers, sugar refiners, etc., is far from satisfactory, and leaves almost as wide a field for individual opinion as though no class of dealers were excluded. The manufacturer of neckties claims that the necktie he sends as a sample to the wholesale dealer is of no intrinsic value, it being valuable only as a sample, and is only a fair sample if whole; while another claims that because the necktie is whole it has a value of itself and is not a bona fide sample, but that half a yard of calico, or of muslin, answer the requirements of the decision, forgetting that the calico has an intrinsic value for patching or for patchwork, and the muslin for a pudding bag. One glove attached to a card may be a sample, or it may be an attempt to evade the letter rate of postage. We have said enough to show that nothing definite can be said upon the subject, and that until our postal authorities adopt the liberal course of the British authorities, it will be a vexatious one: in the meanwhile be on the safe side, and whenever a package does not, without doubt, come within the definition above given, charge letter postage. According to the report of the Postmaster-General of Great Britain for 1865, samples of 212 different articles were carried by post that year, embracing every article of ordinary as well as some of extraordinary use. Among them were 59,346 samples of tea, 30,851 of sugar and 16,888 of coffee, all articles on which our Department requires letter postage; while of articles entitled to pass as samples were 7,659 of woolen cloth, 7,283 of wool, and 6,927 of silks. These figures (we have taken the highest three of each class) show that the very class excluded by our Department from the benefits of the sample post, is the one that in England makes the greatest use of it in the proportion of over five to one.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, JULY, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 130 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes. JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21, 1871.

SIR—I inclose an important notice to Postmasters and the public, respecting the establishment of a direct exchange of mails with Germany, by means of the Baltic Lloyd Mail Steamships, plying between New York and Stettin; and request its publication in the next issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL.

Very respectfully, your ob't serv't,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Sup't.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail."

IMPORTANT ARRANGEMENT.

Establishing a Direct Exchange of Mails with Germany by the Baltic Lloyd Mail Steamships, via Stettin, at a Reduced Rate of Letter Postage.

An additional article to the Postal Convention between the United States and the Empire of Germany has been recently concluded, to take effect immediately, which establishes a reduced international postal charge of six (6) cents per single rate on the direct letter correspondence exchanged with Germany, Austria and Luxemburg by means of steamers of the Baltic Lloyd Line, plying between New York and Stettin. Unpaid letters forwarded or received by this line of steamers will be charged with double the prepaid rate; and letters insufficiently paid will also be charged with double postage, less the amount prepaid.

The correspondence other than letters posted in the United States for transmission to Germany, Austria and Luxemburg by the "direct route via Stettin" will be subject to the same rates of postage and to the same condition of compulsory prepayment as the correspondence of a like nature forwarded to those countries by the direct routes via Bremen and Hamburg respectively.

The departures from New York of the steamers of the Baltic Lloyd Line will be so arranged as to perform at least a monthly mail service in each direction. The sailing days from New York, as far as reported, are as follows, viz.: July 13, August 10, August 31, September 28, October 19 and November 16, 1871. Further days of sailing from this side will from time to time be published for the information of the public.

Postmasters will take notice hereof, and govern themselves accordingly in levying and collecting postage on the correspondence so exchanged with the German postal union.

By order of the Postmaster-General,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

[OFFICIAL.]

MAILS FOR THE SCANDINAVIAN KINGDOMS BY DIRECT STEAMERS FROM NEW YORK.

The Baltic Lloyd Company having established a line of steamships between New York and Stettin, in Prussia, via Christiansand, in Norway, and Copenhagen, in Denmark, arrangements have been made for the forwarding of a direct mail from New York to each of the Kingdoms of Sweden, Norway and Denmark by means of said steamers, comprising the correspondence for those Kingdoms which the senders may wish to have forwarded by this line of steamships, and on which the United States postage shall have been fully prepaid, at the following rates, viz.:

On letters, 10 cents per each half an ounce, or under.

On newspapers, 2 cents each; and

On packages of printed matter other than newspapers, when not exceeding an ounce in weight, 2 cents; when exceeding an ounce, and not exceeding two ounces in weight, 3 cents; when exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, 4 cents; and an additional rate of 4 cents for every additional weight of four ounces or fraction of four ounces.

The departures from New York of the steamers of the Baltic Lloyd Line, as far as reported, are as follows, viz.: July 13, August 10, August 31, September 28, October 19, and November 16, 1871. Further days of sailing from this side will, from to time time, be published for the information of the public.

The above postage charges are in like manner to be levied and collected at the office of delivery on the correspondence received in the United States from the countries in question by this line of steamships.

Postmasters will take notice hereof, and govern themselves accordingly in levying and collecting postage on the correspondence so exchanged with Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

By order of the Postmaster-General.
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5, 1871.

SIR—The Postmaster-General, to permit small book packets and packets of patterns or samples for Switzerland, to receive the benefit of a moderated postage, has directed the following arrangement for such correspondence sent from the United States to Switzerland, to be observed and enforced from and after the 1st proximo, viz.:

For book packets and patterns, or samples of merchandise—

When not exceeding an ounce in weight, 2 cents;

When exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight, 4 cents;

When exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight, 8 cents;

For packets exceeding four ounces in weight, an additional rate of 8 cents for every additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof.

The above postage charges are required to be prepaid by means of United States postage stamps affixed to the cover of the packet, and when prepaid are in full of all charges to destination; but if any such correspondence shall be insufficiently paid, it will nevertheless be forwarded charged with the deficient postage for collection on delivery, besides which, it will also be subjected to a fine of 25 centimes on delivery in Switzerland.

You will please amend the "Table of postages" in the next issue of the "U. S. Mail," in accordance with this information.

Very respectfully, your ob't serv't,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Sup't.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8, 1871.

SIR—The general Post Office at Berlin has just advised this Department that the fee upon registered letters for Aden, and for the English Possessions and Protected States of Farther India, exclusive of Ceylon, which the senders may expressly desire to have forwarded through Germany via Trieste, has been reduced from 12 to 9 cents.

Registered letters intended for transmission by this route to any of the within-named destinations will, therefore, be subject to a combined registration fee of 17 cents per letter, instead of 20 cents, as heretofore.

The ordinary rates of postage and conditions of payment remain unchanged.

Please make the necessary alterations in the "table of postages" published in the next issue of your paper.

Very respectfully, your ob't serv't,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Sup't.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail."

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The first letter we take up is accompanied by one of those gull-traps—a counterfeit money or saw-dust circular. The writer says he and his friends have received numerous such baits, and they "would be glad to know of the capture of at least one of the rascals." The capture is easy enough; the difficulty is in the punishment, for what crime is it to offer to sell counterfeit money, which is all these scoundrels have to do with it? They do not have a dollar of the stuff they represent themselves to have; and when some foolish scoundrel applies to them for counterfeit money, they send sawdust or some equally valueless material. It is the old game of the would-be hiter bit. Their career would be short if some of the Express companies were not in actual, if not premeditated, collusion with them. Were all the Express companies and the Press throughout the country to take as strong measures to head them off as the Post Office Department has done, they would soon come to their death..... Our next letter contains the suggestion to make THE MAIL a weekly instead of a monthly, and the next to change its form to a quarto—both very good suggestions, but the time is not propitious to make either change. Our correspondence the past month has been small. We have observed this is the case about this time every year. Is it seed time with postal questions and difficulties as well as with agricultural products, or is it that farmers, being busy on their farms, make less use of the mails? If the latter, the spare time thus afforded to Postmasters and their clerks could be very advantageously employed in studying the Laws and Regulations. It is surprising how many useful little items of postal knowledge, yet not of general use, can be found by a little study. We especially recommend to attention the first three chapters of the Regulations, but section 12 in chapter II. is abrogated, and a general Blank agency has been established in Washington, in accordance with section 14 of the act of July 27, 1868. Chapters XI. and XV., too, would repay attention. Section 228 is one of general use, yet but little understood. Observe that the words bona fide are in italics, to call your attention to the requirement that persons must be, in good faith, honestly and truly, subscribers to the paper or papers they claim the right to receive under this section; and observe, too, that the word weekly is in italics, to call your attention to the fact that it is only weekly papers that may be delivered free. Monthly, daily, tri-weekly, semi-weekly—in fact, all publications but weekly—are excluded from the privilege of the section. Some think that only one paper of several kinds may be delivered free. This is a mistake; all the different kinds printed and published weekly in the county are included. Chapter XXXV. is a chapter, too, that is full of information, and information on a subject concerning which there is a great deal of ignorance, and an equal amount of carelessness—the disposition of unmailable letters and of dead letters and other matter, and the accounts and papers connected with them. It not infrequently happens that the examination of a Postmaster's accounts are suspended for want of the dead-letter bill required by section 383. Now is the time to begin to collect the items for that bill, for it is made up of the transactions of the whole quarter. (See section 381.)

We might continue these suggestions to an indefinite length, but have said enough to show what may be done, and so leave the matter in the hands of postmasters and their clerks to prosecute further.

AT this season many visitors to summer resorts desire to subscribe for city papers for a short time. Quarterly postage on these papers, if not paid at the beginning of a quarter, must be charged for the rest of the quarter and the whole of the next quarter. See Section 154, Reg. 1866.

NEW MAIL CARS.—The authorities of the Saratoga, Vermont Central, and Ogdensburg and Lake Champlain Railroads have done themselves great credit and administered hugely to the comfort of the mail agents by the construction for and introduction on those routes of new, spacious and beautiful mail cars. These cars have all the old and many new improvements, are roomy and well ventilated, and, in the way of conveniences and appointments, leave nothing to be desired. We are pleased to make a record of the good taste and liberality of the gentlemen who so humanely cared for the safety and comfort of the route agents on these lines, and in their behalf tender our thanks, adding that we hope others will see their good works and follow their example.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.
FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additions rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havena, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and hook-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 222, Law, 1866

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 11. NEW YORK, AUGUST, 1871. WHOLE NO. 131.

Our Letters.

Away, to all the world they go—our letters—
To mighty London, melancholy Paris,
To Pekin, Boston—welcome to the getters
As is a baby to the man that marries;
There, peradventure, held in paper fetters,
An earnest of our wealth each missive carries,
For thus the gold which issues from our shafts
Is dissipated o'er the world by drafts.

Hid in that bag repose a month's emotions,
Repugnant billets slumber side by side—
An order here, perhaps, for pills and potions,
And here a requisition for a bride;
All kinds of news, and narratives, and notions,
A murder now, a marriage, suicide;
Assertions, too, so hot, of love's attacks,
One wonders that they do not melt the wax

Indulgent husbands, writing to their wives,
Who could not bear the climate, and have gone
Reluctantly away to save their lives,
And those of darlings whom they dote upon,
Now dolefully declare the hours are knives
Which stab their faithful bosoms, and anon
Must bring them to their graves—and then they hint
That money's scarce, and they have not a mint.

And then, their business done, their letters posted,
These desolate disconsolates adjourn
To dinner—say, a duck, divinely roasted—
Which mitigates their sorrow and concern;
And then, perhaps, a pretty barmaid's toasted,
In Cliquot, which they quietly intern;
And then some jolly dog proposes—such is

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, August, 1871.

We were comfortably occupying our seat in church last Sabbath morning, attentively listening to an edifying discourse by a very young visiting clergyman from Wynkatiue Seminary, when old Betteryet, the sexton—who is as deaf as a post, and labors under the illusion that he whispers, when he roars, and is afflicted, moreover, with a frightful stutter—approached our pew, and in his quiet way announced: "Sai-Sai-Saikes is cu-cu-cum, and wa-wa-wants the doork-doork-door keys." Of course the whole congregation heard him, and smiled audibly. The youthful minister of the Gospel heard him and was much disconcerted—and we heard him, and were almost overwhelmed with confusion. We departed from the sanctuary in as short a time as decorum warranted, and hurried home; but judge of our surprise when, as we reached the large gate opening into the court-yard, the following scene met our wondering visiou: In front of the gate stood a baggage wagon crammed to the top with baggage, while all around the ground was strewn with trunks, boxes, bags and barrels, and on the top of an extemporized barricade made of more trunks, bags and boxes sat a brown-faced, cadaverous-looking man, with a ferocious moustache and goatee waxed as stiff and as straight as the hands of a clock, and on his head a very small cap with a very large tura-up peak cocked over his left eye; a blue blouse almost covered his shrunken form, from beneath which protruded a pair of huge feet covered with heavy shoes and dirty, yellow gaiters; over his lap was spread a bandana handkerchief, and in his left hand resting on it he held a snuff-box, between which and his nose the thumb and index finger of his right hand were almost constantly passing. In front of him, leaning against the pile upon which he sat, was the longest gun I ever saw, and close by was a pair of holsters from which the butts of two silver-mounted pistols peeped out. Lying alongside of him, apparently sound asleep, were two queer-looking, chocolate-colored dogs, entirely destitute of hair, and behind him was a cage containing a huge white parrot, that did nothing but whirl itself madly about as if striving to dash itself to pieces, but not uttering a word, and acting altogether like a genuine ornithological maniac. But the queer little man, seemingly oblivious to everything, remained perfectly passive and imperturbed, his hand only vibrating automaton-like from his knees to his nose, paying no attention to his surroundings, and apparently not noticing us as we entered the gate. J. M. had not seen her relative for a great many years, and I had never seen him. We both concluded that the stranger must be he, and J. M. feeliog it to be her duty as well as her privilege to give him a warm welcome, rushed up and throwing her arms round his neck, exclaimed: "Welcome to your home, dear cousin." In her enthusiasm she upset the snuff-box, the contents of which nearly blinded her, set the dogs yelpiog and the parrot screaming, which incited every beast and bird on the place to sympatbetic vocal demonstrations, and so infuriated the brown man that he leaped from his seat, drew one of the pistols from the holster and would certainly have discharged it had not a voice at the moment shouted out in thunder tones: "Eugene, tomboy vos pistolet!" The weapon instantly tumbled—the excited individual subsided—his arms dropped down, the palms of his hands pressed tight against his thighs, and he stood erect and rigid as a ramrod, fastening his gaze oo sometbing in the distance and appearing to have grown suddenly into a statue. That voice was Mr. Saikes', and the next momeot that redoubtable individual stood before us. Extending his hand to me, he thus spoke: "Your name is—don't speak—your name—O yes, of course I know your name; but that's neither here nor there. What is the lady weeping for? O! she is my cousin, to be sure. How [illegible], by his unwilling infractions of the very awkward in me not to have known it. She weeps for joy to see me come home safe. Bless her good heart—but really, she sneezes a little too much—and you, sir, I am happy to meet you—and I presume you reciprocate the feeling; but if I were you, and you were me, I would open the doors of the house the first thing, invite you, as the owner of the property, to walk in and take a seat, and probably offer you some creature comforts and a room for the night." And then, turning to my dear dame, he continued, "And how do you do, Cousin Jenny? I have not seen you since you were a very little girl. I am so glad you are here, but really I do not understand why you made that assault upon my vally Eugene. He is as watchful as a cat, but harmless as a dove. Poor fellow, he had a narrow escape from the Communists in Parree, but I saved him by a rooze de gurr, as we call it in France, and here he is my sworn, life-long, faithful servitor. Pray, what induced you to pitch into him so?" "Why, Cousin Gratius, I had oot seen you so long, that I took bim for you and——" "O, I see, you thought it was me, and was going to give me a tangible evidence of welcome. Ha! ha! I see it all. Eugene is a perfect woman-hater, and as he could not comprehend you, he supposed it was the custom of the country thus to approach foreign strangers, and of course his first impulse was to defend himself from what he regarded as a dangerous assault. It is a good joke, though, and I'll explain it to him. You don't speak French, of course—I do. He don't speak English—I do. I will explain the matter to him in the vernacular. You won't understand us, of course, but we'll understand each other. When we laugh you can laugh too, if you want to; but it makes no difference, we'll have a good laugh in French, or, as we say in Parree, a bong rere." While he stepped over to unmystify Eugene, J. M. and I threw open the doors of the mansion. She went in to wash the snuff out of her eyes, while I remained on the portico to receive Mr. S., who was leisurely approaching, convulsed with laughter, and turning his head every now and then to see if Eugene had collapsed. In as graceful a manner as possible I welcomed him back to Pond Lily, adding "that I hoped he would find everything in as good, if not better condition, than when he left." "O! I don't doubt it Mr.—by the by—you must be French descent. Yours is a French oame, and we pronounce it Tong-song in Parree—but no matter. Your wife spells your name Tonson—execrable! Make her add the g's by all means, and do it yourself, too, and give it the real Parree ax-song." In a jocular way I ventured to suggest that the Berlin accent was more popular just now than the Parisian, which evidently displeased bim, or else he didn't see the point, for he turned on his heel and entered the hall without further ceremony. By this time J. M. had rehabilitated herself, and she really looked charming. I have told you before that she is a majestic-looking woman, and on this occasion her presence was very impressive; and if friend Gratius had designed adopting the imperious style—after the brusque manner in which he left me outside—he concluded, at her approach, to abandon it forthwith, for he was the most subdued and polite individual I had seen for many a day.

"Well, here I am, Cousin Jeony, and now the first thing to be done is to see about my traps. You will oblige me very much, Mr. Tong-song, if you will order the help about the house to assist Eugene in bringing them in-doors, and by and by we'll unpack, and I'll show you some of the rarest curiosities and soo-vang-ears you ever laid your eyes upon." As I felt no particular desire to smash baggage, and disliking the existing noise and confusion, I intimated as much to J. M. and started for "Obtuse Angle," where I purposed remaining during the day and returning in the evening, after the excitement was over.

I reached the post office at the "Angle" just as the mail arrived, and the idea suggested itself that I could probably spend a portion of my time observing how official business was transacted inside, as profitably and as agreeably as in any other way; and taking a position among the increasiog throng of anxious-looking people, where I could see all I wished without attracting attention, I was very sooo gratified. Some seven or eight persons were gathered round the table whereon the contents of the mail-bag had been emptied, and all were apparently busy in overhauling the bundles of letters and papers. I recognized Grawdles, the postmaster, and his son, and Woolcomber, and a leading lawyer and the casbier of one of the banks, but the others were strangers to me. All hands, however, were apparently at home; and I thought to myself that if any stealing was going on at that office, a lawyer or a bank casbier who would abet a postmaster in committing the postal laws which he had sworn to observe, would be as likely to be afflicted with Kleptomania as any body else. Grawdles in his ignorance probably knew no better, and Woolcomber was too lazy and too indifferent to care anything about it. I saw the lawyer pick up bundles of letters and read the superscriptions on every one, and pass them over to the cashier with some remarks inaudible to me, who feasted his pruricot appetite in the same way, and in turn they were handed round until the village mouters were satisfied, and then Woolcomber or young Grawdles would take them and place them in their respective boxes or drawers. The postmaster stood quietly looking on, twirling his thumbs or scratching his back on a post against which he was leaning, and seemed to have no more idea or appreciation of his position than a prize ox bedecked for exhibition and slaughter. The ruling spirits were the two unofficials I have indicated, who, having exhausted the letter addresses, turned their attentioo to tearing open magazines and illustrated papers, to gratify their cultivated taste for looking at cheap pictures, while somebody else had to pay for them. Truly they were a precious pair, and there is no telling what decorations fate may have in store for them. All the time these interlopers were interfering with and delaying the legitimate duties of the employes of the office the people outside were obliged to wait; and it was really surprising to see the patience evinced by them under the circumstances. It took over half an hour to distribute a mail, when ten minutes was all-sufficient. While I stood there several newspapers and magazines, which had had their wrappers mutilated by these contemptible privileged characters, were delivered to their owners, who received them without murmuring, having grown used to what has probably become the established custom, since Grawdles took the office and Woolcomber the deputyship. I just thought to myself if Grawdles or Woolcomber went into that cashier's bank, and undertook to count his limited cash, or into that lawyer's office, and looked over his private papers, that they would make their exit very quick, with the toe of a thirteen boot close after them. Yet they permit these same men to pry into confidences which they have neither a legal nor moral right to reveal, and never for a moment think of the dirty work they are permitting under their very noses. I felt exceedingly vexed at this outrageous conduct, and had J. M.'s open letter been handed me then, instead of on a former occasion, I would have raised a festive breeze, I assure you.

And yet this free range of post offices by unauthorized persons is by no means confined to "Obtuse Angle." I venture to assert that the same reprehensible and villainous practice obtains in very many places, and it is an astonishing thing to me that more depredations and irregularities do not exist, growing out of so much official ignorance and non-observance of postal laws and regulations. I have been informed by one who knows, that when suspicion of dishonesty attaches to a post office, the first move of the investigating official is to ascertain who has access to the office apart from the officials, and if it is ascertained that unauthorized persons are in the habit of congregating inside, they generally go for them first, and resort to all possible means to get at the moral and social status of such, with a view to test their integrity, and if they do not succeed in detecting them in criminality, they find out other things about them—not at all creditable to their reputation and character—which would never have been imagined or inquired into if they had refrained from poking their noses into places where they had no right, and where no one had the legitimate privilege of admitting them. With this fact in view, it is to be hoped that postmasters who have inquisitive and encroaching friends, for whom they feel a certain amount of respect, will quietly intimate to them that they better keep out of the shop, unless they desire to be made food for shadows that will stick closer than a brother, until their appetites are satiated by a perfect knowledge of their every day's doings.

And it is right and just that it should be so—it is simply even-handed justice. If a man will wilfully put himself in a position where suspicion attaches to him, he deserves to be watched and followed, and if something else is discovered detrimental to his reputation, although not connecting him in any way with the cause of the original suspicion, he has nobody but himself to blame for it.

My advice, therefore, to those who are in the habit of taking liberties of this kind is to abstain therefrom, unless they desire certain persons to know as much about their private lives as they do themselves.

MONS. TONSON.

CORRESPONDENCE.

NEW MADRID, Mo, May 22, 1871.

PUBLISHER U. S. MAIL.

Dear Sir—No. 128 of the U. S. MAIL reached me a few days ago, and its corresponding with the number on the wrapper reminded me that it was the last number paid for. So here goes a dollar for another year.

As so many postmasters suggest plans how newspaper postage ought to be collected, I have concluded also to launch one of my notions, for I consider it almost wrong not to throw in a shilling where there are so many contributing. I do not claim to know a plan superior to those already submitted, but I am willing to leave it to the careful consideration of an intelligent public, who will be generous and unprejudiced in their judgments.

It is much easier to condemn a plan on account of its impracticability than it is to hit upon a real practical one. My suggestion would be, since the Department does not seem to be inclined to make prepayment compulsory at the office of publication, to compel publishers not to recognize any orders for papers except from postmasters. Thus every one wishing a paper would have to get the postmaster to send for it. The subscription price would have to be high enough to include the postage for the whole term subscribed for. Then the postmaster would order the paper, inclose funds enough to pay for it, and charge himself with the postage. Such would make Postmasters agents for all the newspapers, and, no doubt, many will answer that they have enough to do without that, but the arrangement would, in my opinion, not increase the work. For in order to collect all the postage, a postmaster must have a complete record of all the papers anyway. The record required for this purpose would always show precisely how long the paper was subscribed and paid for. And when the term expired, and the paper would cease coming, as it ought to, unless the subscription was renewed, then the blame would not fall on the postmaster for withholding it.

It would also make it easy to sift out the papers of publishers who are continually annoying postmasters in smuggling their papers through the mails unpaid to parties who are not subscribers, and who refuse to take the papers if postage is demanded. For exchange papers to publishers the present system might be retained.

I also beg leave here to insert a few lines about a little circumstance that happened here a few days ago. And as my place of writing is this world-renowned New Madrid, renowned for loyalty, renowned for good morals, and renowned for many other virtues which are as scarce here as bens' teeth, many of your readers who have heard, or know something about this New Madrid, may find it interesting.

Ever since I have had this office, which is only about two years, I have been tolerably strict in collecting box rents and paper postage. I found it very difficult, in the first place, as many said they had never paid any postage before, and flattered me by insinuating that such was only a new wrinkle of my own. Others disputed me out of it by claiming that they had paid my predecessor for a terrible long time ahead. But things improved, and, with the assistance of one of Wade's Double Index Post-Office Books, I have kept my accounts very well. Also the growls would decrease to number from regular to semi-occasional ones. One chap, however, the richest man in this county, and a richer one than many of our adjoining counties can boast of, came a few days ago for his mail, which was handed him, and also a bill of box rent and postage due for the second quarter. Said bill had been handed him already over a dozen times, without receiving from his honor the slightest attention. But this time, when the chap was about to retreat, I informed him that the bill must be paid, otherwise no more box and ditto papers. The individual became furious, indulged in the most abusive, and, at the same time, filthy slander ever made use of by blackguards, threatened violence in case his papers were withheld (which, however, will be done unless he concludes to pay), and even started forthwith to carry some of his threats into effect. So I was arrested and fined ten dollars and costs for disturbing the peace.

So I say: Who would not like to be postmaster here? The government shall not lose the postage on said papers, nor the box-rent. I will pay it this time, but no more. He and some others will also go for our M. C., and get him to have a postmaster substituted who will not have the impudence to charge box-rent or postage.

Now, if any good should come from the suggestions made by me above, it would give me much pleasure. If a more practical plan be adopted, so much the better. A change is needed, but as there are so many experienced postmasters, some of whom have worked nearly a lifetime in the field where I just commenced, I hope some of them will hit upon a plan which, it adopted, will be more advantageous to the government and satisfactory to all parties. But I notice my letter is getting very long, and not wishing to monopolize the whole space of the MAIL, and shut out Monsieur Touson entirely, I will close, leaving it to your discretion to admit my epistle in the MAIL or the waste basket. Very respectfully yours,

P. M.

P. O., —— ——, TEX., June, 1871.

SIR—In the UNITED STATES MAIL for this month, just received, is a letter from "Outsider" on "Postal Reforms Demanded." Beyond a doubt the writer is and has been an "Insider" of postal service. At all events, it would hardly be possible to express so well, in any other words, such important "reforms." Adopting and urging every one of his suggestions on the attention of everybody interested in the post office, I beg to add two more reforms equally needed, and will number them from bis:

11. Let postmasters be appointed simply on the ground of their qualifications for that office—competency and character.

12. Let their continuance in office depend solely upon honest efficiency.

These, added to "Outsider's" demands, make a complete circle of reforms imperatively needed. They do not need an education of public sentiment, nor the action of Congress, as do most of the others. Let the Department adopt and act upon these, and the first, the abolition of the franking nuisance, urged by Postmaster-General Creswell, will almost come itself, and the others will follow in due time. H.

C——, Ga., July, 1871.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

I see from reading April number of your paper that the prepayment of postage on newspapers is interesting some of your correspondents. This is an important move, in my opinion, in the right direction. The Department has had little idea of the difficulty postmasters have to collect postage on newspapers, especially in small country offices, the postage on weeklies being only 5 cents per quarter. It is too small a business to require attention, therefore it is neglected, and the result is that post-masters often advance the postage and consume their small salaries. If paid by publisher, under proper rules and regulations, the revenue from newspapers would be increased at least 10 per cent., and postmasters saved a great deal of trouble and vexation. Publishers, as your correspondent in April number of MAIL suggests, can easily collect the postage while collecting subscription, and as Post-master from Jefferson, O., remarks, the government can furnish prepaid wrappers or fractional stamps to publishers. I trust this subject will be kept before the public until the needed change is made, and all newspaper postage is required to be paid at mailing office. K.

W—— H——, Vt., July, 1871.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL:

I subscribe to all "Outsider" says on prepaying all postage, etc. His is the best plan yet offered, I think. But go the whole hog, and reduce the registry fee to six cents. I think it sure that five letters to one would then be registered. When those reforms are ushered in the Postmaster's life will be a much easier thing, and Uncle Sam will get more pay. I tell you there is and will be much, very much loss, as the laws are now, on postage. Every little while something comes unpaid, and no one to pay the postage. Now, let there be a fine on any and all postmasters that let anything whatever go off with postage unpaid, and fix it so it can be collected. I will pay all of my taxes readily. I do not send any matter now unpaid, and no one can lawfully, only editors, and to the franked heads. Off with all such, I say, and I have been in office long enough to know of what I speak. J. M. F.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommeadatina of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasnre in publishing also the follnwing from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and iadorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official nrders and instructinns, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal nperations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign cnuntries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

International Postal Money Order System.

It is with great pleasure we announnce the success of the very efficient and zealous Snperiateadent of the Money Order System, Dr. C. F. MACDONALD, in negotiating a treaty with Great Britain for an International Postal Money Order System. The treaty has been signed by both the contracting powers, and will take effect on the first of October next. The necessary regulations and instructions of the Postmaster General have not yet been issued, bnt they will be in time for sach postmasters as require their use to make themselves familiar with them.

From Great Britain Dr. Macdonald proceeded to Germany, where negotiations have been opened for a simdar treaty, which, considering the liberal view of the German government on postal matters, will no donbt be successful.

Additional Money Order Offices.

About 370 additional money order offices were put in operation on the 1st inst. These, with the 2,076 before in operation, make 2,446. This very efficieat system of making remittances by mail is thus gradually extending, but much too slowly to satisfy the demands of our far more rapidly increasing population. The great want of the day, postally considered, is some means by which small remittances may be made, by those living in sparsely-settled districts, to publishers and others whose wares and goods cannot be brought within the reach of purchasers by their local traders.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Boxes from the topic of the first letter we take up. Whether the bolder of a lock-box should carry his key, or whether he may refuse to do so and compel the postmaster to look into the box half a dozen times a day? The questiua is one betweea the postmaster and the box-holder, one for wbich there is no law nor regulation. But it would seem there is an implied agreement that tha holder shall carry his key, else why should he taks one? The furnishing of lock-boxes is for the purpose of relieving the postmaster in the delivery of mail matter, and the box-holder is waste of time waiting for his turn to be served. The postmaster should fulfill his part of the compact by putting all mail matter in the box, the box-holder his by carrying his key with him to the post office. While a postmaster is aot justified in retaining mail matter in a box already rented, he would ho justified in refusing to rent a lock-box unless the party would agree to use his key, or he might take from the box-holder a specific written order to deliver all mail matter for him in the box; this will constitute a delivery sufficieat to relieve the postmaster from cause of complaint should he then refuse to "run his hands dowa intn lock-boxes after it."..... We cannot tell why it takes from one to two moaths for offices in the vicinity of Dutchess Couaty, N. Y., to get registered package envelopes from the Department. Firstly: Does it? Secoadly: Are the requisitioas properly made, in accordance with Section 34 of Regulations of 1866, and Section 7, Registration Regulatioas of 1868?..... We are asked "Why can't we have Retura Registered Letter Receipts to Canada?" The "can't we" may be positive or saggestive. f positive, we would reply, because there is ao regulation to that effect; if suggestive, the suggestioa is a good nne. The practice is already in force with Germany and Switzerlaad, and probably will be, in time, with all the cnuatries between which registered letters are frequeat..... We have now a letter from ths "Sunny South"—a stereotyped phrase—wherein we are asked "Why not devote a column to the interests nf route agents? They have no orgaa." We do devote not only a column, but many columns, to route agents; aad the MAIL is their nrgan, if they will make use of it. The list of post offices is of great interest to route agents, and if each sgeut would study it carefully, and "make a note" of sach offices as are supplied by his route, a great deal of mail matter that is aow sent "kiting"—sometimes belag returned to the sender, sometimes reachiag the Dead Letter Office, and often "disappearing entirely from the face of the earth"—would reach its proper destination. We will be glad tn bear from ronte ageats oa any matters of interest beyond what we already publish.....

Above we have noticed a complaint against box-hnlders for not carryiag their keys, and we reach now a complaiat against persoas calling from the street for their mail matter, with the inquiry, "What is a postmaster to do in such cases?" We might curtly say, "Do as he pleases." Tha street is aot the post office, and the proper place to apply for mail matter is at the place or places set apart for its delivery. Unless these are inconveniently located and difficult of access, ao oae should complain if a postmaster will not establish a delivery on the sidewalk or at the curbstoae. Of course exceptions must be made in cases of old or feeble persons and ladies—for all postmasters are, or should be, courteously inclined. We would aot hlama a postmaster who should refuse to leave bis office to deliver mail matter to a hearty, healthy man, who drives up to his door and calls out, as we have knowa many to do, in a lond, aathoritative tone, for it. Thia is not a part of a postmaster's duty. But he must use his own judgment in "doing about it."

The Railway Postal Service.

A sketch of the Railway Postal Service will not be without interest to the readers of the MAIL, coasidering the present extent and rapid growth of that service. The materials at hand for such a sketch are too meagre for a full history; they are amply sufficient for an interesting chronological aotice.

We find in the UNITED STATES MAIL for October, 1860—the first number of this welcome and indispensable visitor to the Postmaster—a notice of the germ of the present Railway Postal System.

It is stated in this number that "The Postmaster-General, desirous of extending aad improving the mail facilities of the country, * * * is engaged in trying to effect an arrangement with the railroad companies between New York and Boston, by which the great Southern mails shall continne on east, as soon as they arrive in New York, instead of remaining in the latter city until the following day, as at present. The plan in contemplation is, to start a mail train from New York at 8 o'clock P. M., or directly after the arrival of the Southern mail by the Amboy route, arriviag in Boston at 4 or 5 o'clock the following morning.

"The great advaatages of such an arrangement will be readily comprehended. * * * The Boston merchants will, for all business purposes, get thair Southern letters twenty-four hoars earlier than at present. Other eastern cities are also largely interested in the proposed improvement.

"Since the thing has been started, we do not see how it can be abandoned; and if it is, we are satisfied that the Postmaster-General will see to it that the fault shall not rest with the Post-Office Department."

In the MAIL for the next moath (November, 1860), we find a notice of which the following is the close: "A contract has since been made with the railroad companies to run a train hy way of Hartford and Springfield, leaving New York at 8 P. M. We understand that this arrangement is to take effect nn the 26th inst." The 26th day of November, 1860, may therefnre be coasidered the birthday of the Railway Postal System. Nnt ao much because it was the day on which a change was made in schedule time to maka connectioa in mail transportatioa, for this had frequently been doae before, but because it was a recogaitioa by a great railway corporatioa of the necessities of the people, and of harmonious actioa betweea that compaay and the Post-Office Department. Joseph Holt was then Postmaster General. He was succeeded for a few months hy Horatio King. Montgomery Blair, who succeeded Mr. King, was aot less eaergetic than Mr. Holt in perfecting arrangemeats to expedite the carrying of the mails between our large cities. We find in the MAIL for December, 1861, a notice of new mail arraagements, by which mail matter left Washington at 5 P. M., arrived at New York at 4 A. M., "in season to cnntinue directly on East, Nortb and West, reaching Boston and other large cities the same afteraoon. * * * The 11 P. M. train from New York is intended to, and doea connect with the aight mail trains arriving from the East and North, so that letters starting from Boston at 2 P. M., aad Albany 4:35 P. M., are in Washington next morning at the usual breaklast hour."

This was a very great improvement, as it secured two mails a day instead of oae.

Ia the spring of 1862, Hon. Schuyler Colfax introdneed into the House of Represeatatives "A Bill to secure the speedy transportation of the mails." Ths main provision of this bill was, "That all companies, corporations or persoas having nr employing locomotives or cars tor the transportation of merchandisa or passengers for hire, * * * are required, upoa demaad by the Post-Office Department, to receive and transport tho mails of tha Uaited States aad postal sgents in charge thereof * * * and to deliver such mails according to their destinatioa aloag the line of sucb road or route."

We do not find that any actioa was takea on this bill, probably because the country at that time was husily eagaged in "severely letting alone" the Southera Confederacy. But it shows a step forward in the Postal Railway System.

We aext find in the MAIL for Apr.l, 1864, a notice "that the Department have aow uader coasideratioa a plan for the establishment, on the priacipal railroad routes of 'post-office cars,' in which letters for offices at the termini, aad on the line of the road, may be assorted aad mails made up in traasit. * * * Among other advantages which will be thereby secured, is one which will ba duly appreciated by the merchants and other inhabitaats of our large cities, namely, the sorting of their letters on the cars, which will insure their delivery at an earlier hour, by saviag the time which would accessarily be consumed in sorting them after their arrival at the Post Office, as is now doae. Large and commodious cars, fitted with every coaveaieace for the operatioas of the clerks appointed for duty in this branch of tha service, will be placed oa the 'through' trains."

We do not discover any specific authority of law for establishing this service, but presume sufficieat was found in the power of the Postmaster-General to provide for the carriaga of the mail on all post roads.

In May we find a notice that "one of the aew cars fitted up as a traveling post office, * * * will be placed on the route betwcen Washiagtoa and New York within a day or two for the purpose of makiag a trial trip, or a series of trial trips."

We find no further notice of this experimeat until October, when we learn that "The traveliag post office is aow in regular operatioa between New York and Washingtoa, and its operation is so far successful as to give promise of the most important and beaeficial results from the geaeral adoptioa of the system. Arraagemeats are now being made, under the direction of A. N. Zevely, Esq., Third Assistaat Postmaster-General, by which the new distributing cars will be furnished on the Erie, New York Ceatral, Hudsoa River, New Havea and other railroads."

The official distance between Washiagtoa aad New York is 232 miles, and this is the extent of railway postal service in September, 1864.

The report of the Postmaster-General for 1864 contains quite an extensive notice of "railway post offices." He speaks of the experiments between Washington aad New York, and says that it is found that the transmission of letters is expedited from twelve to twenty-four hours, and that similar experiments have been made on routes from Chicago, Illinois, to Clinton, Davenport and Dubuque, Iowa.

He further states that ths railway companies have generally responded favorably to the request to furnish the necessary car facilities.

Ia January, we learn that the "lines in operation were those between New York and Washington (232 miles), Chicago and Davenport (183 miles), Chicago and Clinton (138 miles), and Chicago and Freeport (121 miles); and that the advantages in expediting letters have been sufficiently tested to justify the hope of a successful issue."

The aggregate of railway postal service in December, 1864, was 674 miles.

The Postmaster-General, in his report for 1865, says of the railway postal offices: "The result, so far, encourages the hope that the system, by accelerating the transmission of correspondence, and lessening the aumber of distributing offices, will be of permaneat advantage to the postal interests of the country."

In June, 1868, we fiad aaother notice of the railway postal service, as follows: "The mail service by railway postal cars is beiag rapidly extended. On the 1st of July next it is proposed to establish postal car service on the Hndsoa River Railroad, connecting at Albany with the New York Ceatral road direct to Buffalo. * * * An additional line between New York and Bostoa is to be established. * * * Arrangements are being made for two daily lines between Bostoa and Portland and Portland and Bangor, and the establishmeat of this service will complete a coatinuous railway post office line from Bangor to Washington, and also west to Toledo, Ohio."

We pass now to the Report of the Postmaster-General for the yeor ending June 30, 1870, where we learn that tha aumber of railway post office lines in operation on that day was forty-one, exteading in the aggregate over 8,252 miles of railroad sad steamboat service. An increase of four lines and 1,051 miles ove the preceding yaar. The aumber of clerks was 375. In addition to this, between that date and ths publication of the report the service was established from Omaha to Ogdea, 1,032 miles. Making 9,284 miles in December, 1870, against 674 in December and 232 in September, 1864.

By act of March 3, 1864, Congress recognized the railway post office, hy providing that the "Postmaster-General may appoint clerks, for the purpose of assorting and distributing the mail in railway post offices."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Daily Papers.—G. A. G., M——, Ala.—Daily papers caanot he delivered free, whether deposited for local delivery or for mailing.

Post Office Directory.—H. C. H., N——, Conn.—The First Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes postmasters with directories.

Exchanges.—T. L. A., M——, Pa.—The right of exchange is limited to one copy of each publication. All over one copy are subject to postage. (Sec. 258, laws 1866.)

Returning Drop Request Letters.—F. S. P., C——, Iowa.—A drop request letter, unless prepaid mail letter postage, cannot be returned to the writer at another office free of postage.

Receiving Mail Pouches.—J. L. O., L——, Iad.—The general tenor of the instructions is that ao person uader sixteen years of age can have access to mail matter or the charge of mail pouches.

Post Office Hours.—D. P., D—— S——, Iowa.—The hours for keeping a post office open depend on the locstion and the coaveaience of the public. This is the only geaeral rule we caa give. (Sec. 27, reg. 1866.)

Dead Letters.—C. W. W., F—— C——, N. Y.—At post offices where the salsry of the postmaster is less thaa five huadred dollars, letters are to be seat to the Dead Letter Office once a month, having beea advertised ona month before. (Sec. 302, reg. 1866.)

Newspapers from Great Britain.—H. L. W., D——, Me.—Newspapers from Great Britaia should have the postage prepaid in that couatry, and they ought not to be forwarded unless it is paid. They are delivered in the Uaited States without further charge.

Delivery of Mail Bag.—A. G. B., A——, O.—A mail carrier is not required to leave his horses in order to deliver a mail into a post office. The proper way is for the carrier to make his arrival kaown, and for a clerk thea to go to tha vehicle and receive the bog. (Sec. 80, reg 1866.)

Registration.—S. W., T——, O.—The return registered letter bill should have the place and date of mailing entered at the mailing office on the first two blank lines following the instructioas on the bill, and the date of reception at the office of destination on the third blank line should be entered at that office.

Time that papers should be kept in a box.—G. K. D., M——, N. Y.—Papers should be kept in a box one month at least, aad longer if the holder of the box requires it. If the box is filled they can be tied in a package, laid away, and a memorandum slip put in the box, so that the owaer would have notice to call tor them.

Mail Carrier Collecting Letters along His Route.—H. F. S., B——, Vt.—A mail carrier has the right to receive letters aloug his route, aad it is his duty to do so if delivered to him more thaa a mile from a post office; but he must hand them into the first post office at which he arrives. (Secs. 408 and 469, reg. 1866.)

Free Delivery of Newspapers, etc.—H. H., N—— B——, N. Y.—1. A weekly paper deposited in the office acarcst the place of publicatioa for delivery to subscribers from that office, should be delivered free. (Act of July 27, 1863, Sec. 3.) Packages of silks, poplins, etc., must be charged at letter rates, unless seat as samples, when they should be rated as miscellaneous matter. (Sectioa 222, laws 1866.)

Position as Postal Clerk.—W. F. D., N—— M——, Ind.—It is aot in the course of our busiaess to tell how to get a position as postal clerk, for the laws and regulatioas are silent on the subject; but we presume the way is to apply to the Postmaster-General, aad turnish him such recommendations as you can get, and then you may be appointed, and may not.

Clubs of Papers.—E. S. H., G——, N. Y.—If any of the papers coming to a post office in a club are aot taken out, or are refused, they should be treated like other regular papers refused or aot claimed. (Sec. 392, reg. 1866.) But you should not deliver any of the papers uatil the postage on the whole package is paid for one quarter in advance. (Sec. 311, reg. 1866.)

Circulating Library Books Delivered from a Post Office, etc.—C. A. F., H——, N. H.—1. Circulating library books and papers from newsdealers, if deposited ia a post office for delivery, are chargeable with postage; but if left in a store where a post office is kept, witbout being deposited in the post office, they would not be. 2. The postage on manuscript for books is two cents for four ounces; it for periodicals or newspapers, letter postage aust be paid. (Sec. 244, reg. 1866.)

Postage.—D. D. G., F——, Pa.—Notices of taxes, and such like papers, filled in with manuscript writing, require letter postage.... S. C. F., T—— C——, Mich.—I. Snuff is subject to letter postage. 2. There is no book of laws and regulations of 1871. There have been postal laws passed siace the edition of 1866, but they do aot change the rate of postage on snuff. 3. "With open sides or ends" includes all mail matter of the third class, except seeds. (Sec. 89, reg. 1866.).... M. H. H., W——, Vt.—Tea small Sunday-school papers, if issued less frequeatly than once a week, aad sent to one address, would be subject to postage at the rate of one ceat for each four ounces on each package.

Postmaster Taking Mails, etc.—I. H. S., R——, Pa., and others.—1. The instructions neither forbid nor expressly allow a postmaster to go to another office through which his own office is supplied, and get the mail matter for his office. It is quite frequently done la sparsely settled districts, where mails are only carried once or twice a week, and as is such districts the mail matter la not very great in amouat, and a delivery sooaer than by contract time would often be very desirable, we judga there is no objection to the practice. 2. It is not contemplated by the regulations that a mail carrier who carries n horseback should sign receipts for registered package envelopes. Such envelopes bould have a blank receipt affixed, and theu ba locked in the pouch, the blank receipt to ba signed hy the postmaster at the office where the pouch is next opened. (Sec. 2, Regu. Reg. 1868.)

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographe, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, hook packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 3 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By LAW mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) except those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XI., NO. 12. NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER, 1871. WHOLE NO. 132.

[Official.]

Money-Order Convention with Great Britain.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17, 1871.

SIR—I send you, herewith, for publication in the next issue of your paper, a printed copy of the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, establishing an exchange of money orders between the two countries. Very respectfully,

Your obed't. servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. Mail.

CONVENTION

BETWEEN THE GENERAL POST OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE GENERAL POST OFFICE OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

The General Post Office of the United States of America and the General Post Office of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being desirous of establishing an exchange of money orders between the two countries, the undersigned, duly authorized for that purpose, have agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

There shall be a regular exchange of money orders between the two countries. The maximum of each order is fixed at ten pounds sterling, when issued in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and, when issued in the United States, at fifty dollars in the national paper currency of the latter country.

ARTICLE II.

The British Post Office shall have the power to fix the rates of commission on all money orders issued to the United Kingdom; and the United States Post Office shall have the same power in regard to all money orders issued in the United States. Each office shall communicate to the other its tariff of charges or rates of commission shall be established under this convention, and these rates shall, in all cases, be paid in advance by the remitter, and shall not, in any event, be repayable. It is understood, moreover, that each office is authorized to suspend, temporarily, the exchange of money orders in case the course of exchange, or any other circumstance, should give rise to abuses, or cause detriment to the postal revenue.

ARTICLE III.

Each country shall keep the commission charged on all money orders issued within it, but shall pay to the other country one per cent. on the total amount of such orders.

ARTICLE IV.

No money order shall include a fractional part of a penny or of a cent.

ARTICLE V.

The service of the postal money-order system between the two countries shall be performed exclusively by the agency of offices of exchange. On the part of the United States, the office of exchange shall be New York, and on the part of the United Kingdom, London.

ARTICLE VI.

Any person in the United States desiring to remit to the United Kingdom a sum of money within the limits prescribed by Article I., may pay it to any post office in the United States designated for such purpose from time to time, by the Postmaster General of that country. Such person shall, at the same time, give the name and address of the person to whom the amount is to be paid in the United Kingdom, and his own name and address. Any person in the United Kingdom desiring to remit to the United States a sum of money within the same limits, may pay it into any money-order office of the United Kingdom, giving, at the same time, the name and exact address of the person to whom the amount is to be paid in the United States, and his own name and address. The receiving postmaster in either country shall, in accordance with the rules established by his postal administration, notify every such payment to the dispatching exchange office. The postmaster of New York, upon the receipt of every notification of that kind, shall make out and forward to the payee in the United Kingdom a money order, payable in sterling at the post office in that country designated by the remitter of the order, it being understood that the money orders so remitted shall be sent, in the first instance, to the comptroller of the money-order office in London, and shall not be subject to postage.

ARTICLE VII.

By every mail the exchange office of each country shall send to the exchange office of the other country a certified list of all the orders issued in that country, and received since the dispatch of the previous list. As soon as any such list shall have reached the New York office, and been verified, this office shall make out inland money orders in favor of the payees, for the amount specified in the list, and shall promptly forward them to the payees or to the paying office, in conformity with the regulations existing in the United States for the payment of money orders. The list forwarded by the United Kingdom shall be accompanied by the relative letters of advice of the orders entered therein, together with the orders themselves, as already settled in Article VI. After comparison with the list, the advices shall be dispatched to the offices drawn upon, and the letters inclosing the orders posted for delivery. The lists, by means of which each office of exchange communicates with the other, shall be according to the Forms A and B annexed.

ARTICLE VIII.

The lists dispatched from each office of exchange shall be numbered consecutively, commencing with No. 1, at the beginning of each year, and the entries, also, in these lists, shall have consecutive numbers, those in the lists from the United Kingdom commencing each calendar month with No. 1. Of each list dispatched from New York a duplicate shall be sent, which duplicate shall, after being verified in the British office, be returned to New York.

ARTICLE IX.

Should any list fail to be received in due course the dispatching office shall, on receiving information to that effect, transmit, without delay, a duplicate of the list, duly certified as such.

ARTICLE X.

Each office of exchange shall promptly communicate to the other the correction of any simple error which it may discover in the verification of the lists. When the lists shall show irregularities which the receiving office shall not be able to rectify that office shall apply for an explanation from the dispatching office; and this explanation shall be afforded without delay.

ARTICLE XI.

Duplicate orders shall only be issued by the postal administration of the country on which the original orders were drawn, and in conformity with the regulations established or to be established in that country.

ARTICLE XII.

At the close of each quarter, three copies of an account shall be prepared and transmitted by the office at London, exhibiting the balance found due on the exchange of order during the quarter; which balance, after proper verification, shall, if due by the United States office, be paid at London; but if due by the British office, it shall be paid at New York, and always in the money of the country to which the payment is made. If, pending the settlement of an account, one of the two postal administrations shall ascertain that it owes the other a balance exceeding one thousand pounds sterling, the indebted administration shall promptly remit the approximate amount of such balance to the credit of the other. This account, and the letters which accompany such intermediate remittances, shall be in accordance with the Forms C, D and E, annexed to this convention.

ARTICLE XIII.

Until the two General Post Offices shall consent to an alteration, it is agreed that, in all matters of account relative to money orders which shall result from the execution of the present convention, the pound sterling of Great Britain shall be considered as equivalent to four dollars and eighty-six cents of the gold coin of the United States.

ARTICLE XIV.

Each exchange office shall certify its orders to the other, in amounts designated in the denomination of the money both of the dispatching and receiving country, at the rate of conversion established upon the basis of gold by Article XIII. of this convention. This conversion shall be checked at the receiving office of exchange.

ARTICLE XV.

All payments for money orders, whether to or by the public, if not in gold, shall be made to the postal establishment, or vice versa.

ARTICLE XVI.

The value, in gold coin of the United States, of deposits in paper money made in that country for payment in Great Britain, shall be determined at the exchange office of New York, according to the rate of premium on gold, on the day of receipt at that office of notification of such deposits. On the other hand, the value, in United States paper currency, of money orders certified in the lists sent from the exchange office of London from the exchange office of New York, shall be determined (also at New York) in accordance with the premium on gold on the day of the receipt of such lists.

ARTICLE XVII.

Orders which shall not have been paid within twelve calendar months from the month of issue shall become void, and the sums received shall accrue to and remain at the disposal of the country of origin. The British office shall therefore enter to the credit of the United States, in the quarterly account, all money orders entered in the lists received from the United States which remain unpaid at the end of the period specified. On the other hand, the United States office shall, at the close of each month, transmit to the British office, for entry in the quarterly account, a detailed statement of all orders included in the lists dispatched from the latter office which, under this article, become void.

ARTICLE XVIII.

Repayment of orders to remitters shall not be made until an authorization for such repayment shall first have been obtained by the country of issue from the country where such orders were payable; and the amounts of the repaid orders shall be duly credited to the former country in the quarterly account. It is the province of each postal administration to determine the manner in which repayment to the remitter is to be made.

ARTICLE XIX.

The orders issued by each country on the other shall be subject, as regards payment, to the regulations which govern the payment of inland orders of the country on which they are drawn.

ARTICLE XX.

The General Post Office in each country shall be authorized to adopt any additional rules (if not repugnant to the foregoing) for the greater security against fraud, or for the better working of the system generally. All such additional rules, however, must be promptly communicated to the Post Office of the other country.

ARTICLE XXI.

The present convention shall take effect on the first day of October next, and shall continue in force until twelve months after the date at which one of the contracting parties shall have notified to the other its intention to terminate it.

Done in duplicate, and signed in London on the thirtieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and in Washington on the twenty-seventh day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one.

I hereby approve the aforegoing convention, and in testimony thereof, I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

U. S. GRANT.

[Seal of the United States of America.]
By the President:
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.
WASHINGTON, July 27, 1871.

INSTRUCTIONS TO POSTMASTERS RELATIVE TO THE SYSTEM OF POSTAL MONEY ORDERS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, WHICH, BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT, IS TO GO INTO OPERATION OCTOBER 1, 1871.

1. The exchange of postal orders between the two countries is to be effected through the agency of two post offices, termed "international exchange offices." The international exchange office on the part of the United States is New York, and that on the part of the United Kingdom is London.

2. Certain money-order post offices in this country, designated for the purpose by the Postmaster-General, are authorized to issue money orders on the postmaster at New York, payable to beneficiaries in the United Kingdom, and to pay orders issued by that postmaster for sums remitted by the Postal Department of the United Kingdom for payment to beneficiaries in the United States. Hence, a postmaster in either country cannot draw an international money order for an amount deposited with him directly upon a postmaster in the other, but must draw the same upon the international exchange office of his own country. An international postal order must not be drawn for a larger sum than fifty dollars in United States currency, and must not contain a fractional part of a cent. The fees for the issue of international postal orders are as follows, viz.: On orders not exceeding $10, twenty-five cents; over $10 and not exceeding $30, fifty cents; over $30 and not exceeding $50, seventy-five cents; over $50 and not exceeding $40, one dollar; over $40 and not exceeding $50, one dollar and twenty-five cents. No other currency than United States or national-bank notes can be received or paid.

3. The issuing postmaster must not undertake to decide definitively upon the actual value in United States gold coin of a certain sum in currency for which an international order is issued. He is at liberty, however, to advise the remitter as to its approximate value, which may be found to differ materially from the real value, as the latter is to be computed upon the basis of the premium upon gold on the day of the receipt of the order by the postmaster at New York. Hence, this Department cannot undertake, on behalf of a remitter in this country, to pay a determinate sum in gold in the United Kingdom. As the premium on gold is variable, it is evident that an international order issued for a sum in United States currency may, when received at the exchange office of New York, yield a sum in gold greater or less than that considered at the office of issue as the equivalent of such order. For the same reason, the value in United States currency of an order in gold, certified by the exchange office of London, to the exchange office of New York, would depend upon the premium on gold on the day of the receipt of the list containing such certified order. This Department, therefore, can only agree to cause payment to be made to a beneficiary in Great Britain of the gold value of any international postal order issued for an amount in United States currency, and to pay to a beneficiary in this country the currency value of an international order in gold from Great Britain. To guard against misapprehension, postmasters will be careful to explain this point fully to remitters and to payees.

4. A special form of application (Form No. I B) must be furnished to the applicant for an international postal order payable in Great Britain. On this form he must enter all the particulars of the amount, names, addresses &c., and must state the full name and exact residence of the payee, giving the town or village, and county. From the items contained in such application, the issuing postmaster will fill up the international postal order and coupon, both of which he will, by the next outgoing mail, dispatch, without separating them, to the postmaster at New York. The corresponding certificate of the same number and date he will deliver, when completed, to the remitter, as a receipt for the amount paid in by the latter. No "advice" is used at the issuing office in this international system, inasmuch as the order, instead of being delivered to the remitter for transmission, is forwarded directly by the issuing postmaster to the "exchange" office at New York. The particulars of the order are to be entered in the register of international orders issued, and the application must be retained on file. The general rules in regard to issuing domestic orders contained in the book of money-order instructions are to be observed in the issue of international postal orders, in so far as these rules are applicable. The postmaster, however, must refuse to issue an order payable to any person, if the surname and the initial letter of that person's name are not furnished by the applicant, unless the payee be a peer or a bishop, in which case his ordinary title is sufficient. If the payee be a firm, the usual designation of such firm will suffice, such as "Baring Bros.," "Smith & Son," "Jones & Co.;" but the mere term "Messrs.," such as "Messrs. Rivington," or the name of a company trading under a title which does not contain all the names of the persons composing such company, as, for example, "The Carron Company," must not be accepted as sufficient by the issuing postmaster, who will decline to issue an order on the United Kingdom in favor of such payee, as payment thereof would be refused in that country.

5. When the international postal order and coupon are received by the postmaster at New York, the latter will stamp thereon the date of the receipt, and insert the items to be filled in by him, viz.: "Premium on gold the day of receipt at New York;" "Value of order in United States gold;" "Value of order in sterling;" "Date and number of list in which order was certified to the United Kingdom;" "Current number of certified order." When the coupon has been completed by the postmaster at New York, he will return it to the issuing postmaster, who will place it on file with the corresponding application for reference. In case the remitter of the order desires information as to the value thereof in gold when received at New York, the amount transmitted, or the date of transmission. It is expected that the issuing postmaster will cheerfully and promptly comply with a request of the remitter for information as to any of these points.

6. It is the duty of the postmaster at New York to enter the particulars of each British international order issued in this country, and received by him since his last previous dispatch to Great Britain, in a blank form, called a "list of international postal orders," which list he transmits, by the next transatlantic mail, to the exchange office at London, together with his certificate that the several amounts of these orders have been duly received in the United States, for payment in the United Kingdom to the persons named in that list. He also forwards, at the same time, a money order drawn by him, in sterling, in favor of, and addressed to, each payee mentioned in the list, which order the exchange office of London undertakes to send, free of postage, to the payee. The postmaster at New York, therefore, retains on file all international orders drawn on him by postmasters in the United States, but forwards to the United Kingdom a descriptive list thereof, together with corresponding orders, payable in sterling, made out by him in favor of the several beneficiaries. The exchange office at London, in like manner, transmits, by each transatlantic mail, to the postmaster at the exchange office at New York, a similar list of international orders for sums received in the United Kingdom for payment to beneficiaries in the United States. The receiving exchange office of New York immediately issues an order in favor of each beneficiary for an amount in United States currency equivalent to that in sterling named in the certified list, which order is payable by the money-order office nearest his place of residence, and is transmitted to the postmaster at such office. It is provided by the convention that each exchange office shall, in the certified lists, state the amounts of the orders, in the denominations of the money of the dispatching and of the receiving country, and that, in the transaction of the international money-order business, the pound sterling of Great Britain shall be considered as equivalent in value to four dollars and eighty-six cents of the gold coin of the United States.

7. Upon the receipt of an international order, issued by the postmaster at New York, upon the postmaster of a money-order office in this country, the latter will enter the particulars thereof in his register of international orders received. He will then send a notification (Form No. 2 B) to the payee to apply for payment of the order in person, or by his duly authorized agent, who must file, with the paying postmaster, his written authority from the payee to receive payment of the order, and execute a receipt therefor, and must also prove his identity if required to do so. Such written authority, when given by a payee who does not reside within the delivery of the office of payment, should be executed in the presence of the postmaster of his locality, and should bear a certificate from the latter to that effect, as well as the impression of his office stamp. The date of payment must immediately be stamped upon the international order, and likewise entered opposite the record thereof in the register, and the paid order must be forwarded to the Department, as a voucher, with the usual statement of international money-order business.

8. Whenever the remitter of an international money order, payable in the United Kingdom, makes application to the issuing postmaster for repayment of the amount thereof, the latter should immediately communicate the fact to this Department, whereupon, if the order has not already been certified by the exchange office in New York to the exchange office of London for payment, the issuing postmaster will be authorized to repay the amount of such order. But if it has been so certified, this Department will notify the Post Department of Great Britain that application has been made for its repayment, and, should it not have been paid in that country at the date of the receipt of the notification, it will be recertified to the exchange office of New York, in due course of business, for repayment. Authority will then be given the issuing postmaster to repay the same. Orders certified to the Post Department of either country, which for any reason cannot be paid within twelve months from the month of issue, become invalid, and will be recertified to the country of issue for repayment, or other disposal, in accordance with the laws and regulations of that country. Postmasters will, therefore, take care to forward promptly to this Department all invalid orders of this kind, with their weekly statements containing a description thereof.

9. In case the postmaster who issues an international order does not receive, after a sufficient lapse of time, the corresponding coupon thereof, duly filled up and stamped by the postmaster at New York, the former should send him a letter of inquiry on the subject, with the request that, if the order had not been received at the exchange office of New York, the latter would transmit to the issuing office a certificate to that effect. Upon the receipt of such a document, the postmaster who issued the original should draw and transmit a new order in lieu thereof, for the same amount, and should write across its face, and across the coupon, in red ink, the words "In lieu of British International order No. , not received by the postmaster at New York." The certificate of loss should be carefully filed, but it is not necessary to make out and deliver a second receipt to the remitter.

10. The postmaster at every office authorized to issue and to pay British international orders will be allowed to retain a fixed sum, termed "British International reserve," so that he may be always ready to meet orders of that kind drawn upon him. Whenever the amount of money in his hands, received from the issue of British international orders, exceeds such reserve by one hundred dollars or more, he will transfer the excess from the "British international money-order account" to the "domestic money-order account." On the other hand, whenever the amount upon to pay British international orders to an amount exceeding that of the British international funds in his hands, he will transfer from the domestic to the British International account a sum of money equal to the amount of his reserve, and, if necessary, in order to enable him to pay these orders. Every transfer to and from either account must be duly entered in the British International weekly statement and cash-book, but no entry thereof is to be made in the postage account, nor is any notification of transfer to be sent to the Department.

11. The British International money-order accounts must be kept separate and distinct from the Swiss and the domestic money-order accounts, as well as from those of postage. The blank books to be used, which will be furnished by the Department, are:

First. A register of British International money orders issued, in which must be recorded, daily, the particulars of all such orders issued on the postmaster at New York.

Second. A register of British International money order received from that postmaster.

Third. A British International cash-book, showing the debit and credit transactions.

These books are kept in the same manner as those employed for the domestic money-order business.

Statements of the British International business transacted each week must also be made up every Saturday evening, and transmitted to the Department, in accordance with the regulations established for weekly returns of the domestic money-order business.

12. Postmasters will receive for transacting the British international money-order business the following rate of compensation, viz.: One-fourth of one per cent. on the gross amount of orders issued and of orders paid. But the annual salary or compensation of a postmaster, from all sources, cannot, except in the case of the postmaster at New York, exceed four thousand dollars.

13. The domestic money-order regulations in regard to incidental expenses, and to the transfer of funds and blanks from a late to a newly-appointed postmaster, are to be followed in the transaction of the British international money-order business.

14. Attention, promptitude and accuracy on the part of postmasters are essential to the utility and success of an international money-order system.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

September 1, 1871.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Editor United States Mail:

In regard to the intolerable nuisance of the present system of collecting newspaper and periodical postage, very much has been written and said, but as yet no one seems to have suggested a plan for avoiding it that so nearly suits the case as that offered by "Advance" in your May number.

Let the rate be fixed at three cents per pound, payable in money by the publishers, and let newsdealers pay at the same rate when they mail in quantities not less than five or ten pounds. All other printed matter, books, papers, magazines, circulars, engravings, &c., to go at two cents for four ounces or fraction, to be prepaid by stamps. This would greatly simplify the rates and yield full as much revenue as is now obtained. Now is this practicable? I say yes. It will immediately relieve at least eighty-five per cent. of all the post offices in the United States of all the trouble and vexation of collecting, or rather half collecting, postage on printed matter, for not more than ten or fifteen per cent. of them are located in towns large enough to support publishing houses, and of these probably not over a dozen would be put to additional trouble on account of the change. In this city, for instance, there are published four dailies, two tri-weeklies, three or four weeklies and two or three monthlies, and to weigh their issues and collect pay of the publishers daily or weekly would not take one-tenth part of the time and labor that is required under the present arrangement. I would have a simple beam scale, costing, say two or three dollars, hung from the ceiling near the mailing room door, with a weight to draw it out of the way when not in use, and on this I would weigh each sack or parcel as it came in, keep an account of the weight and the amount collected, and at the end of the quarter account for postage collected in money on so many pounds of printed matter. Really the labor attending this plan seems trifling compared with that of keeping the records and collecting the postages of subscribers, to say nothing of the irritation and constant vexation attending the faithful performance of the duties now ordered. As for the expense, I venture the assertion that there is not a postmaster in the land, where the expense would have to be incurred, but would gladly pay the cost of the scale for the sake of getting the change made. At the largest offices the Postmaster-General might authorize special arrangements for weighing the issues of publishers by the ton on hay-scales or otherwise, as might be most expeditious and convenient. Let a heavy penalty attach to publishers for any attempt to smuggle matter into the mail cars without passing it through the post-office and paying for it; and let half or the whole of the fine go to the informer, and they will not be apt to try that little game often.

One difficulty in the way of this plan lies in the fact that it would interfere with the present system of estimating and fixing the salaries and allowances of postmasters. It would, of course, deprive all offices of the commissions allowed for collecting newspaper, etc., postages; but it is safe to estimate that the number and weight of papers, etc., delivered, will bear about the same proportion to the amount of stamps canceled, in all the offices in the Union, and the Department would only have to increase the commission on stamps canceled, enough to make the pay of the postmasters about the same as now. I think it can be safely assumed that the entire class of subscribers and the whole Post Office Department would favor the change. And now shall such a great public good be denied us simply because the comparatively very small class of publishers urge that it would not be as convenient and profitable to them as the present loose, because impracticable, system? They would actually have to pay for the use of the United States mails the same as any other class, and so they should.

IMPROVEMENT.

P—— G——, Ark., July, 1871.

EDITOR U. S MAIL:

Dear Sir—I desire to say a word or two in regard to prepayment of all mailable matter (except that known by franked), and in saying to you that I am in favor of prepaying newspapers before mailing, I feel confident I speak the opinion and desire of every postmaster I am acquainted with, and I have corresponded with a great many on the subject.

It seems to me that it can be no disadvantage to the publisher, for when he sends a package of papers off regular each issue, he can pay the postage by the ounce, and by that means it would come cheaper to the subscriber.

The subscriber is compelled to pay the postage on his paper, and he had as soon send the subscription price and the postage all at once as to pay the postage quarterly at the office of delivery.

No one but postmasters can imagine the trouble of collecting the postage on newspapers, and no postmaster would complain only it does seem that it could be remedied so very simply by compelling the publisher to pay the postage when mailed, and if he chooses, let him add on his subscription price enough to cover postage.

Hoping the day is not far distant when all mail matter will be sent prepaid (or lawfully franked), I remain, very respectfully,

J. R. S. Postmaster.

THE Dead-Letter Office is as forcible an instrument for the conviction of errors, though perhaps rarely of crime, as our courts of law, and not infrequently brings the counsels of the foolish, if not the wicked, to nought. We are possibly using language a little too strong to be consonant with the case we have in mind, but intemperate charges against public officials and public offices, and hot-tempered refusals to admit the possibility of mistake on one's own part deserve strong reprehension. These qualities were displayed by a gentleman of this city, who, missing tidings of a check he was sure in his own mind that he had dispatched by mail to Woonsocket, went to the Providence post office, and made violent charges of delinquency in some part of the department. The return of the letter inclosing the check from the Washington Dead-Letter Office confuted this foolish crimination, by showing that the negligence of the person in question had directed the letter to himself, and at Worcester, Mass., instead of Woonsocket. Do not jump too hastily to conclusions, impugning unimpeachable honesty.—Herald, Providence, R. I.

Money by Mail.

We take the following from the Report of the Postmaster-General, for the year ending June 30, 1862:

Great efforts have been made to give security to the mails. * * But the mails, despite the very general watchfulness and fidelity on the part of the employes of this department, continue to be subject to depredations.

The means of conveyance are only adapted to the primary object of the mail service—the mere transmission of intelligence. This department could not make use of strong boxes, nor adopt measures to fix accountability upon each of the multitude of agents employed in the business, such as are resorted to by the carriers of merchandise and money, without sacrificing the expedition required of a carrier of intelligence, and at the same time greatly increasing the expense necessary to the proper management of the letter business. For this reason the mails have always been and must continue to be an unsafe medium for the conveyance of money letters. The money contained in the mails creates the temptation to the robberies committed, and is, moreover, the chief cause of the loss of letters which do not contain money.

It is in my opinion very desirable, for these and many other reasons, that money should, as far as practicable, be excluded from the mails.

We give a comparison of some of the items of postal statistics for the years 1862 and 1870, showing a great increase of service. There must be a corresponding increase of risk in sending money by mail in ordinary letters, and a corresponding increase in the force of the recommendation of the then Postmaster-General that money should be excluded from the mails:

	In 1862.	In 1870.
No. of post offices	28,875	33,493
Cost of agents	$ 460,630 92	$ 1,223,939 19
Revenue	9,012,549 56	19,772,220 65
Expenditures	11,125,384 43	23,998,857 63

THIS is the last month of the quarter. We have made our page of Miscellaneous Information fuller than usual, but we could not include in it full instructions for making out the Quarterly Returns. These instructions will be found in chapters xxvii. to xxxii. of Regulations, which chapters should be read and studied now.

Postmaster-General.

Reduction af Postaga on Letters for Norway by Direct Steamer.

Arrangements have been made for the regular exchange of letters between the United States and Norway by means of the Baltic Lloyd's steamers, at a reduced postage charge of six (6) cents for each single rata of half an ounce or under, the same as chargeable on the direct letter correspondence exchanged with Germany via Stettin by tha same line of steamships.

The letters forwarded to or from Norway by this route must be fully prepaid, and will be exempt from any postage charge on delivery.

This arrangement relates to letters only, and therefore the postages to be collected on newspapers and book packets forwarded to and received from Norway by this route remain as stated in tha notice issued from this Department under date of June 21st, 1871.

Postmasters will take notice hereof, and govern themselves accordingly in levying and collecting postage on the correspondence so exchanged with Norway.

By order of the Postmaster General.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

Reduction af Letter Postage between tha United States and Germany in Closed Mail via England.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, Aug. 21, 1871.

An arrangement has just been concluded between the United States and Germany, to take effect on the 1st of October next, which reduces the rate of international postage for prepaid letters exchanged between the two countries by the closed mail via England from 10 to 7 cents for each single rate of half an ounce or under. Unpaid letters so exchanged are to be charged with double the prepaid rates; and the insufficiently paid letters with the postage for unpaid letters after deduction of the amount prepaid.

This arrangement thus establishes a uniform postage of 7 cents or 3 silbergroschen per single rata an prepaid letters exchanged between the United States and Germany, on and after the 1st of October proximo, whether transmitted via England or by the direct lines via Hamburg or Bremen.

It is particularly to ba observed that this reduction applies to letters only; so that all correspondence other than letters posted in the United States for Germany will continue subject to tha same rates of postage, and to tha same conditions of compulsory prepayment as now applicable thereto.

Postmasters will levy and collect postage accordingly on and after the 1st of October next.

By order of the Postmaster General,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

Notice to Postmasters.

This department has been notified by the postal administration of Germany that, in consequence of the definitive treaty of peace with France, the places named below, situate in Alsace and Lorraine, remain in the possession of France, viz.:

Belfort,	Welschen-Kappelen (La Chapelle sous Rougemont.)
Beaucourt,	Cirey an der Vezonze,
Boll (Bourogne),	Mars la Tour and
Brunn (Fantaine),	Moncel an der Seille.
Dattenried (Delle),
Giromagny,

Correspondence for the several places named shou'd therefore be despatched in the mails for France, subject to the same postage rates, conditions of payment, etc., as those applicable to similar correspondence addressed to other parts of France.

Postmasters will take notice of this change and levy postage accordingly.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The trials and tribulations of post office life, for which the Department provides neither relief nor regulations, are many and various. One of these forms the subject of the first letter we take up. The village newspaper is generally behind time in "putting in its appearance," and this "gives double trouble," as the subscribers commence calling "on time," and keep calling till they get their papers. Our opinion is asked in the matter. We give it in a few words. The Department has no power or concern in it, and "what can't be cured must be endured."——And now comes another trouble. The office of the writer was blown down in a tornado, and goods, papers, letters, etc., were scattered around for a mile or more, and the postmaster has no accounts or papers by which to make out his returns. He wrote to the Auditor a statement of the case, and requested him to make the account from the Auditor's books, which was about all he could do. The writer's presumption that government officials have souls like other mortals, is, however, incorrect. Government officials, as men, have souls; but, as officials, they are like corporations, without souls.——Our next tribulated postmaster delivered a letter on which three cents was due, when the owner of the letter would neither pay the postage nor return the letter, and the postmaster desires to know what we would do? We would like to do more than we would do; for we would simply pay the postage ourselves, and profit by our experience.——The next tribulated postmaster had his daughter made sick by licking the green postage stamps. This is unfortunate; but a remedy here is very simple, viz.: Don't lick the stamps. It is an objectionable practice, if not unwholesome. Provide a sponge in a saucer and keep the sponge moderately wet; or else require people to do their own licking, and thus divide up tha risk of sickness.——A new appointee, with a very evident desire to be a live postmaster, after remitting $1 for the MAIL nnd stating that he received from his predecessor "The Laws and Regulations of 1866," Post Office Directory of 1870, Money Order Regulations of 1868, asks what else is required for a knowledge of his duties? Nothing more but study and application. In reply to his inquiry for a postal map of Texas, we would say that it is not yet published.——We close with a reply to a postmaster who writes that he has a good joke, suitable for the MAIL, that we "like such things," and would like to know what it is; and if suitable in our judgment as well as his, will give it an introduction to the public and everlasting fame through the MAIL.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Boxes.—J. C., C——, Mich.—At Letter-Carrier Offices the use of a box is restricted to one family or firm. There is no such order affecting other offices.

Enclosures in Weekly County Papers.—F. E. L., C——, Mo.—Nothing but a bona fide supplement or bill for subscription may be folded in a weekly county paper without subjecting it to postage.

News Agents Returning Packages.—C. S., M——, N. Y.—There is no law allowing news agents to return papers and books to publishers without paying postage at the mailing office, and at transient rates.

Unmailable Letters.—E. W. P., U——, N. Y.—Letters so addressed that you cannot tell where to send them are "unmailable letters," and should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. (Sec. 300, reg. 1866.)

Supplements.—C. C. G., L——, Ill.—A handbill or advertisement containing a few items of news or general matter is not a genuine supplement according to postal law, but is, in plain terms, a very contemptible effort at evasion of the law.

Samples.—D. D. C., O——, N. Y.—Samples, Box Rnts and Franking, are an inexhaustible source of inquiries. And well they may be, for they are unsatisfactory and irregular. A piece of cloth not intended as a sample, and also clothing, must be charged letter postage.

Unclaimed Letters.—A. J. L., A——, N. Y.—There is a slight discrepancy in the language of the two sections (281 of laws and 391 regulations 1866), but the meaning is obvious that thirty days is the time a letter should be retained, unless the request name a shorter time.

Change in Post Office Site.—H. T., C——, C——, Texas.—The restriction on changing a post office site refers to a material change. In villages where the office is kept in a store, of a change of postmaster, the new postmaster would be allowed to move the office to the store kept by himself.

Exchanges.—F. S. V., C——, Ga.—Weekly papers may exchange equally with daily, "periodicals, magazines and newspapers which shall not exceed sixteen ounces in weight," is the language of the law. The privilege is confined to a single copy of each publication. (Sec. 258, Laws 1866.)

Salary.—R. T. W., S——, Pa.—The basis of all salaries, except of the first class, is the former mode of commission established in 1854. The method of adjusting salaries on this basis is now so well established at the department, and the special instruction to postmasters so complete, that it is hardly necessary for a postmaster to trouble himself with the basis.

Registration.—J. M, P——, Ind., and many others.—It is not possible for us to say why you do not receive registered package envelopes from the Department after you have ordered them. The requisition for them should be sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, and should contain no other matter or business than the request for envelopes.

Deposit of Funds.—J. W. H., A——, Ind.—You should deposit where you are ordered to deposit, and as soon as possible after receiving the order. You have no right to keeps proceeds till called for—doing so after being ordered to deposit may subject you to suspicion. Read Sections 280 and 284, Regulations of 1866.

Franking.—C. H. H, L——, Pa.—Assistant Assessors have the right to frank only to Assessors....Z. W., C——, Ind.—1. The persons selected by the Commissioner of Agriculture to report statistics, cannot frank to each other. 2. The reply to a request to forward letters should be sent to the postmaster at the office named in the request.

County Papers.—N. R., S——, Vt.—A paper printed and mailed out of the county where the publisher resides, cannot be called the county paper of such county, and is subject to postage.....J. D. P., R——, Cal.—A county paper may be delivered through a post office out of the county, providing the subscriber lives within the county of publication, and the office is the one where he usually receives his mail matter.

Money Orders for Europe. J. W. F., R——, Pa.—A money-order system between Switzerland and the United States is already in operation. This number of the MAIL contains the convention between the Postal Departments of the United States and Great Britain for a similar system, which will take effect the first of next March. A similar system with Germany has been agreed on, but the terms are not yet made public.

Religious Papers in Packages, etc.—G. R. C., G—— L——, Mich.—1. Small religious papers issued less frequently than once a week may be sent at the rate of 1 cent for each 4 oz., and must be delivered to subscribers under section 211, Regulations of 1866. 2. Report to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General all cases of railroads illegally carrying letters not in stamped envelopes out of the mail. 3. A catalogue of premiums to be given to subscribers of a publication is not a bona fide supplement, and subjects the publication containing it to letter postage.

Insufficient Prepayment, etc.—H. D. J., H——, Tex.—1. Letters intentionally insufficiently prepaid, should be returned to the writers, or, if that cannot be done, sent to the Dead Letter Office. 2. By Section 250, Laws of 1866, it is allowable to print or impress upon the wrapper of miscellaneous matter the card of the sender, and it has been judicially decided that an initial letter written on the wrapper is not a writing forbidden by the law. A later decision of the Department, however, subjects to letter postage papers having the initials or name of the the sender written on the wrapper.

Carrying Letters out of the Mail.—C. C. G., L——, Ill., and others.—The restriction on mail carriers carrying letters out of the mail, as provided in chapter nine of Laws of 1866, does not apply to mail messengers and carriers who receive letters to put in the mail at the next office at which they arrive, or to hand to route agents at the cars, but applies to their carrying letters not intended to pass through the post office. In other words, a mail carrier must receive a letter tendered to him more than a mile from a post office, and put this letter in the first post office at which he arrives; but he cannot carry it past that office or deliver it to the person for whom it is intended unless it relates to something conveyed at the same time. No person can regularly and as business carry letters out of the mail.

Postage—Quarterly Postage.—A. J. G., B—— B——, Cal. Quarterly postage may be paid for a year, but it must be accounted for quarterly. (Sec. 311, Reg. 1866.).... N. M', N——, Miss.—The stamped envelopes of correct amount are sufficient for letters addressed to foreign countries .... P. B., P—— S——, Pa.—Regular papers, in clubs, cannot be sent to one office and a part of them then forwarded to another office under one postage. Postage must be prepaid either at the mailing office or the office of delivery, which latter is the office to which they are addressed. None of them can then be forwarded except on prepayment at transient rates ...R. W., O——, Md.—Postage cannot be prepaid at quarterly rates on papers to foreign countries, but must be prepaid on each paper according to the rates in our Foreign Postage Table....L. P. G., D——, Ga.—Transient printed matter and newspapers cannot be forwarded except at a new postage prepaid at transient rates.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION. FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered to the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rethmo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Until January 1, 1870, letters could be registered, on payment of certain special postage rates, to France, Algeria, Corsica, Bourbon, Nice and Savoy; also to Alexandretta, and Tangiers. This, however, cannot be done at present. The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

   Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether seperate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following Islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia,

Barbadoes,	Jamaica,	St. Vincent,
Barbuda,	Montserrat,	Tobago,
Cayman (Great & Little),	Nevis,	Tortola,
	St. Christopher,	Trinidad,
Caymanbrack,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
Cuba,	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthers, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inague, Long Island, Marigruana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight 2 cents; when exceeding 1 ounce and not exceeding 2 ounces, 3 cents; when exceeding 2 ounces and not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents; and four cents for every 4 ounces or fraction thereof. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York once a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Oruba,
Coche,	Hayti,	Porto Rico,
Cnagua,	Les Saintes,	Saba,
Culebra,	Margarita,	St. Bartholomew,
Curacoa,	Marie Galante,	St. Martin,
Deseado,	Martinique	Tortuga.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plato, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 232, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 243, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.
Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " 5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz. 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office a the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 1. NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1871. WHOLE NO. 133.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, October, 1871.

If you will take the trouble to look at my last letter, you will perceive that I hurried away from the manor-house, to escape the confusion incident to the unpacking of an ark-load of baggage which Mr. Saikes had brought with him from "Law Belly Frongs," as he proudly pronounced it, with the air of a profound linguist; and the bright light of day had waned into the gloomiest of twilight before I returned from Obtuse Angle. As I approached the mansion, I was surprised to see the whole building illuminated, while from the roof huge torches were swaying in the air, apparently beckoning for aid or giving warning to distant friends of danger lurking somewhere. The lawn was crowded with people, and when I inquired the cause of the extraordinary demonstration, I was informed that Mr. Saikes' neighbors had come hither to give him welcome home, and he, in return, as an appreciation of their good feeling, had got up an illumination and pyrotechnic display in the highest style of French art, although upon short notice, to honor the occasion. But brilliant as was the scene without, within it was overwhelming. The halls, and all the rooms opening therefrom, and the stairways, were literally packed with wares and merchandise. Pictures, pipes, swords, muskets, chinaware, silk, satin and broadcloth wearing apparel of every color under the sun; hats and caps, stuffed birds and beasts, drums, trumpets and music-boxes, and hundreds of other articles the names of which would form a catalogue as long as your weekly list of advertised letters, and too long to narrate. Mr. Saikes had his coat off, supervising affairs. Two or three French servants were busy supplying fireworks and fire-water to the outsiders, who were becoming just a little boisterous, while Jane Mary moved round with all the dignity of the presiding genius of the place, and evidently commanded the situation. I was calmly surveying the surroundings when I was saluted with "Alley vouzong," and a push that well-nigh sent me heels over head into the crockery. I turned to rebuke the rude Gaul, when J. M. and Saikes intervened by remarking that unless I took off my coat and helped, I was only in the way. My already disturbed equanimity was not at all quieted by this somewhat uncalled for remark, and I forthwith left the establishment, repaired to the hotel at the Angle, called for supper and ate it, called for a room and was shown to it, and divesting myself of my hat, coat and boots, I threw myself on the bed and proceeded to indulge in pleasant and unpleasant reflections. I left the lamp burning when I laid down, but the odor of the kerosene becoming unpleasant, I arose and extinguished the light, and returned to bed; but I had scarcely stretched my limbs on the cover before I heard something moving, and felt the mattress slowly rising beneath me. I was fully convinced that something was under the bed, and for no good purpose. I was not alarmed, but slightly excited. I am blessed with great presence of mind in trying times, and then, too, I had a pistol in my possession (I always carry a weapon, not to use, but to display if occasion requires a show of being armed). In a calm, deliberate tone I spoke thus, "My unseen and unknown friend, I do not wish to injure you, but if you do not crawl out of your hiding-place and leave this room in one minute by the watch, I will give you the benefit of the revolver which I now hold in my hand." For a moment it was as still as death; then another upheaval from below almost rolled me out on the floor. Convinced that it was the design of the lurking villain to tumble me out, and thus have me at an advantage, and having no doubt of his intention to rob, and, if necessary to effect his purpose, murder me, I thrust my pistol between the mattress and the side panel of the bedstead and fired, not to kill, but to frighten the miscreant and alarm the house. Simultaneously with the report there arose such a fearful fiendish howl as to almost freeze my blood. I had evidently struck the concealed wretch, for he bounded out and flew around the room, upsetting chairs, tables and every movable thing he came in contact with, all the while keeping up the most infernal yelling ever heard. It was as dark as pitch, and I began to feel uneasy, when I was greatly relieved by hearing approaching footsteps, and a voice at the door asking, "For God's sake what's the matter?" "Burst open the door," I replied, hastily, "there's a robber in the room." With a sudden dash the portal flew back on its hinges and two or three men entered, and by the aid of their lamps—and to my great chagrin—a large Newfoundland dog was discerned cowering down in a corner, whimpering and licking the blood off his foot, where my cruel bullet had hit him. Fortunately he was not seriously injured; and, after a full explanation of the circumstances, and the furniture in the room being "put to rights" again, my visitors departed and I turned in once more. This little episode had rather unbalanced my nervous sensibilities; but they gradually settled down to their normal condition and I soon fell asleep. But I was doomed to be disturbed a second time, for I had been oblivious but a short time when I was awoke by a thundering treble knock on my door, upon opening which I was confronted with the stern visage of Gracious Saikes and the flashing eyes of Jane Mary looking over his shoulder. Saikes was evidently vexed, and Jane Mary was unmistakably red-hot; but I was prepared for the emergency, and calmly awaited any verbal demonstrations they might be pleased to make. Saikes led off: "Well, really, friend Tonson, I must say that I am greatly surprised at your conduct to-night; and I have come here to ascertain if I have been the cause of driving you from the comforts of a home and the society of your wife, my cousin, and forcing you to become the occupent of a lonely chamber in a country tavern; if so, I am prepared to apologize." Before I had time to reply, however, Jane Mary pushed him aside, and, stalking into the room in true Lady Macbeth style, she looked round a moment, and then pointing to my various articles of apparel scattered about, she said, in a tragic voice, "Put on your things, and come with me." I put on my things, and went with her. On our way back but little was said, but I knew there was muffled thunder on hand, and after we got home I was treated with a few peals; but as I kept perfectly still the storm soon blew over, and before midnight calm weather prevailed. To give an additional agreeable zest to the occasion, Saikes and I, the madame consenting, emptied several bottles of Heidsick, which so affected him that he entirely forgot his English, and so confused me that I mistook a draped statue (one of Seikes' importations) on the landing for Jane Mary, and in attempting to embrace it I upset it, and we came very near rolling together to the bottom of the stairs. At breakfast we joked on the little escapade of the night before, and I really believe it made us all better friends than ever. As we rose from the table Mr. S. invited me into his private quarters, and taking from a portfolio on the table a large letter garnished with a huge red seal, and several small streamers of red ribbon, he said that the package contained a will, which was handed to him in Par-ree by an old friend of his who desired him to deliver it personally to his attorney at New Census as early as possible—"and now," continued Mr. S., "if you have no objections, Mr. Tonson, I would like you to perform the duty for me, and by the time you return our house will be in order, and you will be spared further annoyance from the noise and confusion which now prevails." I accepted the mission, and in two hours from that time I was rattling over the railway at terrific speed toward sunset. I arrived at my destination early next morning, and after the necessary ablutions and a good breakfast, I called upon Mr. Quinch, the attorney in question, executed my commission, and was bowing myself out, when a fine-looking elderly gentleman entered, to whom I was presented by Mr. Quinch, and who proved to be the postmaster of New Census, and who rejoiced in the euphonious cognomen of Merryweather Mainman, Esq. After an interchange of courtesies, I was politely invited to visit the post office, which occupied the entire lower floor of the building. This suited my taste to a fraction, and I accepted, and we went below to commence the tour of observation.

The first door we approached opening into the interior, had inscribed thereon the legend "Postmaster's room—Office hours to suit circumstances." This apartment was elaborately furnished, and presented an air of the most inviting comfort. Behind the postmaster's desk was a clump of thirty-two speaking tubes protruding from the wall, under each of which were a name and number. These tubes were used by the P. M. for conversation with his Superintendents, of whom there were thirty-two, and no Superintendent was permitted to receive or send a message through any other tube than the one which bore his name and number. I had the pleasure of an introduction to only nine of these officials, who were summoned by the tubes, the other twenty-three having accepted an invitation to be present at the trial trip and dinner on board of the copper-bottomed, air-tight, water-tight and fire-proof canal-boat Prodigious, Captain Dominie Sampson. The interchange of civilities was materially abbreviated by calls through the pipes for "Superintendent of Wax and Mucilage!" "Superintendent of Twine and Paper!" "Superintendent of Questions and Answers," etc., and the prompt disappearance of the gentlemen as they were respectively notified to appear elsewhere; and then we were ushered into an adjoining room, where I had the pleasure of being presented to Judge Waver, Assistant Postmaster and Superintendent of Superintendents, and his first, second and third assistants, A. T. Awd, E. Z. Shewza and C. I. Doolittle, Esqrs. The postmaster having returned to his room for a moment, I was left temporarily in charge of the Judge and his staff, and to beguile the time I quietly inquired of him the necessity of so many assistants. "There is no special necessity," was the reply; "but, you see, it looks business like, and when I am absent, which is quite frequently, owing to my being a lawyer and often obliged to appear as counsel before our Justices' Court, one of these gentlemen is designated to occupy my chair, and the other two are temporarily elevated by filling the chairs respectively next above them, leaving one empty one, which is turned to the wall during its vacancy." Mr. Doolittle availed himself of the opportunity to inform me that his duties were quite onerous—in fact, that he did the lion's share of the work; but he didn't mind it, only his health was not very good, and, indeed, he was not absolutely certain that his lungs were not affected by his assiduous efforts to become a skillful performer on the accordion. As he was almost as thick as he was long, and his face was as plump and smooth as a cherry, I was unable to see any indications of a pulmonic affection; but you know the trunks of trees will preserve their roundity long after they have become nothing but mere shell—such may be the case with this unfortunate young man. The road to musical knowledge is no doubt a toilsome one, and, if Doolittle's theory is correct, a dangerous one. So if post office clerks do not want to die of consumption they had better abstain from the attempt to become experts on accordions, banjos, violins and other instruments so trying to the chest. Mr. Mainman having placed himself once more to the fore, we marched on into the next section, called the Carrier's Department, which was subdivided into forty or fifty stalls or compartments, only about twenty of which could boast of occupants. At a nod from the "guv'nor," as he was familiarly styled, they came forward and ranged round us in a circle, so that I had a good opportunity to see them, and how they were arrayed, without appearing impudent or inquisitive. The uniforms they wore were no doubt originally of the same color, but now only a few were gray. Some were green and some were brown, and all looked soiled and dirty, and, pelpably, were entire strangers to a brush or broom. In fact, I never saw a more untidy set of fellows. There was no attraction here, and we passed on into the mailing and delivering rooms, where I observed a number of men at work, attired similarly to those in the room we had just left. Inquiring who they were, I was informed that they were carriers, who had volunteered to do duty in other parts of the office. Some were working on the forms and several were engaged at the Delivery and Box Windows, waiting on customers, while the regular clerks were gathered together in little knots discussing the affairs of the nation with pipes alight, or loitering round with their hands in their pockets whistling familiar airs, and apparently indifferent as to whether "school kept or not." A lubberly six-footer, with a voice like a donkey, was seated on a pile of mail bags brayingly beseeching somebody to "put him in his little bed," but, as no one seemed to heed him, the inference was that it was an impossibility, and he would be forced to slug himself to sleep where he had planted himself I asked Mr. Mainman if it was usual for carriers to leave their own department and neglect their own wark, to accommodate the clerks in the other parts of the office. He said he thought it was not generally customary, but he allowed it in his establishment because it divided the responsibility more, kept up a good feeling, and no confusion or trouble could grow out of it, for it was the paramount duty of his thirty-two superintendents to closely watch the employes in their respective bureaus, as well as to watch each other, and any irregularities or improprieties in any quarter were instantly and properly rebuked, or, if necessary, reported for severe action. Just here a telegram arrived stating that the Prodigious had broken her towing-line in Horse Chestnut Basin, twenty miles away, but no lives were lost, and she would be obliged to tie up for the night and wait for a new rope and a fresh pair of mules. Of course this caused intense excitement, and a committee was forthwith appointed to communicate with the sufferers, and ascertain if any supplies were needed, and as the postmaster's attention was engrossed by this startling calamity, I took my leave, promising to call in again in the morning and finish the sight-seeing in the New Census post office. MONS. TONSON.

Keeping Post Accounts.

Sebastian Wagner, the postmaster at Shandyville, was a large man. He was not only large physically, but immense in the opinion that he was pleased to entertain of himself. To his credit be it said, this was the only fault he had—at least, the only one the world ever discovered. The records, however, of the Post Office Department, will develop the further fact that Sebastian was not at all up in his comprehension of the management of "the Account Current" and the other blanks that constituted his Quarterly Return.

Shandyville was a little village, a hamlet you might say; only two or three houses, with the necessary outbuildings to each attached. It received its mail from the Route Agent on the Great Central Railway, that passed through Shandyville, and because it didn't cost the Department anything additional to a weekly mail Shandyville received a mail twice a day, "going and coming." This rendered Shandyville quite an important locality, and its importance found never a more valiant trumpeter than Sebastian.

The Superintendent of "the Great Central" presented the orders of the Auditor for "balances due" from postmasters in the United States. The superintendent seemed to be a very clever fellow. In truth, he possessed the additional virtue of being honest. No Brutus had ever accused him of "having an itching palm." At the close of every postal quarter he presented his blanks to this portly postmaster at Shandyville—satisfaction rendered—and he passed on to the adjoining office of Mackerville, beyond.

One day Sebastian called on his friend, the postmaster at the principal office in the county. This gentlemen had always, because of the rather awkward "band" Sebastian wrote, been preparing his accounts at the close of the postal quarter for the inspection of the Auditor. His friend, who always supposed Sebastian took unusual interest in his official position, was surprised—in fact, almost thunderstruck—when he was informed by his corpulent friend that he had determined to resign!

This was news, indeed, for no one ever dreamed that Sebastian Wagner meditated the severance of his individual corpulence from the arduous but honorable duties of postmaster at Shandyville. Was it possible that he, the gentlemen above all others in whom the Department had placed its confidence, had reposed its special trust, etc., etc., and who appreciated this trust, and prided in it, could in so abrupt and causeless a manner desert the service of the Department?

This friend said this, and more too, before Sebastian replied, which he did, after first "settling" himself in the easy chair in the office of his brother postmaster.

"You see, Jones," said he, "I keep all the money that comes in from people who buy stamps, and who pay postage on newspapers and unpaid letters. I keep this in a cigar box by itself, and I never let any other money go with it. The fact is, Jones, I never take any out of it. So, you see, it must be right. Well, now see, and if you don't say I ought to resign, then I'll give up. Thompson, the superintendent, comes along with his blank orders from the Department and says he wants my money! I get this cigar box and I says, 'Thompson, there it is,' and by the Lord, Jones, he takes it all!"

"What!" says his friend, "have you not retained your salary therefrom?"

"Salary!" says the Shandyville P. M, "I have never heard a word of salary from Thompson or anybody else, except you, since I have had the office, which has now been two years, and I am getting tired of it, and because of this, Jones, I am going to resign."

His friend acquiesced in his determination, and suggested to the Department an examination into the conduct of the superintendent, which resulted in a change of one officer at least.

Shandyville's post office is now more intelligently kept. Everything seems to work smoothly. The mail train stops as usual. The superintendent calls, as the other did, but transacts his business more in accordance with the wishes of the Department.

CAMERON.

We publish below so much of a letter from a correspondent in Texas as relates to a plan far increased security in making remittances by mail. The writer makes a general complaint of the inability to make remittances from that State, and presents this plan as an improvement upon the present registry system:

I will suggest a plan which, though crude and imperfect, perhaps, I would like to see ventilated and discussed in your columns by those better acquainted with postal matters than myself. I am a soldier in the service of Uncle Sam, and have never in any manner been connected with the mail service, and therefore cannot be expected to be at all posted in such matters, but I am anxious for reform. My plan is this: Let the person designing to transmit money, hand it, inclosed in an addressed, but unsealed envelope, to the postmaster or clerk, who verifies the amount, giving his receipt, and incloses it in a registered package, the envelope still unsealed, together with his certificate showing that he has verified the same, at the same time forwarding to the first distributing office en route, and to the final receiving office to which the money is destined, a letter of advice. At the distributing office the package is again opened, verified and re-inclosed, the postmaster or clerk appending his certificate to the first, and returns his receipt for the same to the first office, each postmaster whose business it is to handle the packages verifying the contents and receipting to the last office for the same (and forwarding letter of advice to the next office) until it reaches its destination. At small offices the postmaster could perform this duty; at large ar distributing offices, a special clerk, who should be a bonded officer. Should this plan cause any additional expense, slightly increase the charge for registering, which the public will willingly pay if comparative safety can thereby be secured. To prevent packages from being tampered with while en route, all through mail bags could be sealed as well as locked, or, what is better, all registered packages could be transmitted in bags separate from other mail matter, and so secured as to render it impossible to tamper with them without detection. Make it the duty of mail agents to inspect them frequently, and hold them to a strict accountability for the proper performance of this duty.

There certainly is a large screw loose. Letters containing money or checks escaping Charybdis are certain to run upon Scylla; they barely escape wrecking on one of those rocks.

I have lately been hunting the rascals who open my letters with bogus checks, bearing indorsements expressing my opinion of these gentlemen and giving them some good advice. I trust this may have a tranquilizing effect upon them. Of course they all nibble at the bait. Respectfully yours, VICTIM.

Telegraphic Rates on Government Dispatches

By the following order, taken from the Journal of the Telegraph, it will be seen that telegraphic dispatches on Government business may be sent by Government agents at special rates much less than the ordinary rates:

EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 125.

On after the first day of July, all messages relating to the affairs of business of the United States, except the weather reports and those relating thereto, offered for transmission by any of its civil or military officers or agents, will be received without pre-payment being exacted, and will be forwarded promptly, priority being given them over all other business. The tariff on such messages will be computed as follows: One cent per word for each two hundred and fifty miles or fractional part thereof. All words to be counted, except the date and the place where the message is filed; provided, however, that no message shall be counted as less than twenty-five words. Distances will be computed by the tables of the War Department, which tables will be furnished to all offices where Government messages are regularly filed. Until so furnished, distances can be ascertained by inquiry of the New York or Washington office. All such business will be entered as paid at the office where it originates, and the bills will be presented monthly as heretofore. In cases of inability to collect, a duplicate of the account, and the originals of messages, will be forwarded, with the monthly account current, to the Auditor, credit being taken therefor as cash.

WILLIAM ORTON, President.

A Veteran Mail Carrrier.

Editor U. S. Mail:

Columbus City, Indiana, claims the honor of being the residence of the veteran railroad mail messenger. His name is Joseph F. Shoemaker, and he is now in his 70th year. He has carried the mail (traveling on foot) from tha post office to the railroad depot—almost three-fourths of a mile—for over four years, with scarcely an intermission, and without at any time failing to make connection with the train. If you have any "old boys" that can beat that, trot them out.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions, or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 133 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1850, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes. JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

Just One Word.

Those of our subscribers who have been so much occupied with official and other business that they have for some months past forgotten to remit the amount of their overdue subscriptions, are hereby requested to take the present opportunity of repairing the omissions and send the dollar at once before they again forget it.

Sundry Post-office Matters.

The first letter we take from our budget is from North Carolina, the writer of which desires to have his office made a money-order office, and requests our assistance, or, at least, our instruction how to proceed. Assistance we cannot give, and our instructions will be short. We published some two years ago instructions obtained from the Department; we reprint them here: "Make application by letter, petition or otherwise to the superintendent of the money-order system, in which application should be distinctly stated the reason why the petition should be granted." ....Next comes a letter from one who has seen thirty-five years of postal service as postmaster, the writer of which indorses every word of the correspondence in our last month's paper, both for the good of the government and postmasters, poor fellows. If thirty-five years of continuous service will not entitle a postmaster to speak, what will? But we cannot indorse our friend's opinion that postmasters are "poor fellows;" there are about 30,000 postmasters, and about 6,000,000 of men who would like to be. We have not got quite enough pity on hand for so many. .... And now turns up a pertinent question on "box rents," which it is difficult for us to solve. The case is this, where in a certain office the box rents fell below the basis on which the salary was adjusted, the Auditor required the postmaster to report his box rents equal to that basis, thus virtually making the postmaster responsible for the difference. The writer naturally inquires, if the receipts had been in excess of the basis, whether he would have been allowed to have retained the difference. As to this we must confess our ignorance; what is sauce for the goose is generally considered sauce for the gander; at the same time, the difference to A. whether his bull gores B.'s ox, or B.'s ox gores A.'s bull, is very apparent. The fact is that box rents, franking and samples are a postal muddle that no wise man can solve.....From the West comes a plan for defacing stamps by slightly puncturing them, in order to prevent them being used a second time. We can scarcely express an opinion on the invention, as it is very similar to one that has been tried and found to be of no utility. The writer of the letter accompanying the plan, estimates that $328,500 worth of old stamps are used every year; if so, and his calculation shows that it is probable, there is certainly a forcible demand for some method of canceling stamps that will effectually destroy them for further postage use.....We tender our thanks to that subscriber who writes that he "considers the MAIL the next best sheet to the Bible." We indorse that man.

WE had last month another of those registration cases to investigate, which show at once the efficiency of the system and the carelessness of some postmasters. A registered letter, containing $62 50, was reported to the Special Agent as not received by the person addressed. Investigation showed that its receipt at delivering office was acknowledged; the postmaster could not produce the letter, nor a receipt for it, but was confident he had delivered it. Things began to look doubtful for some folks' integrity, when the letter was found in the office among some loose papers, having evidently dropped from the box of the owner, into which it had been placed. But this is no way to deliver registered letters. They should be kept in some safe place, under lock and key, if possible, and a notice to call for the letter sent to the person for whom it is intended. The First Assistant Postmaster-General supplies, gratis, such notices; postmasters who have none should send to him for some, form 26. Never put a registered letter with ordinary letters for delivery. See section 12, Registration Regulations of 1868, page 7, lines six, seven and eight from top of page.

Changes in the Foreign Postage Table.

Very radical and extensive changes have been made in the Foreign Postage Table for this month, to adapt it to the changes made in the rates via the North German Union. We have also introduced in our third page the rates to foreign countries with which we have no postal treaty, reference being made thereto in the table. We would here caution those making use of the table to be careful to look for the country under the proper name: for instance, the United States of Colombia is not in the table, but the postage is given under the countries Ecuador, Venezuela, &c.

POSTMASTERS should bear in mind that all letters to or from the North-German Union, if unpaid, are subject to double the prepaid rates, and if insufficiently prepaid, with the postage on unpaid letters, after a deduction of the amount prepaid.

IN another column will be found a list of Money Order Offices, at which orders may be issued on New York and payable in Great Britain, according to the Treaty and Regulations published last month.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Supplements.—A. R. P, C—, N. Y. —Where a supplement folded in a regular paper increases the weight to over four ounces, transient postage should be charged on the excess—that is, if the regular quarterly postage was paid at the single rate of five cents.

Defaced Postage Stamps.—J. B, M—, N. Y.—Educating poor children, buying church organs and doing various other charitable things by means of defaced postage stamps was at one time quite a common idea. We thought that by this time it was exploded. The department would not pay one cent for a ton of them, and, moreover, looks with suspicion upon any one who purchases them in any considerable quantity. You may not be aware that through such stamps gross frauds have been practiced. Advise your church neighbors to let defaced stamps alone.

Dead Letters, etc.—E. W. S., O—, Fla.—1. Letters not called for are to remain one week in an office, when they should be advertised by a manuscript or printed list hung up in the office where the public can see it. If not delivered at the end of thirty days they should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, accompanied with a bill, on which should be entered the number of the letters and the charges on them, if any. A copy of this bill should be kept, and a complete bill for the quarter should be sent with the account current. 2. Postmasters are charged $2, not $5, for the Post Office Laws, and get credit for this amount when they leave the office.

Post Office Marking Stamp, etc.—C. S., Y—, N. Y.—1. If your receipts are over $100 a year, you are entitled to a marking stamp. 2. Circulars and cards for local delivery must be prepaid at drop letter rates.

Letters Mailed on the Cars.—H. H. S., W—, N. Y.—Letters mailed on the cars should be counted at the office where the stamps are defaced.

Mailing Letters.—H. S. W., C—, Wis.—You have the right to postmark letters up to the latest moment and hand them to the agent; but you should not let this be done by any one not authorized to do it or not connected with your office.

Illegally Posting Newspapers.—O. H. W., C— F—, Ind.—You have the right to examine newspapers if you can do so without destroying the wrappers, and if you find anything about them requiring letter postage to refuse to send them, unless on payment of proper postage. (Secs. 89 and 212 Reg. 1866.)

Village Papers.—R. O., K—, N. J.—Weekly village papers deposited in a post office for delivery must be delivered free of postage, and the publisher has the right to deposit them for that purpose. (Sec. 3, Act of July 12, 1868.)

Damaged Stamps, etc.—A. P., P—, Ind.—Credit is allowed for stamps received from the Department in a damaged condition. Read the circular accompanying each package of stamps. Sec. 165, Reg. 1866. 2. Quarterly accounts must be sworn to (Sec. 300, Reg. 1866), but in such cases as yours, where a postmaster has to travel three days to reach the nearest Justice, the requirement might not be enforced. Better lay the matter before the Postmaster General.

Rating up Letters in Transit, etc.—F. R. D., M—, Ark.—1. A postmaster is not required to rate up letters in transit, unless his office is a distributing office. The rating should be done at the mailing office; if not done there it should be done at the office of delivery. 2. Mail matter addressed to one office should not be delivered from another. Sec. 63, Reg. 1866. 3. Miscellaneous matter, so wrapped that it cannot be examined without destroying the wrapper, must be charged at letter rates. Sec. 89, Reg. 1866. 4. Letters not addressed to them cannot be delivered to officers of the law, to enable them to obtain evidence of guilt against a person. 4. We cannot give advice as to how an office can be constituted a money order office, except that application should be made to the Superintendent of the Money Order Business, stating the reasons for such a selection.

Dead Letter Bill, etc.—S. S. W., G—, Iowa—1. Unmailable letters should not be entered on the Dead Letter Bill, but with the Held for Postage letters should be sent to the Dead Letter office once a week. Sec. 374, Reg. 1866. 2. Apply to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for Registered Business Envelopes.

Exchanges.—J. C. C., S— C—, Iowa. —Exchanges addressed to a discontinued publication cannot be delivered legally to the former publisher, unless on the payment of transient postage.

Franking.—P. M., R— O—, O.—There is no objection to putting the letters O. B. on any communication to any government official having the franking privilege. At one time the law required such communications to be indorsed "Official Business," but this was changed. Sec. 139, Reg. 1866.

Mail Carrier Service.—D. G. F., R—, Pa.—It is impossible to give an opinion in your case, as your duties consist, of course, of what you contracted to do. If more is required of you than this you should be paid more in proportion.

Newspapers Charged with Letter Postage.—D. F., B— S—, O.—Newspapers charged with letter postage, if not delivered, should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, and credit claimed for the charges on the Dead Letter Bill. But a postmaster should not, by charging them up, send newspapers containing matter that subjects them to letter postage, if he knows who posts the papers.

Postage.—S. F. M., H—, Mass.—Part prepayment of postage to Canada is not recognized. If not fully prepaid, 6 cents, the unpaid rate of 16 cents should be charged and collected on delivery.....J. M. R., L— C. H., S. C.—Specimens of minerals are chargeable with letter postage, whether open to inspection or not.....H. F., P—, Conn.—Catches for well-curbs and all articles of hardware are chargeable with letter postage. How do people get the idea that the fact of a package being open to inspection brings it within the list of mailable matter of the Third Class?..... G. W. A., K— C. H., W. Va.—All manuscript, except book manuscript, passing between authors and publishers, is chargeable with letter rates; if not prepaid at the mailing office, it should be collected at the delivery office, and the manuscript retained till it is paid. Sec. 152, Reg. 1866.....For instruction whether or not to collect postage on foreign papers consult the instructions on the third page of the MAIL, also the notes at the bottom of the Foreign Postage Table.

Registration.—W. B., O—, Kan.—Begin numbering Registered Package Envelopes anew with the beginning of every quarter. Sec. 11, Regn. Reg. 1868.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

On Letters.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

On Newspapers.—Two cents each.

On Printed Matter other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

Mode of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Canadian Correspondence.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from Great Britain.—Newspapers and circulars, 3 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. To or from Greece, via British Mail.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 3 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 3 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. To or from Italy and Switzerland, Belgium and The Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail via Bremen or Hamburg—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from France and Algeria must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. Patterns or Samples of Merchandise.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-Payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia,
Antigua	Grenadines,	*St. Thomas,
Barbadoes,	Jamaica,	St. Vincent,
Barbuda,	Montserrat,	Tobago,
Cayman (Great & Little)	Nevis,	Tortola,
	St. Christopher,	Trinidad,
Caymanbrack,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
Cuba,	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santo Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inague, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, if not exceeding 1 ounce in weight 2 cents; when exceeding 1 ounce and not exceeding 2 ounces, 3 cents; when exceeding 2 ounces and not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents; and four cents for every 4 ounces or fraction thereof. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York once a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Orgba,
Coche,	Hayti,	Porto Rico,
Cnagua,	Les Saintes,	Saba,
Culebra,	Margarita,	St. Bartholomew,
Curacoa,	Marie Galante,	St. Martin,
Deseado,	Martiuique	Tortuga.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 245, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 623, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaoer Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " 5 "

Weekly Newspapers (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

Postage per Quarter (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on Newspapers and Periodicals issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States;

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.... 3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

Publishers of Newspapers and Periodicals may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage-free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office a the rates of transient printing matter.

Newsdealers may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 2. NEW YORK, NOVEMBER, 1871. WHOLE NO. 134.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

PONN LILY, October, 1871.

I freely admit that I became quite interested in the details of the New Census Post Office during my initial visit, and looked upon the task of finishing upon the morrow with a good deal of pleasure. In the meantime, however, I had a long evening before me, and I was in a good deal of a quandary what to do with myself till bed-time. One feels dreadful lonely among strangers, especially if he is not given to light amusements—and prayer meetings and moral or religious lectures are mighty scarce in New Census, as I was informed by a venerable colored person who was busily engaged in dusting out Mr. Quinch's office when I ascended the stairs again to bid that gentlemen good evening, but found he had left for the day. On my way hotelward I observed flaming pictoriel placards stuck up everywhere, announcing various amusements, but there was nothing tempting about them to me, and I thought the best thing I could do would be a little shopping for J. M., and then go to my hotel and kill time to the best advantage. I made a few purchases and stopped to examine some beautiful pictures in a large show window, when I felt a hand laid lightly on my shoulder, and, turning round, found the hand belonged to Judge Waver. I was really glad to see him, for to see one familiar face among so many hundred strange ones was to me an invigorating gratification. "Happy to meet you again, Mr. Tonson," he kindly remarked; to which I replied, "the feeling is fully reciprocated;" and then he went on to say that he was just on his way home from his arduous duties, and that he was always glad when three o'clock arrived. "By the by," he continued, as we walked along together, "what hotel do you patronize, and what are you going to do with yourself tonight?" I informed him that I was stopping at the Mansard Pavilion and that I had no special engagement for the evening. "Then," said he, "consider yourself engaged now, and expect me to call on you at half-past 7, sharp;" saying which he bowed himself away and disappeared in the crowd, which was rushing and crushing madly up town. He kept his appointment to the minute, bringing with him two other gentlamen, whom he introduced as Doctor Bildad, Medical Director of the Skating Rink, and Colonel Thimble, of the New Census Mounted Zouaves. I saluted the gentlemen in my most affable way, assuring them that I felt proud of the honor of meeting them, and giving the Judge to understand at the same time that the pleasure of my visit was materially enhanced by his courtesy. "Pray don't mention it, my dear sir," responded the Judge. "This is probably your first appearance in New Census, and as we may not have the pleasure of meeting you again, we desire to show you some of the fine points of the town. You are a friend of Mr. Quioch's, and his friends are our friends, and any attention shown to you will be as gratifying to him as it will be pleasant to us—so what shall it be?"

As I was new to the town, absolutely unfamiliar with its moral amusement resources, and an invited guest, it would have been in bad taste for me to even hint at a selection. I, therefore, remained passive and permitted the gentlemen to arrange the evening programme. Dr. Bildad thought the clinical lectures and anatomical demonstrations by Professor Hayfawrd, at the medical college, would be exceedingly interesting.

"Oh, no! not there," interposed the Judge. "I don't believe our provincial friend has any taste for hearing about Bright's disease or bilious fevers or for seeing humanity cut into mince-meat, however necessary it may be for the promotion of science."

"You are entirely correct, my dear sir," said I; "I don't want any."

"What do you say to witnessing a moonlight drill of our awkward squad in the Dutch Market?" ventured the Colonel interrogatively; "it is deused funny and our fellows enjoy it mightily. It may be a little startling to fresh people to see the new recruits hanging opposite each other by their heels to the meat-hooks (we call it swinging from the stirrup) and going through the manual exercises with a Prussian needle-gun, with a double-edged sabre a yard long and an ell wide attached to it in one hand; a navy revolver in the other and a bridle-rein held between the teeth, while the drill officer occupies an improvised trapeze between and a little above his inverted pupils, and at every word of command whirling, leaping, swinging or dropping suddenly from his seat, catching himself by his heels and remaining in that position until the order is satisfactorily executed. This, however, only lasts half an hour; the rest of the exercise won't try your nerves a mite. What do you say—is it a go?"

This did not suit the Judge, and he intimated to the Colonel that it would not suit me ther. This brought matters to a focus very suddenly, for the doctor said he just remembered that a cynocephalus was to be dissected at the college by a distant relative of Dr. Darwin's to night with a view to crush scepticism on this side of this water in regard to the soundness of the theories contained in the "Descent of Man," which reminded the Colonel that it was imperatively necessary for him to go to the armory, as a selection of belts to be worn at the next dress parade was to be made, and he was to decide whether they should be of eel-skin or electrotyped sheet-iron. So both gentlemen shook me cordially by the hand, said "ta-ta" to the Judge and departed.

"I'm devilish glad they've gone," was the first remark of the Judge; "they are good fellows in their way, bod it's to my interest to keep on their right side; but neither of them, in my opinion, will ever set an iceberg on fire. And now that they are gone, what do you say to a stroll down to the office to hear if there is any news from our shipwrecked friends of the Dominie Sampson, and after that we'll try something else." "Why, do you expect to find anybody there now?" I inquired. "Now, what do you mean by 'now,' friend Tonson. Why, my dear man, in the New Census office 'the king never dies;' or, in other words, work never ceases. Do you see that sign in that eating-house window over the way?—'Meals at all hours'—change that to 'Meils at all hours,' and it would do for our post office. Come, let us go down; and now that the lamps are lit, we will go by the way of the canal bridge, from the top of which I'll show you a sight that will make you think you are in Venice; and if I could only convert a canal-boat into a gondola and get some one to twang a guitar and barcarole a little for us, the illusion would be perfect." I assured him I was entirely at his service. When we reached the bridge it was thronged with loungers, and we were obliged to pass it without obtaining a view of the placid waters of the New Census Adriatic by gaslight. Just as we got to the end of the bridge a vehicle loaded with a huge pile of mail bags passed us, and by the bright light flashed from a druggist's window I perceived two persons seated therein. The one in front was the driver, who appeared to be watching his horses' ears, and the other was a very small boy, seated at the other end, looking in the opposite direction, a high ridge of bags entirely preventing them from seeing each other. It looked very much as if this boy was placed there to hand out mail pouches to any one who asked for them along the route, and certainly a dozen could have slipped off into the street without the driver or the guard—that is, if this ten-year old was a guard—being a bit the wiser. I called the Judge's attention to it, and asked him if he did not think it rather unsafe. "Yes," said he, "I think it is, but it is the contractor's business, not ours, to see to it." "Has any accident ever occurred?" queried I. "Yes, bags had been found in the street, but no one knows how they got there. A little stir was made at the time, but it soon faded out." "With all due deference, Judge," said I, "I do think that men, and not boys, should accompany the mails between the post office and the railway depot." "So do I, Mr. Tonson, but, as I remarked before, it is the contractor's business, not ours. We have enough to do in receiving and discharging the mails without going out doors to hunt up work. If we had ten or fifteen more superintendents we might do it, but we are too short-handed even now for the herculean labor we have to perform without going out of the way to find more. By this time we had reached the post office building, and turning down a narrow alley way, we were presently at a back entrance of the establishment. The Judge gave one loud and three subdued koocks with a heavy iron ring which hung from the snout of a boar's head screwed to the door, and it was responded to after a while by a sleepy-looking porter, who opened the door and yawned fearfully at the same time, apparently giving us a choice of orifices to enter. We preferred the door, however, as the odor which had issued from the other portal indicated that burning fluid abounded in that direction, if no other impediment was in the way. The place was ablaze with light, and some six or eight men were busily engaged at work, while as many more were lying round on the bags, barrows and tables, seemingly sound asleep. Several men, who were evidently not employed, but visiting friends of the clerks, were sauntering round, probably without knowing what to do with themselves, but possibly watching the chances to appropriate something in the valuable letter or paper way which belonged to somebody else. In the Judge's office we found Superintendent No. 21 fast asleep, embellished with a beautiful Victor Emmanuel mustache, executed with a burnt cork by some unknown hand, and entirely oblivious of time, place or duty. This sight was too much for the Judge's patience—his temper took fire at once, and shaking the somnolent beauty vigorously until he opened his eyes, he exclaimed, "You are a sweet-scented Superintendent, arn't you? If this is the way you attend to your duties, the sooner the postmaster knows it the better." Rousing himself, No. 21 stared vacantly at the ceiling, then folded the fingers of his left hand, and, shutting one eye, brought it to bear on the tips thereof, and finally, leveling, both eyes on the Judge, he said, gruffly: "What's the matter o' you? Think I bin asleep, don't you? You were never more mistaken in your life. I was only studying out some improvements for my boys, and I come in here so that I could think undisturbed. The boys know where I am, and when they want me they blow fish-horn No. 21, and I'm on hand in a minute." "Whether you were asleep or not," replied the Judge, "this is not the place to be at this time of night, and I assure you I will lay the matter before Mr. Mulnman in the morning. I just passed through the office, and the place looks more like an Indian encampment than a civilized institution. Not one-half your force is at work, and those who are laboring have so much to do that a thousand mistakes must occur, for their only object is to empty their tables, and it makes no difference to them where the stuff is thrown, only so that it gets into a bag, is locked up and carried away."

"Aru't you putting it rather strong, Judge?" queried 21. "I work more hours than you do, and I reckon things run as smooth when I'm in charge as at any other time. If the boys are shirking their work, it is not with my sanction. I left my two assistants overseeing when I came in here, and it's their fault. I will go and see about it at once, and I hope you won't say anything about the matter to the P. M. this time. I have no fear of the result, for I carry as many guns, politically, as any other man in this shebang. But you know it will annoy the old gentleman, without doing any good." Saying this he went out, and in a moment afterward a general hi-hi-ing and a roar of laughter shook the building. The artificial mustache was a fearful success. It was some time before 21 knew the cause of the boisterous outbreak, but when he did it was crushing; and returning to the seat he had just left, he threw himself into it, burst into tears and exclaimed, "Je-rusalem! has it come to this. Judge, pardon this weakness, for I'm only human; but this is a lesson to me; by my forbearance I have lost the respect of my men, but in future I will do my duty faithfully, and you may be-be-bet your bottom dollar they'll do theirs." Turning to me the Judge remarked, quietly, that I must not form any unfavorable opinion of the office from what I had just witnessed; but I could not help thinking that there was a lack of discipline somewhere; for a body of respectable men, occupying such respectable and responsible positions as post-office clerks, who would aid and abet in making their superior officer a target for mockery and jeers—and annoy a whole neighborhood by their horribly discordant mirth—were either beyond control or had run to seed for want of systematized supervision.

I had no desire to see any more of the internal operations of the New Census office—this disagreeable occurrence took all the romance out of it—and taking leave of the Judge, who I perceived was dreadfully chagrined, and disinclined to depart for a while longer, I returned to my hotel, rose betimes in the morning, and as the tongue of the town bell struck seven I was on my way to the rectangular depot to take the train for Pond Lily.

MONS. TONSON.

Items from the British Post Department Report.

From the Report of the Postmaster-General of the Post Office Department of Great Britain, for the year ending December 31, 1870, we take some useful and interesting information, which we give below, interspersing, for comparison, extracts from the report of Postmaster-General Creswell for the year ending June 30, 1870.

"During the siege of Paris, from about November 15, 1870, to January 28, 1871 [in this case, owing probably to its being of transitory interest, the report is brought a little beyond the usual time], there were conveyed from London to Tours, France, 1,234 letters by pigeon post. These letters were restricted to twenty words, and were subject to a postage of five pence [nearly ten cents] a word, and six pence for registration."

The "number of letters delivered during the year was 882,722,000." The number delivered in the United States was 590,000,000.

"There are in Great Britain 4,090 money-order offices, at which were issued 10,231,525 money orders."

"On the evening of the 7th of January four heavy mails arrived in London, containing 6,900 registered letters."

"The whole number of registered letters passing through the post was 3,005,994. Of these only 12 were lost. There were, however, many complaints of loss, among them one by a well known company that five £1,000 notes (nearly $25,000) had been lost out of a registered letter. On the evening following the complaint they were found among the rubbish in the dust heap at the company's own office.

"On the 27th of October a letter was registered for Berlin containing inclosures of the value of $350,000; and on the 14th of January preceding five letters were registered for Constantinople, the postage on which was prepaid to the amount of $390."

"The number of valentines was 1,306,201."

"The number of returned letters was 3,792,894, of which 11,505 bore no address at all; 289 of these 11,505 contained money." The number of letters of the same character in the United States was 4,152,460, of which 3,016 had no address.

The number of postmasters was 11,712; of post officers of all kinds, 28,429. In the United States the number of postmasters was 28,492; other officers exclusive of those immediately connected with the department at Washington and post office clerks, 2,513. It would be a low estimate to say that there is at each office an average of one clerk, making a total of post officers 59,427 in the United States.

We often hear complaints that the mail service of the United States is not as thorough and secure as that of Great Britain. This last item alone would refute the opinion, for it shows that letters in that country are exposed to the criminality and carelessness of post officials only to half the extent they are in the United States. When the immensely greater extent of territory, and of course of mail routes, affording greater facilities for dishonesty or carelessness, are also taken into consideration, it would seem that the Post Department of the United States should compare favorably with that of Great Britain.

Communications.

EDITORS OF U. S. MAIL: I desire to enter my voice with the rest—no matter how weak—asking for redress in the present irksome way of collecting postage on printed matter. I try to make all such collections promptly, and I can assure you I am roundly abused for such action by those from whom such collections are due. My method is to charge to boxes, and collect the same on the first of the quarter. Therefore, if a new subscriber commences any time thereafter, I hold the paper, putting a note in his box to call for unpaid matter; and when he calls for it demand postage for the same to the end of the current quarter. But the general delivery is the source of the greatest trial to me. It would make your head ache with amazement to hear the abuse I receive from this quarter alone. My plan for the management of this is to register in a book for the purpose all the papers received, and from this I make my return, at the beginning of the quarter. I collect, for one day, thirty cents on each daily paper of the date of the first day of the quarter, and also five cents on the weekly papers for one week, monthly papers three cents for one month, &c. So you see I have all collected. But here is the trouble. When I begin to collect I cannot let a single paper go out of the office until the postage is paid or I lose the postage. If a party calls for his paper, and I tell him the postage is due, be immediately answers, "All right;" still does not offer the required sum, but desires the paper; and when it is explained to him, repeats, "All right; I will hand it to you some time." When remonstrated with he flies into a fury, and thinks it a pity he can't be trusted for such a large amount as thirty, five or three cents, as the case may be; produces the money and demands a receipt in full—perhaps, for three cents—which must, of course, be written, thereby occupying much time and discommoding the postmaster and other persons who may be waiting for their mail.

I received this day a most insulting note from a woman about five cents on "Oliver Crook's" little sheet called People's Weekly. She sent her child for the paper, and, according to my plan, I could not let it go until the postage was paid. She wrote me a most unwarrantably angry note and called for a receipt.

But again the editors of papers cheat the Government of a deal of postage in several ways, first systematically—in this way: A certain newspaper sends, perhaps, fifty copies of its paper to my office—all registered against the subscribers in my book, and the Government gets this; all right—but suppose to-day their paper is a little extra good, the editor procures the names of a few citizens in each town where his paper is taken, and he puts in four or five extra sheets; the P. M. distributes them and does not discover the increase. In 100 towns you see how much mail matter goes for nothing; or the P. M. seeing the increase may register them as new subscribers, and no more numbers come, as none subscribe (the editor, having sent them for the purpose of gaining new ones, does not confer the favor again), and here the P. M. has a lot of papers charged to boxes which do not come to hand, and consequently, if not carefully marked off his Register of newspapers received, he charges himself with them, receiving of course no postage on them. Another way is, this same publisher bundles up about fifty papers, names all marked on them; when done up he forgets or makes a clear error as to their destination, marks them for the wrong office: on arrival, there are no such subscribers in the place, and the P. M. must send them back or throw them in the box for trash, and the Government has given them transportation free again, this is the case often in my office. In fact there are many ways in which the matter comes through the mail without being paid for.

Now for a remedy. It is just as easy when I subscribe for a weekly paper to send $2 20, as it is to pay the 20 cents postage after. ("I would not trouble the exchanges") Let the department issue postage newspaper stamps—one stamp to represent a newspaper. Let them issue them as follows: A stamp to represent one paper, a stamp for two papers, one for 3 papers, for 5, 10, 15, 25, 50, 75 and 100. Let them be sold only to actual publishers of newspapers, at the rate of stamps to represent 52 papers for 20 cents, "the yearly postage of one weekly paper." They can be put in sheets of 100 stamps to represent 1 paper, 100 to represent 2 papers, and so on. Then if an editor in New York City wants to send 50 papers to 50 subscribers in Henderson, let him affix stamps to represent 50 papers, or, if he send but one, affix a stamp representing one paper, and he can send 52 in a year for 20 cents. The Postmaster can see if the stamp is proper at a glance. This will benefit the editor, as he will only buy stamps as he needs them, and will have the funds to do it with from the beginning of the subscription. The cost of issuing the stamps will be more than ten times paid for to the Government by the increase of the revenue from this department. Most of the papers coming into this office come in packages of from 10 to 50. One stamp to represent the number will bring them, and it would be very easy to notice if correctly stamped or not.

Another trouble still is with newsdealers. "The American News Company," for instance, in New York City, send to newsdealers here a certain lot of papers regularly, for which the newsdealers pay at quarterly rates. When the News Company have an issue of papers that are good samples, and our newsdealers do not take, the News Company place them in the bundles with the regular papers, thus smuggling them through, if I do not open and examine each and every bundle as it comes into the office. (The P. M. at New York should cause the A. News Co. to take the oath on page 32, section 210, Postal Regulations of 1868.) These extra papers, if returned to the American News Co., are not charged to the dealer; if not returned, are charged, of course—so the newsdealer demands that I send them without prepayment. I make them pay at the rate of 2c. per 4 oz. or fractional part of 4 oz. Am I right? They complain loudly in regard to it. Now, my plan would obviate all this. The News Co. could put a card on the package, showing its contents, and it could be stamped accordingly. For instance—a package of 30 papers—put on a stamp representing 25 papers, and one representing 5 papers. This would prove no hardship, as the city newsdealers require the country newsdealers to keep deposited on hand with them a certain amount of money—according to the number of papers taken—and from this they debit the country newsdealer, according to the number of papers sent. They could just as well charge the postage, also, in the account, as the country newsdealer is required to pay quarterly in advance by the law. [A mistake. The country newsdealer may pay on his packages as received. Sec. 235 Laws and 202 Reg. 1866.—ED. U. S. MAIL.] This will obviate noother vexation, viz.: At the beginning of a quarter a country newsdealer takes 10 Harper's Weeklys, 15 N. Y. Ledgers, 25 Days Doings, etc. He is charged with them, and must pay in advance for the quarter. A number of his readers drop off. He cuts down the number of his papers, as he cannot sell them. Here is a hardship, as he has paid for all to the end of the quarter. Or he may increase the number, and the increase may come for several weeks before the P. M. discovers it, as it is almost impossible to examine every package, though of this they make no complaint. [The Postmaster should examine every package as received, and charge ½ of a cent for each 4 oz. on each paper or periodical issued weekly or oftener, and 1 cent for each 4 oz. on each paper or periodical issued less frequently than once a week.—ED. U. S. MAIL.] Having set forth a few of the evils—and the half is not yet told—I hope the demand for a change may be heard and considered attentively.

Editor United States Mail:

SIR: Sheffield, Pa., "trots out" an "old boy" to beat Columbus City, Ind. His name is Stephen Taylor, and he is now in his seventy-fifth year. He has carried the mail (traveling on foot) from this post office to Sheffield depot post office, two miles, six times a week, for over four and one-half years.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, NOVEMBER, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 134 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1830, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

Just One Word.

Those of our subscribers who have been so much occupied with official and other business that they have for some months past forgotten to remit the amount of their overdue subscriptions, are hereby requested to take the present opportunity of repairing the omissions and end the dollar at once before they again forget it.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 4, 1871.

SIR:—I inclose an order directed against the registration of any matter for countries or places with which the privilege of registration does not exist, and request its publication in the next issue of your paper.

I am, very respectfully, your obd't serv't,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.
J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail," New York.

The attention of this Department has been called to the circumstance that letters are frequently registered for foreign countries with which the United States have no arrangement for the exchange of registered letters.

All correspondence registered for countries or places with which the privilege of registration does not exist, is necessarily forwarded from this country as ordinary unregistered matter, and hence cannot be traced beyond the boundary of the United States.

Postmasters are therefore requested to consult the "Tables of Foreign Postage," as published in the several postal papers, and to register no matter to countries or places where registration is not permitted, as shown by the absence of any registration fee in the columns of those tables.

By order of the Postmaster General.
JOSEPH B. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

SIR:—Referring to my letters dated respectively Oct. 26, 1870, and Feb. 8 and March 27, 1871, concerning the transmission of correspondence in the German mails via Brindisi, I have now to inform you that this Department has just been advised by the General Post Office in Berlin that from henceforward correspondence from the United States for Aden, Ceylon, Hindoostan and British Possessions in Farther India, viz., Penang and Singapore, also Hong Kong, Yokohama, Shanghai and Australia, can be forwarded to their respective destinations in the German mails via Brindisi, under the conditions and at the combined rates of postage specified in the subjoined table marked "A."

The rates of postage and conditions of payment, it will be seen, are now made the same to each country and place by the way of Germany and Brindisi, and you will accordingly regard all previous instructions concerning the forwarding of correspondence by this route as superseded, and amend the "Table of Postages" in the next issue of your paper in conformity to the present instructions.

I am, very respectfully, your obd't serv't,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.
J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail," New York.

RATES of postage (international and foreign) chargeable on correspondence from the United States for Aden, Ceylon, British Possessions and Protected States in Hindoostan, and the British Possessions of Penang and Singapore, in Further India; Hong Kong, Shanghai, Yokohama and Australia, in the German mails via Brindisi.

ORDINARY LETTERS.—In the direct mail to Germany, 20 cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under; and 21 cents in the closed mail through England to Germany, prepayment optional.

REGISTERED LETTERS.—In the direct mail to Germany, 30 cents; and in the closed mail through England to Germany, 31 cents for each single rate of half an ounce or under, and in addition thereto, a registration fee of 8 cents per letter; prepayment compulsory.

NEWSPAPERS.—In the direct mail to Germany, if not exceeding 1¼ ounce, 6 cents; exceeding that but not over 2½ ounces, 9 cents; exceeding that but not over 3¾ ounces, 12 cents. In the closed mail through England to Germany, if not exceeding 1¼ ounce, 7 cents; exceeding that but not over 2½ ounces, 10 cents; exceeding that but not over 3¾ ounces, 13 cents; prepayment compulsory.

BOOK PACKETS.—In the direct mail to Germany, if not exceeding 1 ounce, 5 cents; over that but not exceeding 2 ounces, 10 cents; over but not exceeding 3¾ ounces, 15 cents. In the closed mail through England to Germany, if not exceeding 1 ounce, 6 cents; over that but not exceeding 2 ounces, 12 cents; over that but not exceeding 3¾ ounces, 17 cents; prepayment compulsory.

SAMPLES.—In the direct mail to Germany, if not exceeding 1¼ ounce, 9 cents; over that but not exceeding 2½ ounces, 12 cents; over that but not exceeding 3¾ ounces, 15 cents. In the closed mail through England to Germany, if not exceeding 1¼ ounce, 11 cents; over that but not exceeding 2½ ounces, 14 cents; over that but not exceeding 3¾ ounces, 17 cents; prepayment compulsory.

NOTE 1.—The postage rates on packages of printed matter and samples exceeding the weight of 3¾ ounces are not given, but, by adding the foreign charge of 3 cents per each 1¼ ounce to the international postages, chargeable thereon under the Universal Postal Union and German Postal Convention, the full rates on heavier packages can be easily ascertained.

NOTE 2.—All matter sent by this route must be plainly inscribed with the name of the route.

Additional Mail for Cuba and Spain via New Orleans.

The Hamburg-American Packet Company, having established a line of steamships between New Orleans and Havre, touching at the ports of Havana, Cuba, and Santander, Spain, arrangements have been made for the forwarding of a mail from New Orleans for Cuba and Spain by means of said steamers, comprising the correspondence for that island and country which the senders may wish to have forwarded by this line of steamships, and on which the United States postage shall have been fully prepaid, at the following rates, viz.:

On letters, ten cents per each half an ounce or under; on newspapers two cents each; and on packages of printed matter other than newspapers, when not exceeding an ounce in weight, two cents; when exceeding an ounce but not over two ounces, three cents; when exceeding two ounces but not over four ounces, four cents; and an additional rate of four cents for every additional weight of four ounces or excess thereof.

The departures from New Orleans of the steamers of the Hamburg-American Packet Company, as far as reported, are as follows: November 1, November 29, December 27, 1871; and January 24, February 21, March 20, April 17 and May 15, 1872.

The above postage charges are in like manner to be levied and collected at the office of delivery on the correspondence received in the United States from Cuba and Spain by this line of steamships.

Postmasters will take notice hereof and govern themselves accordingly in levying and collecting postage on the correspondence so exchanged with Cuba and Spain.

By order of the Postmaster General.
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

Post Office Department.

OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., October 28, 1871.

Inasmuch as correspondents in the United States are subjected to inconvenience because of their inability, since the abrogation of the Postal Convention with France, to fully prepay the postage on letters for France and Algeria, the Postmaster-General has decided to so modify the existing regulations governing the collection of postage thereon as to permit the prepayment in full to destination of the postage on such letters for France and Algeria, as may hereafter be forwarded through the British mails.

Notice is therefore given that the following prepaid rates of postage are in full of all charges to destination on letters for France and Algeria, forwarded via England.

For letters not exceeding one-third ounce in weight, 10 cents; exceeding one-third, but not over one-half ounce, 18 cents; exceeding one-half, but not over two-third ounce, 20 cents; exceeding two-third, but not over one ounce, 26 cents; and so on, adding four cents for each half ounce for United States and ocean postage, and 8 cents for each one-third ounce for British and French postage.

This modification of the existing regulation does not interfere with the mailing of letters for France and Algeria, either wholly unpaid, or partially prepaid, the United States inland and sea postage of 4 cents per single rate of half an ounce.

By order of the Postmaster-General.
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent of Foreign Mails.

Samples.

The British Post Department has cut the Gordian knot of samples. Notwithstanding the superior facilities that Department has over that of the United States in framing and enforcing laws, not being such servants of the "dear public," and the superior consistency and clearness of decisions that must result from continued occupation of office by one person, it found itself unable to cope with samples. More liberal than those of the United States, the British Post authorities allowed almost every article of merchandise and of personal household use to pass through the mails as samples, and it is difficult to conceive of the consistency of any other ruling. Four or five or a dozen small packages of tea sent by, say, the American Tea Company, to a grocer in St. Louis, are as much bona fide samples as small cuttings of cloth or silk sent by A. T. Stewart to a dry goods dealer in the same city; but the "powers that be" in this country say differently. This, however, is not the point on which we set out to write.

The British Post Department, though so liberal in defining samples, found, in the language of the Postmaster General, "the public felt aggrieved at the restriction, viz., to bona fide samples, and as the difficulty of defining samples in all cases could not be overcome, it was decided to reduce the inland postage to such an extent as would enable the public to send through the post in closed covers, not only patterns and samples, but also any light articles, at moderate charge; thus abolishing altogether the distinction between letters and samples, and providing a cheap and convenient post for small parcels."

Accordingly a very radical change has been made in letter rates of postage, and the sample post has been abolished. Samples as well as other small parcels, not including books or newspapers, are charged as letters at the following rates: not exceeding 1 oz., 1d.; exceeding 1 oz. but not exceeding 2 oz., 1½d.; exceeding 2 oz. but not exceeding 4 oz., 2d.; exceeding 4 oz. and not exceeding 6 oz., 2½d.; and so on.

We do not of course propose that this system should be adopted by the United States; we have referred to it to show how Great Britain met the difficulty which presented itself in defining samples by post, a difficulty which presents itself to our department, and which should be solved in a way satisfactory to the business community. As it now is, one class of dealers have facilities granted to them that are denied to others, and these merely for a difference of material, not for expense of carriage or care.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Our first letter for consideration is on the subject of that vexed question, the stamping regular newspapers, prepaid at the mailing office, with the words "prepaid," or "prepaid quarterly," as has been the custom in some of the larger offices. Quite a number of postmasters have refused to admit the validity of this proceeding, and insist upon a receipt as required, or postage at transient rates. Strictly speaking, the practice is not technically correct, but it arises from the fact of the impossibility of technical compliance with the regulation. There is, however, no question about its being a sufficient receipt, as the only deviation from the regulation is that the publisher does not prepare and hand to the postmaster ready for signature a receipt for each post office, and give the names of each of the subscribers, whereas the names of the subscribers are taken from the papers, and the postmaster's receipt is by an official stamp, such a stamp as is everywhere recognized to acknowledge the receipt of registered letters. The objection that this stamp of prepayment may be used by post office clerks to surreptitiously send transient papers to their friends has a force which could be readily overcome by committing the stamp to the care of one person, and making him responsible for its proper use. The subject has been referred to the department, and we hope in our next number to be able to announce a final decision, so that the question will be no longer a vexed one.... Another vexed question is presented. The publishers of a monthly inclosed is some of their issues printed notices of expiration of subscription, with date of expiration filled in with writing, whereupon some postmasters threatened to charge letter postage, and the publishers wish to know if they have violated section 209 of the Regulations. It would seem so; such a notice is hardly a bill, though evidently of the nature of a bill, and intended for one; it would be better to avoid all question by sending a regular bill.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Salaries, etc.—W. W. M., R——, Mass.—1. Postmasters receive about the same compensation under salaries that they would under commissions. 2. The salary is fixed for two years, unless readjusted within that time; such readjustment may take place at any time to provide for increased or decreased business. The First Assistant Postmaster General will give information on this subject. Certain statements and accounts must be kept, for which he provides the proper blanks. 3. Differences in favor of postmasters, arising from increase of business, are not made up to postmasters. 4. The General Account is settled quarterly. 5. To procure a readjustment of salary, apply to the Third Assistant Postmaster General as above stated. 6. All post offices are entitled to all kinds of blanks necessary for the business of the respective offices.

Mail Messenger Service.—J. D. P., R——, Cal.—At offices more than eighty rods or a quarter of a mile from depots, mail messengers are employed to carry the mail between the depots and offices. Your office being only two hundred yards, or less than forty rods, distant, you are not entitled to a mail messenger, but the mails should be delivered into your office by the railroad company. Sec. 471 Reg. 1866.

Office Hours.—B. S. G., L—— G——, N. C.—The office hours of post offices vary in different parts of the country, and under different circumstances. The usual business hours of the place is the rule. But this is not to be construed into an obligation to keep an office open till 10 or 11 o'clock at night because some saloon or tavern remains open. From 7 to 8 o'clock in the evening is a very suitable time to close a post office, unless a mail should arrive about that time. Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.

Reporting Returned Request Letters.—J. R. S., S—— C——, [illegible] 399, Regulations of 1866, requ[illegible]nt [illegible]ac number of request letters sent back to the writers during each quarter must be sent by special letter to the Third Assistant Postmaster General.

Post Office Regulations.—T. H., D——, O.—The First Assistant Postmaster General has the disposition of the Post Office Regulations; you could probably procure a copy from him.

Intentional Insufficient Prepayment of Postage.—C. A., O——, O., and H. T. L., R——, Iad.—It has been considered that letters intentionally insufficiently prepaid should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, and till lately this decision was held to apply to insufficiently prepaid letters bearing the card of the writer, though prepaid one rate, and such letters were, accordingly, returned to the writer. But this practice has been changed, and now insufficiently prepaid "card"-letters paid one full rate must be forwarded with the amount due and charged on them, and collected on delivery.

Time of Departure of Mails.—P. J. K., V——, Pa.—A mail carrier has not the privilege of fixing his own time of departure. That time is fixed by contract. But you probably refer to a mail messenger, in which case the time of departure should be so fixed by the postmaster as to allow the mail to be kept opened the proper time, and also give the messenger sufficient time to reach the depot; and he should not loiter on the way. Sec. 76, reg. 1866.

Registration, etc.—B. F. B., D—— W—— G——, Pa.—1. It is not required to send any registry bills or accounts with the quarter's returns. 2. At offices of the fourth class, dead and unclaimed letters should be sent to the Dead Letter Office once a month—sections 362 and 370, regulations of 1866—but if you have special instructions to send only once in three months you must obey them.

Postage.—J. H. B., L——, Pa.—Where one of a number of a regular newspaper weighs over four ounces transient postage should be collected on the excess of weight.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.
FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, es unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandratta, Latakia, Mersina, Retino and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 onnces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 onnces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 onnces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by regular publishers. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

On matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)	30	"
For Tri-Weekly, " "	15	"
For Semi-Weekly, " "	10	"
For Weekly, " "	5	"

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office a the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 18 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 3. NEW YORK, DECEMBER, 1871 WHOLE NO. 135.

Report of the Postmaster-General.

We give below such extracts from the Report of the Postmaster-General as our limited space will permit, embracing those portions likely to be of most interest to our readers:

FINANCES.

The ordinary revenues of this Department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1871, were $20,097,[illegible] and the expenditures of all kinds $21,900,104 08. For the year ended June 30, 1870, the ordinary revenues (not including the amount of money-order funds deposited as postal receipts for convenience of transfer) were $18,878,377 65; and the expenditures (not including the amount of money-order funds retransferred) were $23,348,837 63. The increase of revenue for the year 1871 over the year 1870 was $1,157,667 77, or 6.13 per cent., and the increase of expenditures $1,041,298 45, or 4.45 per cent., showing a net increase in revenue of $116,401 32. The increase in revenue for the year 1871 over the year 1869 was $2,722,809 20, or 15.72 per cent., and the increase of expenditures for 1871 over 1869 was $1,251,978 58, or 6.41 per cent. The increase in revenue for 1871, compared with 1870, was less than the increase for 1870, compared with 1869, by $270,042 16; and the increase of expenditures for 1871, compared with 1870, was greater than the increase for 1870, compared with 1869, by $740,590 32.

STAMPS AND STAMPED ENVELOPES.

The number of adhesive postage-stamps issued during the year was 456,126,175, representing	$14,680,716 00
Stamped envelopes, plain, 49,954,635, representing	1,452,474 75
Stamped envelopes, "request," 46,111,650, representing	1,484,181 60
Newspaper wrappers, 5,600,000, representing	182,160 00

The whole number of stamps, envelopes and newspaper wrappers was 502,901,450, of the aggregate value of $17,629,551 25

The number of packages of postage-stamps lost in the mails during the year was six, representing $358; and of stamped envelopes three, representing $51 70; being much less than the losses from similar delinquencies in 1870 and previous years.

CONTRACTS—TRANSPORTATION STATISTICS.

There were in the service of the department on the 30th June, 1871, 7,286 contractors for the transportation of the mails.

Of mail routes in operation there were 8,951, eggregrating in length (exclusive of special routes) 238,359 miles, in annual transportation 107,572,794 miles, and in annual cost $11,529,395. Adding the compensation of railway post-office clerks, route-agents, local agents, mail messengers, mail route messengers and beggage masters in charge of registered packages, amounting to $1,875,526, the aggregate annual cost was $13,404,921.

The service was divided as follows:

Railroad routes: Length, 49,834 miles; annual transportation, 55,557,048 miles; annual cost, $5,724,979—about 10.30 cents per mile.

Steamboat routes: Length, 20,304 miles; annual transportation, 4,684,778 miles; annual cost, $776,843—about 16.58 cents per mile.

Other routes, on which the mails are required to be conveyed with "celerity, certainty and security:" Length, 168,191 miles; annual transportation, 47,330,968 miles; annual cost, $5,027,478—about 10.82 cents per mile.

There was an increase over the preceding year in length of routes of 7,127 miles; in annual transportation, 10,547,798 miles, and in cost, $644,743. Adding the increased cost for railway post-office clerks, route, local and other agents, $404,636, the total increase in cost was $1,049,378.

The foregoing statements of distances and costs do not include service for "special" offices. There were at the close of the year 2,115 of these, each with a mail-carrier whose pay from the department is not allowed to exceed the net postal yield of the office. "Special" routes and their carriers are included, however, in the number of contractors and routes as given above.

The new railroad routes put in operation during the year 1871 amounted to 6,107 miles; during 1870, to 4,190 miles; and during 1869, to 3,518 miles—making in the aggregate an addition in three years of 13,816 miles to the 36,018 miles in operation on July 1, 1868. The increase in three years exceeds 38 per cent., and in the last year alone it reached the unparalleled proportion of 17 per cent.

MAIL BAGS, LOCKS AND KEYS.

A table appended to this report exhibits in detail the number, description and cost of mail bags, locks and keys purchased and issued during the year. The total number of new mail bags procured and put in service was 60,400, of which 54,000 were used for transmission of printed matter and 6,400 for letter mails. Their cost was $86,015. Contracts for furnishing mail bags of all kinds were made during the year, according to law, after due advertisement, at prices averaging about 18 per cent. less than the last contracts for similar articles.

The necessity of substituting new kinds of mail locks and keys for those formerly in use demanded very large purchases during the year. The number of locks of the new kinde purchased was 100,000, and of keys 63,000, at a cost of $68,190. Adding $1,278 40, the cost of repairs, the total expenditures are shown to be $69,463 40.

MAIL DEPREDATIONS.

The number of complaints of missing letters during the year is 4,600, of which 2,057 were registered and 2,543 unregistered, containing bends, drafts and currency to the nominal amount of $418,748 92. Of registered letters, 659 were accounted for as received at their destination, and only 283 have been reported as actually lost. The remaining cases are in the hands of special agents for investigation.

For violations of the postal laws 123 persons have been arrested, of whom 51 have been convicted and sentenced to different degrees of punishment, and the remainder are in the hands of the Department of Justice, to be dealt with according to law.

RAILWAY POST-OFFICES.

The statement hereto appended shows an increase of eight lines and 2,956 miles of railway post-office service. The number of lines in operation on the 30th day of June, 1871, was 49, extending in the aggregate over 11,208 miles of railroad and steamboat routes. Upon 8,660 miles the service is performed daily, upon 2,527 miles twice daily, and upon 21 miles four times daily, equivelent in all to 13,798 miles each way daily. Counting all the lines both ways, the aggregate service is 27,596 miles daily, and 10,072,540 miles annually. The number of clerks employed was 513, at an annual cost of $649,400, against 375 clerks, at a cost of $442,600 for the previous year, showing the increased cost for the fiscal year to be $206,800. Of this amount the sum of $28,600 was expended for the equalization of salaries, the clerks in the western division and on two lines in Massachusetts, numbering in all 143, having been paid, previous to July 1, 1870, for the same class of duties, each $200 per annum less than those upon the other lines. Deducting this sum, the increased expenditure is $178,200.

The want of sufficient room upon the cars now in use prevents, however, the proper distribution of the large through paper-mails, subjecting them to frequent delays at the various distributing offices for separation, while the letter-mails go directly forward to their destination.

FOREIGN MAILS.

The total number of letters exchanged, during the year, with foreign countries, was 20,295,998, an increase of 1,936,620 over the number reported for 1871. Of this number, 10,461,868 were sent from, and 9,834,130 were received in, the United States.

The number of letters (single rates) exchanged in the mails with European countries was 14,118,560, an increase of 913,014 over the number reported for 1870.

The total postage on the letters exchanged with foreign countries amounted to $1,725,266 32, being $229,296 16 less than the amount reported for 1870.

APPOINTMENTS.

Number of post offices established during the year	2,407
Number discontinued	854
Increase	1,553
Number in operation on June 30, 1870	28,492
Number in operation on June 30, 1871	30,045
Number to be filled by appointments of the President	1,172
Number to be filled by appointments of the Postmaster-General	26,873
Appointments were made during the year:
On resignations	4,306

On changes of names and sites	178
On deaths of postmasters	309
On establishment of new post offices	2,407
Total appointments	8,370
Number of cases acted on during the year	9,415

FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM.

The free delivery system has been in operation during the year in fifty-two of the principal cities, with the following aggregate results:

Number of letter carriers	1,419
Mail letters delivered	112,612,693
Local letters delivered	27,945,760
Newspapers delivered	89,610,3 3
Letters collected	113,287,602
Amount paid carriers, including incidental expenses	$1,358,923 23
Postage on local matter	758,120 78

EMPLOYES IN THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The following table will show the number of postmasters, contractors, clerks in post offices, route agents, railway post office clerks and other officers in service on June 30, 1871:

Postmasters	30,045
Contractors	7,286
Clerks in post offices	3,439
Letter carriers	1,419
Route agents	684
Railway post office clerks	513
Mail route messengers	103
Local agents	82
Special agents	52
Total	43,623

DEAD LETTERS.

The number of letters, domestic and foreign, received at the dead letter office during the last fiscal year was as follows:

Domestic letters, classed as—

Ordinary	2,931,244
Drop	402,309
Unmailable	374,363
Hotel	96,732
Fictitious	66,264
Registered	5,162
Returned from foreign countries	77,019
Total domestic letters	3,973,075
Foreign letters	221,673
Whole number	4,194,748

Of domestic letters not registered, 16,218 contained money amounting to $38,608 37, in sums of $1 and upward; and of the registered letters, 2,359 contained $19,204 61, making a total of 18,577 letters, containing $78,812 98. Of these, 17,082, containing $74,420 90, were delivered to the writers or persons addressed; 2,902, containing $10,397 02, which could not be returned to the owners, were filed for reclamation; and 1,495, containing $4,392 08, were outstanding. The number inclosing sums less than $1 was 14,836, containing $3,808 92; of which 12,413, containing $3,094 00, were delivered to the writers, and 2,643, containing $714 02, were filed for reclamation.

The number of letters containing bank checks, drafts, deeds, etc., was 18,193, of the nominal value of $3,075,889 23; of which 17,905, of the nominal value of $2,853,030 31, were delivered to the owners, and 1,288, of the nominal value of $220,838 92, were outstanding or filed for reclamation.

The number of packages and letters containing jewelry, books and other property was 6,488; of which 4,293 were delivered, and 2,200 were filed for reclamation.

The number containing photographs was 42,119; of which 36,544 were delivered, and 5,575 were filed. The number containing receipts, bills of lading, etc., was 28,196; of which 27,081 were delivered, and 1,115 were filed. The number containing postage and revenue stamps and articles of small value was 40,749; of which 37,889 were delivered, and 2,860 were filed.

The number of letters without inclosures remailed to the writers was 1,628,803; of which 1,334,303 were delivered, and 294,500 were returned to the office and destroyed. The number in which the writer's name and local address were omitted or were illegible, and of letters containing circulars, etc., and consequently destroyed, was 2,173,984.

Of the unmailable letters, 301,472 were detained for postage, not being prepaid, as required by law. They were either wholly unpaid, were not prepaid one full rate, or were stamped with illegal or revenue stamps; 68,373 were misdirected, the post office, State or some necessary part of the address being omitted, and 3,518 had no address whatever.

POSTAL MONEY-ORDER SYSTEM.

During the last fiscal year, the number of money-order offices in operation was 2,078. On the 31st day of July, 1871, 376 additional money-order offices were established, so that the whole number of such offices is at present 2,452.

The number of domestic money-orders issued during the year was 2,151,794, the aggregate value of which was	$42,164,118 03
The number of such orders paid was 2,121,654, amounting in value to	$41,705,667 03
To this sum is to be added the amount of orders repaid to the purchasers	321,669 28
Total of payments	42,027,336 31
Excess of issues over payments	$136,781 72

The amount of fees or commissions paid by the public to postmasters for the issue of orders was $295,286 15.

This statement shows an increase over 1870, in the amount of orders issued, $8,109,923 32, or 23 4-5 per cent.; in the amount of orders paid, of $8,-066,941 52, or 23 4-5 per cent.; and in the amount of fees received, of $50,050 35, or 25+ per cent.

The average amount of the money-orders issued during the year was $19 53. This amount varies but little from year to year, not having fallen below $18 for the last five years, and having only once slightly exceeded $20.

The receipts and expenditures of the last year, as adjusted and reported by the Auditor, were as follows, viz.:

RECEIPTS.

Fees received for money-orders issued	$295,286 15
Amount received for premium on drafts	377 23
Total	$295,663 38

EXPENDITURES.

Commission to postmasters and allowances for clerk hire	$177,773 56
Allowances for remittance [illegible]	7,716 00
Incidental expenses, viz: [illegible] stationery and [illegible]	8,893 04
	194,381 60
Excess of receipts over disbursements, being revenue derived from the transaction of the money-order business	$101,181 77

Out of the whole number of orders paid, viz., 2,121,664, payment of 90, amounting to $922 68, was claimed to have been improperly or fraudulently obtained. In nine cases the amount of the orders, $891 66, was recovered by special agents and paid to the rightful owners. In five cases, amounting to $141, the paying postmasters were held responsible for the erroneous payment and required to pay over that amount to the several persons entitled to receive it. The Department refunded the amount of two orders, for $45, improperly paid, the postmaster not having been found at fault. In four cases, amounting to $81, the claim for compensation was not allowed, as it was discovered upon investigation to be without good foundation. Ten cases, of the value of $274 14, are still pending.

FOREIGN MONEY ORDERS.

It was stated in my last annual report that negotiations were in progress for the establishment of an international system of postal money-orders between the United States and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. As these negotiations, which were conducted by means of epistolary correspondence for a period of eighteen months, failed to effect the agreement as to the provisions of such a system, I decided, in May last, to send a competent officer of this Department to confer personally with the postal authorities of the United Kingdom upon the points in controversy. The Superintendent of the Money-Order System was accordingly dispatched to London for that purpose on the 25th of that month, as a special agent, duly authorized to negotiate the terms of a convention for a money-order system between the two countries, subject to my approval, by and with the advice and consent of the President. The special agent succeeded in negotiating a convention for that object, which was signed in London June 30, 1871, and approved and signed in Washington July 27, 1871. A copy of that convention will be found in the appendix. In pursuance of its provisions, the money-order system between the two countries went into operation October 2, 1871. From that date up to October 28, a period of four weeks, the amount of the orders remitted from this country to Great Britain was $63,061 13, and of orders in the opposite direction $14,684 19, a manifest indication that the system of exchange applies an existing want and will be extensively used by remitters of small sums to and from Great Britain.

A communication having been received May 15, 1871, from the post department of the German Empire, expressing a desire to enter into negotiations "for the introduction of the money-order system into the postal intercourse between the two countries," I instructed the special agent above mentioned to proceed, after having completed negotiations with the British office, to Berlin, and to treat with the post department of Germany as to the terms of a convention for establishing an international money-order system with that country. A convention to that end was duly negotiated, in pursuance of these instructions, with an authorized agent of the German post department, at Berlin, July 22, 1871, and now awaits completion of ratification by the proper authorities of both countries. By the terms of this convention, the money-order business between the two countries is to commence on the 1st of October, 1872.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.

The Postmaster General being required by a clause of the first section of the civil appropriation act of March 3, 1871, to fix the rates to be paid for telegraphic dispatches by the several Departments of the Government, I called to my assistance Brigadier General Albert J. Myer, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, and upon his recommendation, supported by the legal opinion of Hon. William Whiting, specially retained as Assistant Attorney General, I passed an order, dated June 29 last, declaring—1st. That the rates for all telegraphic communications known as the signal-service messages and reports should be two cents for each word for each circuit over which it may pass in accordance with the schedule of circuits and plans of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, and that no additional or extra allowance should be made under any pretext whatever; 2d. That for all other communications on behalf of the Government the rate should be one cent per word for each distance of two hundred and fifty miles or fraction of such distance.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH.

The postal telegraph is by far the most important subject now inviting consideration in connection with the transmission and interchange of intelligence. The governments of the continental countries of Europe have, with few exceptions, claimed and exercised for years past the right of controlling and managing the electric telegraph, and in every instance with a degree of success commensurate with the care and attention bestowed upon their respective administrations. In Sweden, Norway, Russia, Bavaria, Italy, Turkey, Greece and Spain, great advantages have been gained by making the telegraph a part of the public postal system; while in Switzerland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Prussia and France, where modern appliances and improvements have been more thoroughly utilized, the policy of governmental control has been fully vindicated. It remained for Great Britain to give a practical test of the public system as compared with the management of corporations and companies of private stockholders. After a protracted and most laborious investigation, Parliament passed, on 31st July, 1868, "An act to enable Her Majesty's Postmaster General to acquire, work and maintain electric telegraphs," which was followed on the 9th August, 1869, by an act providing the money necessary to purchase the undertakings of the several telegraph companies in Great Britain and Ireland. On the 5th of February, 1870, the transfers were effected, and the work of the postal telegraph began. At first, serious difficulties were encountered by reason of the delay in passing the money bill and the inadequate preparations to accommodate the immense increase of business which immediately followed the large reduction of rates. These difficulties, however, were soon overcome, and, thanks to the indefatigable and intelligent labors of Hon. Frank Ives Scudamore, second secretary, and his assistants, the advocates of the measure can already boast of its triumphant success. The charges established in the beginning were uniform throughout the United Kingdom, without regard to distance, and were fixed at the maximum permitted by law, that is to say, one shilling (24 cents) for the first twenty words or part of twenty words, and threepence (six cents) for each additional five words or part of five words, exclusive of signature and address. Referring to an elaborate report of Mr. Scudamore, it appears that the average cost of inland messages was about one shilling, one penny, (26 cents,) against an average cost prior to the transfer of one shilling, sevenpence, (32 cents,) showing a reduction in price of nearly one-third. In the first week after the transfer, the number of messages (exclusive of news and press messages) forwarded from all stations was 128,872; in the week ending 31st March, the number had risen to 160,775. The average weekly number in 13 weeks, to 30th June, was 177,410; the average number in 13 weeks, to 30th September, was 200,757; and the average number in 13 weeks, to 31st December, was 208,572. In the week ending on the 31st December, which is usually considered the worst week in the year for telegraphic work, the number was 144,041, or nearly 16,000 in excess of the number of the first week. The total number of messages forwarded in the three quarters, to 31st December, 1870, was as follows: In quarter to 30th June, 2,306,340; in quarter to 30th September, 2,610,237; in quarter to 31st December, 2,646,438. In addition to the foregoing, ample provision was made for the press and news work. The companies, before the transfer, sent news to 306 subscribers in 144 towns only in the United Kingdom; the postal telegraph sent news to 1,106 subscribers in 365 towns. The companies sent news to 173 newspapers only; the postal telegraph sent news to 467 newspapers: showing an increase of 221 in the number of towns to which news was sent, an increase of 800 in the total number of subscribers for news, and an increase of 294 in the number of newspapers taking news. There was, moreover, a vast increase in the quantity of news transmitted. The companies sent, during the session of Parliament, nearly 6,000 words of news daily; during the remainder of the year, they sent nearly 4,000 words daily. The postal telegraph sent, during the session of Parliament, in behalf of the news associations, nearly 20,000 words of news daily; and during the remainder of the year, nearly 15,000 words daily. The postal telegraph also transmitted from 15,000 to 20,000 words daily for the ordinary newspaper correspondents; and seven newspapers routed special wires during the night at the uniform rate of £500, instead of rates ranging from £750 to £1,000, as before. Two other wires were about to be rented to newspaper proprietors at the close of the year, and many more could have been rented if the department could have spared them. There has been doubtless a still further increase of messages during the current year. By an official statement received from the British office, the number of messages for the week ending September 23, 1871, is shown to be 256,456, against 189,636 for the corresponding week of last year. This increase for a single week of 66,820, averaged through the year, would exhibit an annual increase of 3,474,640 messages. The financial results are even more satisfactory.

These facts, all tending with overwhelming force in one direction, demonstrate conclusively the utility of the postal telegraph for both government and people.

Some may hesitate to adopt it in this country because of the great extent of our territory, the paucity of our population in certain large sections, and the great expense involved in extinguishing the rights of telegraph companies. The first two are the same objections that were urged for many years against all ameliorations of our postal service; nevertheless, postages have been cheapened and made uniform, and, at the same time, the postal system has been maintained and improved. Rightly viewed, the extent of the country is a strong argument in favor of a postal telegraph and the additional facilities and uniform rates it will afford. It is only in countries of large extent that the value of instantaneous, or nearly instantaneous, communication can be appreciated. Who, that desires to convey or acquire any information, would hesitate between sending a telegram from New York to California in seven minutes for twenty cents, and sending a letter in seven days for three cents? Our sparse population is rapidly growing more dense by the acquisition of one million and a quarter of people per annum. As railroads are extended across the plains and through the mountains, they banish solitude and reclaim the wilderness with a celerity unknown to men of the last generation. The emigrant of to-day moves as part of an organized community. The railroad preserves for him a channel of constant supply, and the telegraph keeps unbroken the communication between the new end the old homestead. Before many years we shall hear complaints, not that we have too much land, but rather that we have not land enough.

It is true that a large sum of money will be required for the purchase of the present telegraph lines and their appurtenances. But if this be a difficulty, delay only magnifies it; for, admitting that the Government must at some time become the exclusive proprietor of the telegraphs, it is clear that every year will add to the amount of purchase-money it will have to pay. The companies now in existence will extend their operations, and new companies will be organized from time to time, all of whom would demand compensation for a surrender of their privileges and property. I therefore deprecate further delay as injurious to the public interests. The Postoffice Department is now prepared to undertake the organization and management of the telegraph in connection with its other duties. Indeed, I believe that the Department itself can aid materially in raising the money needed for the purchase through postoffice savings banks, if Congress will authorize their establishment. The security of the Government being the best that could be obtained, many depositors would give it the preference over every other. By paying four per cent. interest, at the most, on deposits, a large fund could be readily accumulated and invested, under the direction of the Treasury Department, in the public securities. The proceeds of these investments could be used to reimburse the original purchase-money and all other expenditures for construction and repairs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Convinced of the wisdom of establishing the postal telegraph and post-office savings banks in this country, I earnestly recommend the passage by Congress of the laws necessary therefor. In my judgment, those laws should provide as well for the absolute purchase of the lines and appurtenances of all telegraph companies now in operation as for the exclusive right and authority of the government, after the several purchases shall be concluded, to conduct the business of transmitting telegraphic messages.

Again I renew my recommendation for the repeal of the franking privilege. Its existence is utterly incompatible with an economical and vigorous administration of postal affairs. Flagrant frauds have been practiced during the past year, and will continue to be practiced, under its cover, so long as the privilege is protected by law. I refer to my arguments on this subject in former reports with unshaken confidence in their soundness.

The bill "to revise, consolidate and amend the statutes relating to the Post-Office Department," known as the postal code, having failed in the last Congress, has been again introduced into the Senate. Much time and labor having been expended in perfecting it, I trust it may be passed at the approaching session with as little delay as possible. It contains some new provisions of much importance—among others, an authority for the introduction of correspondence-cards, an improvement for which a strong desire has been manifested on the part of the public.

The salaries of the three Assistant Postmasters General and the Superintendents of Foreign Mails and the Money-Order System are entirely incommensurate with their valuable services. The government, in simple justice to a class of officers whose faithful labors in its behalf require them to remain with their families in Washington during the entire year, should not hesitate to increase their annual compensation to $5,000. I cheerfully reiterate my acknowledgment of their conspicuous merit and industry, and earnestly commend them to the favorable consideration of Congress.

COMMUNICATIO

B——, Me., Nov. 16, 1871.

Editor U S. Mail:

DEAR SIR: I would call your attention to quite an aggravating case we had a short time since at this office. The Cashier of one of the banks in this city made complaint that he had lost three letters containing checks, drafts, etc., to the amount of $8,000. He made his affidavit that he mailed the letters himself. In the meantime the President of the bank notified other banks that the letters were stolen in this office, that we had a lot of demoralized soldiers, etc., and that it was not safe to send valuable letters by mail. We did all we could to find the missing letters, notified special agents and the offices where the letters were directed, but could get no trace whatever of them. Six weeks after the letters were lost, the Cashier came into the office and handed us the three letters all right, they having been in a coat all the time hung up at his house, he not having worn the coat since the day the letters were lost. I would add that the President of the bank has never been near the office to make any explanation whatever, but the Casbier acted the part of a gentleman and immediately notified us and was very sorry he had caused us so much trouble. This case goes to show how easy it is to make a mistake, and before a person makes oath to a thing he should not have any doubt whatever in the case.

P. H. JONES, Postmaster, New York.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, DECEMBER, 1871.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 134 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

Just One Word.

Those of our subscribers who have been so much occupied with official and other business that they have for some months past forgotten to remit the amount of their overdue subscriptions, are hereby requested to take the present opportunity of repairing the omissions and send the dollar at once before they again forget it.

Sundry Post-office Matters.

The collecting-defaced-stamps fever has broken out again. Somebody is offering $300 for 1,000,000 such stamps, and some other bodies have had their ideas so worked upon that they think this somebody is the Postmaster General. We have repeatedly stated that defaced stamps, in the hands of honest people, are worthless for any purpose but old paper, except in a few instances of stamp dealers, with whom a small quantity has a small value, for sale to stamp collectors. Sometimes dishonest men get hold of defaced stamps and clean some of them sufficiently to be able to use them for paying postage; but it is a dangerous practice, as there is a penalty of fifty dollars for the use or attempt to use every such stamp. (Section 299, Laws of 1866.) We advise all persons to "let alone" defaced postage stamps; they are dangerous playthings. . . . . We have a letter from a new postmaster, continuing the subscription to the MAIL, the former postmaster having held the office forty years, while his wife had been his assistant for twenty years. These are long terms of postal service, one of them carrying us back to the days of Andrew Jackson. But this ancient postmaster was not well posted in the present postal law, for no all packages open at the ends, whether dry goods or not, be charged postage at third-class rates. . . . . We have now a request to discontinue the MAIL, because the postmaster "is too busy to use it." "A poor excuse is better than none," and a poor excuse this is. We should not be surprised if at that office there should be some "overcharges," "undercharges" and no charges. Our foreign postage table for this month has received a thorough examination, and some changes made where we found that lower rates may be charged. The community whose postmaster does not have time to use the MAIL will not receive the benefit of these changes. . . . . We have a letter in which the inquiry is made, "Why not increase the amount that may be sent by money order?" The object of the money order system is to afford security in remitting small amounts, and general facilities for drawing the money not afforded by banks. It is desirable to avoid competition with the banking interest. . . . . A post office clerk asks us to be explicit on the matter of forwarding letters. The general rule is that a letter that has not passed from the custody of the post office may be forwarded without additional postage; but if it has been delivered and then brought to a post office to be forwarded, a new postage must be charged, though it need not be prepaid. A letter in the hands of a carrier for delivery is still in the custody of the post office to which that carrier is attached. . . . . We have a letter from Maine, inquiring the rate of postage on rug designs. Our correspondent was not sufficiently explicit in stating the material of the design. If it is paper the postage is at miscellaneous rates, but if canvas or other textile fabric the postage would be at letter rates. But a postmaster through whose office such matter merely passes has no right to detain it or return it, but must forward it; the postmaster at the office of delivery should charge and collect whatever postage may be due.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Blanks and Marking Stamps, etc.—E. D., B——, N. J.—Official envelopes are furnished by the Third Assistant Postmaster General, blanks (except Mail Registers) and marking stamps by the First Assistant Postmaster General, but offices where the gross receipts are not $50, are not entitled to marking stamps.

Delivering Mail Matter on a General Order.—H. R. F., C——, Pa.—A general order in writing is sufficient to authorize a postmaster to deliver mail matter, without reference to the manner in which it will afterward be delivered to the parties for whom it is intended. Sec. 50, Reg. 1866.

Time of Closing Mails.—B. T. O. C., B——, Mich.—The regulation time for closing mails at all offices other than distributing offices, is a half an hour before the time fixed for their departure, unless the departure is between 9 o'clock P. M. and 5 o'clock A. M., in which case the mail may be closed at 9 P. M. Sec. 76, Reg. 1866.

Eligibility for Postmaster.—M. N. D., W——, N. Y.—A postmaster may hold a State office provided the law of the State does not forbid it.

Statement from the Post Office Department.—N. H. E., A——, N. Y.—The Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department furnishes statements quarterly of the General Account. These will show any discrepancy with your own account. You should keep your account so that you can swear to its correctness and be able to produce receipts for every payment you have made. The Auditor is very exact and will not enforce the payment of any claim when it can be shown to be unjust. Sometimes receipts are not sent to him, sometimes they are sent but do not reach him. You should always take duplicate receipts.

The County Papers.—D. S., F——, S——, O.—Only one copy of the same weekly paper can be sent free to each subscriber in the county. If more are sent, postage should be charged on them, and the proper Special Agent informed of the circumstances.

Undelivered Newspapers.—E. L. R., H——, Pa.—Undelivered newspapers must be sold at the end of a quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department. How to compel publishers to discontinue sending newspapers, after being notified they are not taken out, is a question not settled. Many publishers labor under a hallucination, that by continuing to send papers to persons who are in arrears for subscription they can collect for papers sent up to the time of discontinuance, and for this reason continue to send to the dead, diseased, dissatisfied and bankrupt. There may be in some of the States a law or decision to that effect, but postmasters in their official capacity have nothing to do with enforcing State laws.

Office Hours.—T. B. V., P—— P——, Mich.—Eight o'clock in the morning is not an unreasonable hour to open an office in the country during the winter months. If a mail arrives at 5.30 A. M., it is not necessary to keep the office open from that time nor to open it before 7 or 8 o'clock, according to the season. Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.

Advertising Letters.—F. F., D——, L——.—The regulation requires that letters at offices where the salary is less than five hundred dollars should be advertised once a month by the posting of manuscript lists. Sec. 362, Reg. 1866.

Forwarding Letters.—C. R. J., G——, Pa.—Letters that have not been out of the custody of a post office may be forwarded free of postage. If any postmaster marks "due 3" on such letters it is through ignorance or mistake.

Letters Not Prepaid.—"Unmailable letters" and letters "held for postage" are to be sent to the Dead Letter Office once a week, separate from the regular returns. Sec. 374, reg. 1866.

Registration.—G. R. D., M——, N. Y.—A registered letter should not be sent to the party addressed until the receipt for it has been signed by him or some person authorized to sign for him. This, of course, does not apply to the delivery of registered letters by letter carriers. . . . J. M. S., M——, Mich.—Registered package envelopes, in which registered letters have arrived, should be retained by the postmaster about six months, and then sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Postage.—F. M. A., G——, N. Y.—Any blanks containing writing are subject to letter postage, such as policies of insurance filled in, etc., etc. . . . G. J. B., M——, Tenn.—Drawers are subject to letter postage.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, December, 1871.

The depot was reached in good season, and having purchased my ticket I took one of the thousand settee-seats ranged around the walls of the spacious waiting-room, to watch the opening of the door admitting passengers to the cars; and a patience-tiring wait I had of it. After a while, however—it seemed an age—three terrific knocks resounded through the immense hall, and simultaneously three huge doors rolled back and were swallowed up in the wall, and a general rush was made for the gaping apertures. After a severe struggle I succeeded in getting through, and was making my way toward the front of the train for the purpose of locating in the smoking-car, when I suddenly found the platform blockaded by a party of sportsmen, who were engaged in a war of words with the train conductor in regard to the disposition to be made of the canine moiety of the excursionists. The hunters were intent upon taking their dogs (a hound, a pointer and a spaniel) into the smoking coach, and the conductor was determined they should go into the baggage car, and he ultimately succeeded in having things his own way, at the expense, however, of a good deal of blustering and threatening on the part of the dissatisfied sports. The way being clear I entered the car and took a seat, and soon after the irate Nimrods followed in Indian file; and now having a front look at the party I recognized in the leader, C. I. Doolittle, one of Judge Waver's indispensable assistants in the New Census post-office. The recognition was mutual, and the young gentleman extended his hand, and of course mine met it, and they grasped each other, and a cordial shake was the antiquated but natural result, and this was followed by an introduction to his comrades, Messrs. Blore and Strykur, who proved to be two of the superintendents who were on board the ill-fated Dominie Sampson when she was wrecked, and who had succeeded in reaching land by diving from the bows of the vessel and making a submarine passage to the tow-path, a distance of at least fifteen feet. Their narrow escape and the courage displayed in that trying hour entitled them to some reward—and Mr. Mainman, the postmaster, thought a leave of absence for a fortnight would indicate his profound appreciation of their noble daring, and at the same time engender a spirit of emulation in his establishment which would develop itself when the exigency or opportunity arose. The vexed question with the favored officials was how to spend their holidays; but it was cleverly settled by the invalid Doolittle, who, being the possessor of a half score of dogs and a small armory of fowling-pieces, suggested that if he, too, could obtain a vacation, he would join the gentlemen in a hunting excursion and would furnish the animals and weapons. By a little adroit management this was effected, and hers they were en route for the Shawangunk Croastimbers. They were all clad in corduroys, heavy top-boots, and skull-caps with turn-up peaks half as large as carriage-dashers. Their guns were double-barreled, monstrous-throated things, closely verging on to the bell-mouthed blunderbusses of the olden time; and if success depended upon the apparel and appointment of the party, it was assured beyond peradventure. I invited Doolittle to sit by me, as our way lay over the same route as far as Pattypan Junction; and a moment afterward a gong sounded, the engine gave three short half-smothered whistles, and we rolled out of the depot. I purposely remained silent to give my neighbor an opportunity to broach any subject most pleasing to him, and he presently fell to it, with the inquiry: "Well, Mr. Thompson—" "Tonson, if you please," said I. "I beg your pardon, Mr. Tonson," said he, adopting the correction; "but I was about to ask what you think of our shop in town. It's considerable of an institution, don't you think so, eh?" "It's a large establishment, certainly," I replied; "but it strikes me that there is more help employed than is necessary, or else the labor is very unequally divided. The first day I visited the office twenty-three of the assistants were off on an excursion. To-day I learn that three of you can be spared for a fortnight. Now, this large supervising force is needed, or it is not. If it is, business must suffer by its absence; if not, its presence must act as a clog on the real workers, and as an unnecessary drain on the postal exchequer." "There is not any too much help, Mr. Tonson," rejoined my neighbor; "but, unfortunately, it is not exactly of the right kind. Position or preferment in our office does not (as in too many other public offices) always depend upon efficiency and integrity. The question 'Is he honest, is he capable?' is too frequently subordinate to one much easier to answer, 'Who are his backers?' As to our superintendents, they are essentially necessary to the prompt and systematic arrangement and operation of the details of the various departments of an office the size of ours, for you know it is one of the largest in the country, and their temporary absence would not affect the harmonious running of the machinery if that machinery was composed of the proper material and manipulated by intelligent and competent minds, but unfortunately this is not always the case, and you are therefore correct to a certain extent when you say the business must suffer by the absence or lack of vigilance on the part of the overseers. If we live long enough, however, we will see civil service reform in operation, and then merit will find its level and honesty and efficiency will have their just reward. If it comes in my day, I may be weighed in the balance and probably found wanting; but I am not selfish, I assure you, and would not for a moment desire to retain a position that I was voted unfit to fill." Just here a newsboy burst into the car shouting, "Mister, your dogs is loose, and one of 'em has jumped out of the baggage-car." Without saying a word, Doolittle seized his gun, rushed on to the platform and leaped from the flying train. I raised the window quickly and looked out, and, to my great horror, saw the young man rolling over and over down an embankment at least twenty feet high, and at the same time I observed his hound scudding across the fields as if old Nick was after him. The train was stopped as speedily as possible, and we hurried back, expecting to find poor Doolittle dead as a door-nail, but to our joyful surprise we saw him sitting bolt upright in a swamp, with his gun on his left shoulder, but his right arm was doubled up in such a way as to show us at a glance that it was broken. We took him out of his uncomfortable situation as tenderly as possible, and conveyed him to the train, and soon after reached the village of Windward, where the excursionists debarked and the injured gentleman was placed under the care of a physician. I accompanied them to the hotel, and concluded to remain with the party until I knew the result of Doolittle's injuries. As it was uncertain how long I would be delayed, it was necessary to telegraph to J. M., for I knew if I did not get home on that train, without giving a reason, she would imagine all kinds of dreadful things had befallen me. (She is not jealous, however.) The telegraph office and post office were in the same room, and when I entered I found the postmaster and another individual engaged in a hot discussion over the payment of a money order. It appeared that on the previous day an order had been presented for payment, and the postmaster gave his check therefor. It was after bank hours, and of course the money could not be drawn. This morning the check was paid, and another order had been received and presented, and another check tendered in payment, but it was peremptorily refused. The exasperated citizen had evidently been advised by some one of the illegality of the postmaster's mode of doing business, and referred him to section 335 of the Postal laws. The functionary declined to refer to the authorities on the subject, and turning to me inquired if I was familiar with the nature of the business under discussion, and at the same time reflecting seriously on the obstinacy and ignorance of a man who would refuse to take a bank check.

"Inasmuch as you have solicited my views in regard to this subject," said I, "I will give them to you very plainly. If a money order is presented to you for payment, and you give a check on the bank for it, it is prima-facie evidence that you have deposited your money-order funds in bank. If you have made such deposit, you have no doubt made it in your own name, and not in the name of the Post Office Department. If, therefore, you have deposited the money in your own name, it is placed to your credit along with your own money, and becomes a personal instead of a government fund, and goes out of the custody of the Money Order Department. In drawing against this fund, you cannot discriminate between your personal and official disbursements, and, as a matter of course, you use this money in all your unofficial pecuniary transactions. Now this is clearly converting it to your own use, and this is deemed and adjudged to be an embezzlement of so much of said money-order funds as shall be thus disposed of, and the penalty for which is imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than ten years, and to a fine equal to the amount embezzled." The rural official seemed amazed at this view of the case, and made haste to apologize to the gentleman, went out, and returned in a few moments with the money and paid the order which had just been presented, and then thanked me cordially for my opinion. After I had dispatched my telegram, he thanked me again, said he no doubt would have got himself in trouble, but now that he knew his duty he would be swift to correct his error and certain to "toe the mark" hereafter. When I returned to the hotel, the doctor informed me that Doolittle's injuries were not at all serious—his arm was fractured and his shoulder slightly contused—that was all, and he would be all right in a few days. I passed the day in his room, Blore and Strykur occupying their time in sauntering round the town and leering at the provincial sylphs, and in the evening I took the train for home.

In due time I reached the Saikes mansion, and found everything ship-shape and everybody glad to see me. During my absence all hands must have worked like beavers, for the transatlantic novelties had all been unpacked and properly arranged or stowed away, and not a vestige of the frightful array of boxes, barrels and bags, which thronged the house and all the approaches to it when I left, was to be seen. Even the fierce-looking Communist, with the double-dagger moustache, had been metamorphosed into the mildest mannered man imaginable, and the hirsute ornament on his upper lip had lost its rigidity and drooped over the corners of his mouth as limp as a rag. Saikes was got up regardless of expense, while J. M. sailed down the broad walk to meet me as richly appointed as Cleopatra's barge. Her hair and head-gear were stunning, the work, no doubt, of some of the French attaches. Quaint shaped pendants had usurped the place of the modest jet drops in her ears, a string of pearls and brilliants encircled her throat, two or three flashing hoops kept company with the plain gold ring which I had placed on her finger, while a robe of velvet, cut very low in the neck, relieved by cuffs and ruffles of lace, with a trail the Lord knows how long, had been substituted for the suit of black in which she was wont to encase herself on Sundays and other festive occasions, and when the dear good woman embraced me in due and ancient form I was almost suffocated by the pungent odors of the French scents with which she had perfumed herself.

REOULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FGREION COUNTRIES.

The regulations to he observed nnd enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, ndd ressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerlend and the North German Union, or to tbe countries to wbich they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circnlars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including meps, plans, prints, engravings, drswings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything tbat is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must tbere be any letter, nor any communication of the natnre of a letter, whetber separate or otberwise, unless tbe whole of snch letter or communication be printed. But entries mercly stating from wbom or to wbom tbe packet is sent sball not he regarded as a letter.

No hook-packet must exceed two feet in lengtb, or one foot in width or depth.

Any hook-packet wbich is not open at tbe sides or euds, or bes any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or npon its cover, cannot be received or forwerded in tbe mail; and it is the duty of postmastors, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine bookpackets, pettorns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing throngb their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from tbe mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may bave a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sampie; or wbere the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great tbnt it could fairly be cousidered as bnying on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 onnces in weigbt. Pnttsrns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weigbt of 7 1-2 ounces cannot he sent by mail to the North German Union.

DOMESTIO POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mallable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in p int, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four ponnds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Scc. 232, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepeid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) except ing those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 133, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either n personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may he forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four onnces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors. Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)	30	"
For Tri-Weekly,	"	"	15 "
For Semi-Weekly,	"	"	10 "
For Weekly,	"	"	5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actnal subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be peid qnarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
"	over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
"	over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free They may also state on the inside of their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four onnces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four onnces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 229, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four, or, and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 4. NEW YORK, JANUARY, 1872. WHOLE NO. 136.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, Dec., 1871.

Domestic arrangements, to my thinking, are as nearly perfect as possible at the Saikes mansion, and a serener or more agreeable family circle it may rarely, cannot be found. Saikes is a trump, and the more I know him the better I like him. To be sure he will intermittently drag in his barbarous attempts at French, and in his festive moods dislikes to discourse of anything but Parrte and its attractions—but with all this I esteem him very much, and J. M., observing this growing attachment, spares no pains to show her appreciation of my regard for her cousin. During his tour abroad the good man had imbibed some liberal ideas in regard to the hospitality displayed by the owners of large landed estates toward their tenantry and others, and he determined to practically apply them by getting up an old-fashioned Christmas banquet—a feast of good things—not to be surpassed by the best cooks and caterers in the country, and to which all the neighbors and the leading folks at Obtuse Angle were to be invited. Preparations were at once made to carry out the plan, and operations commenced by sending out invitations, to every one of which favorable responses were received. The resources of our farm were inadequate to supply all the solid food for the occasion, and the whole country side therefore was foraged for choice fish, flesh and fowl, to say nothing of butter and eggs and sich. These supplies were brought in, as prearranged, the day previous to Christmas, which was a most inauspicious one, and when "thick" night had covered the land a terrific gale of wind and rain broke loose, which threatened for a while to wash out Pond Lily entirely, and after the scare was over leaving saddening impressions, because we feared our invited guests would be unable to come on the morrow—and we knew how disappointed they would be, and then, too, as some one religiously remarked, so much good food would be wasted.

But Christmas day duly arrived—and a beautiful, bright, glorious day it was—and toward the hour of eleven the people began to assemble. Every one that had been invited put in an appearance, and, presuming on old acquaintanceship, a number of them had brought their friends along, and by midday the house and grounds presented a lively appearance. A placard over the front entrance announced: "Dinner at 3 o'clock. Guests in the meantime have the freedom of the place, to do as they like and enjoy themselves as they please." Among our visitors from "Obtuse Angle" were Postmaster Grawdles, Colonel Convex, the editor of the Boundless Continent; Doctor Belwax, the leading physician, and Judge Sloth, the head of the legal firm of Sloth, Moth & Gweezy. At the suggestion of Mr. Saikes, these gentlemen were constituted a Committee of Arrangements, they adding thereto a dapper little city lawyer named P. Winkum Bohber, "who's a perfect Jehu in gittin' up fun," as Sloth facetiously remarked. The postmaster proposed adjourning to the parlors and singing Christmas hymns (voted down). Convex (whose elongated upper lip seriously affected his pronunciation) went in strong "for a fawx chase wid a cat" (negatived without a division). Belwax feared the ground was too damp for outdoor sports, and thought the time would be better exhausted in reading and in conversation with the ladies in the house. (The young men all voted for this, but they were in the minority.) Sloth hollowed his hands and brought them together until their fingertips tenderly touched, closed one eye, looked at the bridge of his nose with the other a few moments, then, having mentally settled matters, he deliberately proposed "that all hands go inside and refresh, and then work'll seem more easy." This was carried unanimously, with a vociferous "bear! hear!" from Bobber, which caused all our rural friends to look in his direction, supposing he had something more attractive to offer. Cousin Gratius forthwith led the way to the "salong de vang," as he denominated it, and when our provincial friends saw the wonderful display of potables, they were amazed. Bohber was the only individual who evinced no surprise, and in the most nonchalant manner commenced to sing something like this:

"When I feel it gurgling, murmuring Down my throat and my æsophagus"

—but Sloth just here placed his hand on the little fellow's mouth, and whispered audibly to him, "Bohber, my boy, silence in the court; no flash songs here!" and Bohber desisted. In a few moments the corks began to fly, and the work of moistening human clay commenced. After the first broadside several gentlemen proposed to retire, but Sloth intimated that it would be discourteous to go before returning the compliments of the season to their host, who had just tossed them, and to the lady of the mansion, although she was not present. A this arrangement bade fair to consume the interval before dinner, I considered it prudent to withdraw, particularly as a little note from J. M. was placed in my hand by a servant about that time, containing the to me significant words, "Be discreet." As I turned to go out I caught the postmaster's eye, which plainly said I want to get away, too, and we left the room together. To avoid those whom we feared would soon become demonstrative, we went into the library, locked the door, seated ourselves in a couple of well-stuffed capacious arm-chairs, and prepared to await the announcement of dinner; but I had scarcely settled myself in my seat before Mr. Grawdles pulled from his hat the last week's copy of the Boundless Continent and pointed to an editorial, headed "Where are we now, and what are we coming to?" I read the whimsical, senseless effusion which was intended for a severe attack on postmasters generally, and the "Obtuse Angle" functionary in particular, who appeared to feel it very sensibly.

I assured him there was nothing in the silly article that ought to annoy him—he rather should be pleased with it, as it censured him for doing his duty faithfully and fearlessly. Convex's great cause of complaint was that he was prohibited from inclosing in his papers mercantile hand-bills, quack circulars, etc., printed at his office, without subjecting them to materially increased postage. He went on to state that it was the common practice in some large cities for publishers to inclose circulars, supplements, prospectuses, sheet-music, pictures, every variety of advertising placards, plug tobacco, steel pens, writing paper, etc., etc., and they always went through unmolested, and it was therefore time the public press should let the world know that the postmaster of a small village usurped authority for some good reason of his own, which the largest offices in the land do not assert. Again a friend of his in the city, availing himself of a clause in the postal tariff relative to samples, had sent him, in separate packages prepaid at sample rates, a can of oysters, a box of cigars, and six bandana handkerchiefs, which duly arrived, but when called for, a bill for postage was presented, which probably exceeded in amount the value of the articles. Of course Convex was too shrewd to be swindled, and declined to take the packages. The postmaster "tried to throw dust in his eyes by telling him they were marked up at the mailing office, but that was too transparent—not any for Joseph. If postmasters want to increase their income, they must do it in some other way." Many similar ridiculous charges were made, and all of them were too contemptible to irritate or annoy anyone familiar with postal matters. I laughed a little, however, at the stupidity of this rural journalist, and then threw the paper into the grate. "Grawdles, my dear fellow," said I, "is it possible that such an absurdity as that can give you a moment's uneasiness? I do not know how long you have been postmaster, nor how long you may be; but if you never have anything worse than that said about you, you will deserve to be canonized. Don't you know that to falsely accuse and abuse post offices is the best hold of impecunious publishers, decaying business men, quack doctors, lottery swindlers, confidence operators, and Jeremy Diddlers of all kinds, who have this silent, convenient and ubiquitous agent to lay the blame upon for countless miscarriages of matter which was never mailed, or if mailed was duly received by these contemptible rascals and denied to their dupes? The lying sharps and the flats exchange condolences over these alleged losses: the flats are convinced, by sage reasoning, that the post office has done it all, the sharps in some cases offering to divide the loss and excite the admiration of the flats—in short, if the father of lies would unroll the scroll of falsehoods written up against the post offices of the country, it would probably make him blush; but the only satisfaction to be got from him would be, 'What are you going to do about it?' There are others, too, who are regarded as honorable, respectable people, who do not hesitate to 'stretch a little' if they get in a close corner. Mr. B. is on a visit to a neighboring city; by accident he becomes short, borrows $25 of his friend C., to be returned as soon as B. gets home. C waits some time, and finally gives B. a hint. B. writes back, 'My dear C., I sent the amount next day' (only he did not). 'Confound the post office!—I won't risk money again. I'll send you a check to-morrow for the amount' (which he does). Love-letters are lost (which were never written)—fault of post office. Promises to do certain things, to meet parties at certain times and places are alleged to have been duly mailed (which they were not), but not received, and of course a moiety of the parties are disappointed, and the poor post office is the villainous wretch that caused the trouble. Why, my dear man, I believe where there is one mistake or miscarriage of a letter by the postal authorities there are ten thousand caused by private individuals. Of course there are frequent causes of complaint; but a close scrutiny of the motives and character of the persons making them will show what weight to attach to them." My plain talk relieved Grawdles very much, and he assured me he would treat Convex's tirades with contempt hereafter. I suggested that he should avoid giving cause of legitimate complaint to the editor of the Boundless Continent, or anybody else, and he had nothing to fear for his official or social reputation. Our conversation was interrupted here by the first gong. I showed Grawdles to a dressing-room, and then hurried away to our "boudwar." You ought to see it. Saikes arranged it, and he says it is an exact copy of one he saw in Parree. J. M. was there, looking charming, and in ecstasies because everything had gone on so nicely; and everybody seemed to be delighted with everybody and everything. All the gentlemen had gone into the parlors, and it was arranged that a shooting match for an imaginary turkey was to come off after dinner, in which the ladies were to join. "Goodness knows," she continued, "there is nothing but those huge horse-pistols and muskets in the house, except your Springfield rifle; but for mercy's sake don't let any one have that, particularly the ladies, for I don't believe it has been fired off in over two years, and I'm sure it will burst." I assured the dear woman that it should not be fired off by anyone until she gave the word; and we went down stairs to join the genial congregation. I will not say anything more about the feast than that it was a glorious success. Saikes and J. M. did the honors, and the whole affair—with songs, speeches and toasts—passed off with great eclat. In the afternoon there was shooting, quoit pitching, out doors, and dancing and parlor croquet within; and when the time for breaking up arrived every individual present solemnly declared it to have been the happiest day of their lives. MONS. TONSON.

Among the Mails.

I was sworn in and entered upon the duties of the office on the 1st of July, 18—. Yes, I was sworn into the office, and for fear one oath would not answer the purpose, I swore in the office every day for a year; at the end of which time I had become so profane that I swore myself out of office without any difficulty.

I shall never forget that first day's experience. It was as hot as an attic sleeping-room, and the office about as large.

Mails were in from Slangville, Talk Town, Blow-on-Valley, Lip Creek, Gap Hill, Buzzin Flats, Crackfield and Shouting Hollow.

Mails were in from the East, West, North and South.

Way mails, side mails, catch mails and through mails, all slung at you like bundles of wheat when you can't mow them away half as fast as they are slung. I stood in the midst of that mountain of mail matter so helpless and dumfounded I didn't know what the matter was. I was as weak and limber as the limpiest bag in the pile. I actually did not know myself from the sides of sole leather that lay about me.

In ten minutes the mails went East and West; in fourteen they went North and South, and already a half-dozen sorrel-whiskered, raccoon-capped stage drivers were shouting "Mails!" "Hurry up there!" "D——d slow this morning!" and I heard one shimbly-shambly, grass-fed mule director say to another, "I guess the new deputy is a better hand on sorting taters than he is letters."

I knew I wasn't much of a sorter that day, nor much of a fighter any day, but I did sorter want to get at that miserable skinfull of revilement, and show him my proficiency as distributing clerk, but I was otherwise engaged.

Frantically I seized the mail key, and the first thing I attempted to do with it was to wind the office clock. Finally I succeeded in getting the mail bags open and all emptied into a huge box in the centre of the office.

As near as I could guess there must have been about fourteen bushels of unassorted mail matter. If it had been about fourteen bushels of beans to be handpicked, the task would not have seemed more formidable.

I was a little particular at first not to make any mistakes, but the grumbling of those waiting for their letters, and the shouting of the drivers without, warned me that my time was nearly up. So I just threw them around like dealing whist, gave each a fair proportion, reserving the biggest pile for Bottleford.

Then I stuffed the mail-bags, and jerked them out of the office door, and the hurry and impatience of those miserable drivers vanished as soon as they got possession of them. One, the noisiest of the lot, the one who made the undignified and tattered comparison, as a sorter, actually hung around for half an hour, staring at me through the window, and laughing at my perplexities. He said he would have me reported at headquarters.

I made up my mind if I ever got a chance I would report at his headquarters, and mind, too, for the matter of that.

The stage-drivers disposed of, a more formidable and more impossible task presented itself.

Three hundred and fifty letter-boxes to be hunted up, each with the owner's name in fine hand written on its upper margin. My boss, the P. M., told me I must find them out myself, then I would always remember where they were.

He was a man who had far more confidence in his judgment than I had in my memory. I recollect (and very surprising it is that I do) when I was first put upon the multiplication table—the solid square table, as constructed in the days of Daboll and Willet—I remember how dim, how uncertain, how unintelligible its twelve ranks of figures looked beginning with 1 and ending with 144.

Just so that parallelogram of hollow squares looked to me at that moment. It seemed that each individual owner was gazing with bloodthirsty eyes upon his number, and unless he received a letter he would go for the deputy. In a fit of desperation I seized a large package of letters.

Alonzo Plummer was the first name. Where was Alonzo Plummer's box? If the name had been written on it in letters as big as horse-shoes, I could not have seen it. I slammed it into the nearest box.

I did so with all the rest.

Every box had a letter as far as they went, and then I raised the slide. A rush was made for the opening.

"No. 9, No. 77, No. 50, No. 60, No. 102, sir, No. 240, if you please; anything for Storkes? anything for Bilger? No. 319, No. 185; anything for Sbellgrave? anything for Pickletop?"

And so it went, every mouth belching for a number or a name. I shoved out the letters indiscriminately and impartially, without regard to age, sex, nationality, color or previous condition.

Everybody got letters, but not one in fifty got their own.

"Here, Sam," says one, "is a letter for you in my box."

"What's this doing in my box?" says another.

"Ah, yes, excuse me, a slight mistake, belongs to Mr. Bangs."

"Bangs, did you say? I just asked and you said there was nothing for Bangs."

With my pencil I marked on it the number of the box from which I had taken it, and handed it out, remarking in a tone of injured innocence that "It was a mistake of the sender and not of mine."

"What is that nasty Polly Ines'letter doin' in my box?" screamed a rural swainess on the right of the attacking column.

"Mistook your name."

Madam thought it was politeness.

But the greatest pest of all was the school children. As soon as school was out there was one wild race for the post office. They began to inquire as soon as they came within shouting distance. They would inquire for themselves, and then for anybody that lived within five miles of them.

"Anything for any of the Murphys?" yells a little freckled-faced, yellow-topped potato mouth, with nationality so strongly developed that you could smell it.

"Anything for Jane Murphy?"

"No."

"Anything for Ann Murphy?"

"No."

"Anything for Tom Murphy?"

"No."

No, not for Pat Murphy, nor Dennis Murphy, nor Pete Murphy, nor for any Murphys, head, living, unborn, native or foreign-born, naturalized or otherwise, male or female—why created the them? The Murphy family disposed of, the FitzGeralds, and FitzPatricks, and FitzMoloneys were thrown at me until I caught them myself. I had Fitz chronic, and I could tell every day when they were "coming" on.

Children came to the office to inquire for letters, so young that they hadn't strength to carry home the Weekly Tribune, and who didn't know the difference between a letter and a door-plate. Not weekly, nor semi-weekly, nor daily; but hourly, as often as they could think of it. I have often seen them hang around the outside waiting for their hour to come and inquire for letters.

Great strapping girls came every day for weeks and months, who had the measles oftener than they had a letter; but they might have come to see the deputy, which was better than the measles, if not quite so good as receiving a letter.

One man came every day for three weeks, and made a terrible rumpus every time he came about the carelessness and inefficiency of the mail service. At last his important letter arrived, and it proved to be a patent medicine almanac of last year, but he had got fifteen or twenty dollars worth of labor and information out of me for nothing, and he was accordingly satisfied.

I like an inquiring mind. It shows research and progress. It is the spirit reaching out for something by which to draw itself higher; and it gets hold of a soft thing when it grabs a deputy postmaster.

He can get more civil answers out of him in one minute, than he can blast out of all the railroad conductors in Christendom, and he gets it for nothing, which is very wrong.

If the government would charge a farthing for every NO that is given in answer to the inquiry, "Is there anything in the office for me?" it would pay off the national debt in six weeks; and another great advantage would be, their deputies would not be required to NO so much, which would give people of ordinary minds and women a chance to display themselves.—Lansing Republican.

Singular Recovery of Lost Letters.

The Hartford Courant gives the following account of the recovery of two letters supposed to have been lost in the mails: On the 25th of November a letter containing a check for $1,000 was mailed from this city to a firm in Norwich. It was not received by the firm, and for several days the parties interested, and the postal authorities, have been busy in endeavoring to trace it. Yesterday a letter was received giving the news of its discovery under the following circumstances: "I received your letter, with another, this afternoon, through the post office, in a package from a friend, who stated that a Mr. Perry, from Greenville, purchased last Saturday an overcoat for his son, and that on inspecting the pockets after he reached home he found the two letters therein, which he handed to his friend to deliver to me. On inquiry I learned that a young man who lived with me, and whom I often sent to the post office to deliver and receive letters, bought an overcoat a day or two previous to the 25th ult., which did not suit him, and that on the evening of the 25th he exchanged with the clothing dealers for a better fitting one. The probabilities are that he went into the post office and got the letters and placed them in the overcoat pocket, and went from there to the clothiers' and made the exchange of coats, leaving the letters in the pocket, where they remained until discovered by the next purchaser of the overcoat."

This case goes a little beyond the one given by us last month.

COMMUNICATIO .

E—— P——, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1871.

EDITOR OF U. S. MAIL: There is one thing I wish to speak about, not having seen the same in the MAIL. That is, respecting Letter Way Bills.

The thought has often occurred to me that if letters to which way bills were attached were inclosed in official envelopes, plainly directed to the postmaster at the office of destination, it would prevent loss of way bills, and in the end aid to increase the revenue of the Post Office Department.

It would also aid postmasters in rating postage on insufficiently prepaid foreign letters, for sometimes the amount is not plainly written or stamped at the exchange offices, and when the bills are lost it is difficult to determine the amount due on them.

Should the exchange and distributing post offices inclose all insufficiently prepaid letters with their proper bills, in an official envelope, plainly directed to postmaster at office of delivery, the department would, I think, save more than cost of envelope in increase of postage on letters alone.

When sent in the customary manner bills are lost, and letters are frequently delivered without noting the undercharged or postage due; but if such letters were sent in a separate envelope to the postmaster he would at once perceive the same, and charge accordingly.

H. J. S., Ass't P. M.

The following letter from a female postmaster—not postmistress—is quite amusing. The gentleman who would prefer the "gentleman in black" to a woman for postmaster, must be a strong opponent to "Woman's Rights." His reasoning in this particular case is inimitable:

D——, Mass., Dec., 1871.

Editor of the United States Mail:

DEAR SIR: I was without the MAIL from August until about the 1st of December, and I felt as I think a mariner must without any compass, entirely at the mercy of the winds and waves, but thank fortune I have it once more, so I feel strong for any emergency. I am truly sorry for that P.M. who "is too busy to use it." His must be a model office. I not only read it as a duty, so that I may know what I am about, but because it gives me real pleasure. The only thing I dislike in post-office business is collecting newspaper postage. I hope the time will come when all postage will be prepaid, and no franking. That day will certainly be a happy one for postmasters. When the vacancy in this office was to be filled there were two petitions circulated, one for the old postmaster's wife, who is seventy-four years old, and the one for myself. One man who was called upon to sign said he would rather have the d—l than either of us, as he thought the proper place for women was in the kitchen, but he would put his name upon the paper for the oldest one, as he thought "there was some hope of her dying off the soonest," and leaving the place vacant for a man. But a few earnest advocates in my behalf carried the day, and I am bound to serve Uncle Sam faithfully, and with the help of the UNITED STATES MAIL, as faithfully, I hope, as any man who "is too busy to use it."

With respect, M. G. P., P. M.

In the following letter will be found an instance of the wrong done by postmasters exercising a discretion in charging postage, instead of adhering to the law. The writer of the letter charges his brother postmaster with "taking advantage of the postal laws," and complains that it was not right. We must differ with him: it is right to obey the law, it is wrong not to obey it; and it is a double, or triple, wrong; it is a wrong to the Department, it is a wrong to the postmaster's oath of office, and it is a wrong to the parties interested in the mail matter. The writer of the letter also thinks it would have been "a slight performance to have removed the wrapper." He is apparently ignorant of the fact that clothing, except to certain persons in the military and naval service (sec. 223, Laws 1866), is chargeable at letter rates, whether open to inspection or not:

L——, December —, 1871.

POSTMASTER: Sir—Some time in November I sent two pairs of stockings from this office, done up in a snug package, addressed to Mrs. M. Nichols. The postage on them was only eight cents, which was put on in stamps, and it would have been the slightest performance in the world to remove the paper on the end and disclose the contents.

I am informed that you took the advantage of the postal laws and charged eighty cents more, which was not right.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 136 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1860, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 9, 1871.

SIR: I have to request that you will cause the inclosed official notice respecting the postal convention just concluded between the United States and Denmark, to be published in the next issue of your paper.

I am, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL, New York.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1871.

A postal convention establishing and regulating an exchange of correspondence between the United States and Denmark has been concluded, and will be carried into operation on the 1st of January next. It provides for a direct exchange of correspondence in closed mails between the two countries by means of the steamers in regular service between their territories, as well as by the steamers employed in transporting mails between New York on the one side and Hamburg and Bremen on the other, embracing letters, newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples of merchandise.

The international postage on ordinary letters is established at 7 cents in the United States and 12 skilling Rigsmont in Denmark per each single rate of 15 grammes (½ ounce) or fraction thereof—prepayment optional; and the letters so prepaid in one country are to be delivered free of all charges whatsoever in the other. But if any letter shall be forwarded unpaid or insufficiently paid, it will be charged on delivery, besides the unpaid or deficient postage, with a fine or additional postage of 4 cents in the United States, and 6 skilling Rigsmont in Denmark. It is particularly to be observed, however, that the maximum weight of letters thus exchanged between the United States and Denmark is fixed at 250 grammes (8¾ ounces).

Other classes of correspondence, when posted in the United States for transmission in the closed mails to Denmark, will be subject to the following rates of postage, the prepayment of which is compulsory, viz:

Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof.

Book-packets, prints of all kinds and patterns or samples of merchandise, when not exceeding one ounce in weight, 3 cents; when exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight, 6 cents; when exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight, 8 cents; and for packets exceeding four ounces in weight an additional rate of 8 cents for each four ounces or fraction of four ounces. But if the postage on this correspondence should not be wholly prepaid, it will, nevertheless, be forwarded to destination, charged with the deficient postage; and in addition thereto a fine or additional postage of 4 cents in the United States, and 6 skilling Rigsmont in Denmark, will be collected on delivery.

Any international correspondence, as well printed matter and samples as letters, may be registered; and the correspondence so registered will, in addition to the rates of ordinary postage, be subject to an international registration fee of 16 cents in the United States and 8 skilling Rigsmont in Denmark; and the fee as well as the ordinary postage on all matter so registered shall always be prepaid.

New York and Chicago are the offices of exchange on the side of the United States for all mails forwarded to or received from Denmark under the provisions of this convention.

Postmasters will take notice hereof and govern themselves accordingly in levying and collecting postage on the correspondence exchanged with Denmark on and after the 1st of January next.

By order of the Postmaster General.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent of Foreign Mails.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, December 8, 1871.

A postal convention has been concluded between the United States and the Republic of Ecuador, establishing and regulating the exchange of international correspondence between the two countries by the ordinary means of communication via the Isthmus of Panama.

This convention, which goes into operation immediately, establishes a combined international postage of 20 cents in the United States, and of 2 reals in Ecuador, per each single rate of half an ounce or fraction of half an ounce, the prepayment of which is compulsory; and the letters so prepaid in one country are to be delivered free of all charges whatsoever in the other.

But for all correspondence other than letters, it is provided that the two countries may respectively levy and collect such rates of postage adapted to their interior administration and to the cost of sea transportation as they shall deem advisable. The following rates of postage are accordingly to be levied and collected in the United States on all correspondence (except letters) postpaid therein and addressed to the Republic of Ecuador, or posted in that country and received in the United States, viz.:

Newspapers, 2 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 2 cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof.

Prints of all other kinds, in sheets, in pamphlets, and in books; sheets of music, engravings, lithographs, photographs, drawings, maps and plans, if not exceeding one ounce in weight, 2 cents; when exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight, 3 cents; when exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight, 4 cents; and an additional rate of 4 cents for every additional weight of four ounces or fraction of four ounces.

New York and San Francisco are the offices of exchange on the side of the United States for all mails forwarded to and received from Ecuador under the provisions of this convention.

Postmasters will levy and collect postage accordingly from and after this date.

By order of the Postmaster General.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

Sundry Post-office Matters.

Our first letter presents to us a question for decision, wherein different sides are taken by the two postmasters at the ends of a short stage route. The question is: Can a mail carrier, going over his route on an extra trip, and not carrying the mail, take letters not in prepaid stamped envelopes? He cannot. He is a mail carrier during the whole time of his contract, whether actually carrying the mail or not.... A Western correspondent inclosed the end of an envelope on which is printed a notice stating that three or more firms may send circulars in the same envelope to any one address. The envelope is evidently the business envelope of an advertising agency. We should like to know where this agency finds the authority for its notice. Three circulars may be sent by one firm for one rate of postage, viz., two cents, but not three envelopes of two or more firms.... Our next letter comes from a postmaster who has been refitting and enlarging his office, and putting in boxes. He inquires if the Department will allow him the whole or a part of the expense. The Department does not make any allowance for such expense, except where the Government is directly interested in the premises. The same correspondent asks if he must deliver the village papers, numbering some 1,000 weekly, through the post office free of postage, or of pay for his trouble. He curtly inquires, "if it is the law," and we reply as curtly, "it is the law." It can be found in section 3 of Act of July 27, 1868. The section was framed specially to meet the case of weekly papers deliverable in the village where published.... Our next is an interesting and complimentary letter, wherein the writer also takes strong ground in favor of prepayment of postage on all mail matter, and describes his method of keeping newspaper accounts, which is similar to the admirable systems advertised on our third page.... Our next is an inquiry for "Ten Years Among the Mail Bags," written by the late Mr. Holbrook, the founder of this paper. The book has been some time out of print, and we do not know where a copy is to be had..... We give our next letter in full, without further commentary than that it contains words of practical wisdom:

I wish you would urge the adoption of a 5c. postal order rate for all sums not exceeding $10. One does not like the bother of getting an order for nine, two and three dollars and having to pay 10c. for it over and above. Without a 5c. rate, nine out of ten will risk their currency in small sums as I now do my dollar.

A. J.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, TREASURER'S OFFICE, Washington, Nov. 18, 1871.

On and after the 1st day of January, 1872, the existing rules governing the redemption of all kinds of paper money, which now is, or may hereafter become redeemable at the Treasury of the United States, will be changed to read as follows:

First. Fragments of a note, constituting less than one-half, will not be redeemed at all, unless on clear and satisfactory proof of the total destruction of the missing part.

Second. An entirety of less than five-eighths of a note, and being clearly half a note, will be redeemed at half the face value of a whole note.

Third. An entire piece, constituting five-eighths of a note, will be redeemed at its full face value.

F. E. SPINNER, Treasurer U. S.

Approved, GEO. S. BOUTWELL,
Secretary of the Treasury.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Carrying the Mail between a Depot and Post Office.—W. A. M., G—— I——, Neb.—If a post office is situated within one quarter of a mile of the depot, it is the duty of the railway company to deliver the mail at the office, but if situated a greater distance a mail messenger should be employed; but authority to do this must be obtained from the Second Assistant Postmaster General, Contract Office, Washington, D. C. Sec. 471, Reg. 1866.

Unclaimed Newspapers.—H. J. S., De B——, N. Y., and B. D. R., G——, Pa.—If newspapers are unclaimed or refused, it is your duty to notify the publishers; if after this they continue to send the papers, you must sell them (the papers, not the publishers) at the end of the quarter and credit the proceeds to the department. Here your duty and responsibility end, unless it may be in cases where many papers are sent that are not detained, you should notify the special agent of the district in which the publishers do business. If a publisher after seeing such notice continues to send papers, and then writes to know what has become of the papers and demands pay for them, you as a matter of courtesy should inform him what disposition you made of them; but as for pay, he has no more right to expect it than if he threw his papers in his own waste-basket and not in yours. Secs. 391 and 392, Reg. 1866.

Basis of Salaries.—D. B. B., C——, Mc.—The basis of salaries is the old method of commissions; the salaries are readjusted every two years. But to offices of the third, fourth and fifth classes they may be readjusted oftener, by coupling with certain regulations which will be furnished by the First Assistant Postmaster General. They are too long for us to publish here.

Distributing Circulars through Post Office Boxes.—W. J. B., M——, N. Y.—Circulars, whether addressed or not, if deposited for local delivery, should be charged at one cent each.

County Papers.—L. J. S., S—— W——, Conn.—A subscriber to receive a county paper five of postage must reside in the county in which it is published; that is, it must be his county paper; but he may receive it at a post office in an adjoining county if it is the office at which he usually receives his mail matter. It often is the case that a person resides near or on a county line, and that the most convenient office to him is a little way in the adjoining county. There are even cases where villages are situated in parts of two counties. It is to meet such cases as these that this provision was made. If the subscriber lives out of the county of publication he must pay postage, although his post office is in such county, unless the papers were deposited for local delivery.

Overweight of a Regular Paper.—R. W. H. B., M——, Iowa.—Where one number of a regular paper, which usually weighs under four ounces, weighs over four ounces, transient postage should be charged on the excess over four ounces and collected on delivery.

Registration.—J. A. G, N—— C——, Mass.—There are no hours fixed for registration. Letters for registration should be received at any time, and mailed by the first mail, if received in time to exercise the proper care in conducting the business. It would be well to have a time fixed for this, say fifteen to thirty minutes before closing the mail. This would have a tendency to relieve the postmaster of the care of registered letters that would otherwise be deposited too late for the first mail.... G. P. M., S——, Pa.—1. The name of the office to which a registered letter is post-billed should be entered on the post bill, and if a distributing office, the initials D. P. O. should be added. Sec. 10 Regn. Reg. 2. But these initials need not be added to the address on the registered package envelope. Sec. 10 Regn. Reg. 3. The return registered bill should be sent by the same mail as the letter, but not in the same envelope. 4. The name of the mailing office should be entered in the lower blank line of the return bill.

Postage on Letters to France.—E. L. C., S—— O——, C——, Pa.—A letter for France, prepaid 10 cents and not marked by any particular route, is sent by the first mail, for which the 10 cents is sufficient postage.

Postage on Drop-Circulars.—D. A. M., P——, N. Y.—Drop circulars filled in with writing are subject to a postage of one cent per each half ounce, at offices where a free delivery is not established, and two cents where there is a free delivery.

Postage on a Newspaper to a Subscriber who has Removed.—L. J. S., S—— W——, Conn.—A subscriber who removes from a town before the time for which he has paid quarterly postage, on a regular paper, has expired, should notify the publisher of the paper and have the address changed. He should also get from the postmaster to whom he paid the postage, a receipt for it; this receipt, presented to the postmaster at the new place of address, will be sufficient warrant for him to deliver the paper without postage. The postmaster who collects the postage is the one to make the return of it to the department.

Circulars Filled in With Writing.—J. C., G——, Cal.—Circulars or any printed matter having blank spaces filled in with writing are subject to letter postage. Sec. 244 laws 1866.

Charging Postage on Package of Blank Receipts Franked by a Member of Congress.—J. Z. L., L——, Tex.—If a package of mail matter, franked by a Member of Congress, is mailed at the office where the franking member is at the time, the package is entitled to pass free of postage. But if the member is at another place, or in other words, if he has "left his frank behind him" (S. c. 128 Reg. 1866), the package should be charged with postage. Chapter XV. of Regulations of 1866 contains full information. .... The postage on "other matters," as stated on our third page, is 2 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof. In one issue the 4 had dropped out.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondance, these directions must hereafter be observed: Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a

UNITED STATES MAIL.

United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German malls, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rettimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully paid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On outgoing letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.
2. Newspapers, hook packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.
2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.
3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the table in the fourth page, prepayment required.
4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,

Caymanbrack,	St. Christopher,	Trinidad,
Cuba,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inagua, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, if not exceeding 1 ounce in weight 2 cents; when exceeding 1 ounce and not exceeding 2 ounces, 3 cents; when exceeding 2 ounces and not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents; and four cents for every 4 ounces or fraction thereof. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York once a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayto,	Guadeloupe,	Oruba,
Cocha,	Hayti,	Porto Rico,
Cnagua,	Los Saintes,	Saba,
Culebra,	Margarita,	St. Bartholomow,

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus thereto, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to these possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in this privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.
Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " 5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz. 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 8 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 4 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 8 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, etc. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Metallic Post-Office Lock Boxes, that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post-Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market (all of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent. We will not hesitate to proceed vigorously against any and all persons who manufacture, buy or use any of them, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable in damages with the manufacturers.

VOL. XII., NO. 5. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY, 1872. WHOLE NO. 137.

Monster Tobson Again.

POND LILY, January, 1872.

As a summer residence Pond Lily is equaled by few and excelled by none; but when old grim winter, with his beard of snow and icy shoes, takes possession and turns loose the hyperborean blasts, it is, according to my ideas, a magnificent place to get away from. In point of fact, I think it is the coldest spot in America, and to my mind would make splendid training-ground for amateur Arctic exploring parties. Ninety days' exposure to the cutting winds which ceaselessly sweep down our valley would so harden the ambitious would-be discoverers of a northwest passage that the nipping blasts of Greenland would scarcely be felt. We have had very little snow thus far, but we have it all yet, and, despite the frigidity of the atmosphere, we have had our share of sleigh-riding. Gracious Salkes did not forget, among his various foreign purchases, an abundant supply of robes and furs, and could you but see our great ark on runners, with its luxurious outfit of robes made out of wolf, tiger, lion and buffalo skins, and the occupants, clad in seal caps, [illegible] coats, ruffs and mufflers, if you did not envy them, you would surely be convinced that they had nothing to fear from freezing breezes—particularly if you could see the arrangements beneath for keeping the feet warm, and the little locker bountifully supplied with choice stimulants, to perform similar service inwardly. Salkes is an admirable driver, and, when clad in his seal suit and seated behind the prettiest pair of coal-black horses in the world, caparisoned in silver-mounted harness, studded all over with bells, bells, bells, an extraordinary sensation is created as our equipage dashes along, while J. M. and myself, well tucked and muffled up, look on complacently at the admiring spectators. But even too much of this kind of thing becomes insipid and monotonous, and were it not for the occasional rural balls and parties, to which we are always invited, and rarely fail attending, the time would drag terribly. Of course Pond Lily opened the gay season by a hop and supper, and then our neighbors and the people at the Angle kept it up. The great event, however, was a grand ball given at the village hotel by "The Obtuse Angle Persimmon Club," a literary and epicurean association, and I must do the managers the justice to say that the affair was gotten up in the most festive style, and was an unqualified success. For days prior to the designated evening people were busy everywhere preparing for the great occasion, and tailors, milliners and sewing-machines were kept busy plying their needles. It was given out that a number of invited guests would be present from the city, and of course this put the provincial beaux and belles on their mettle to do their prettiest. We were among the first, and had a good opportunity to observe the others as they arrived singly and in couples. J. M. and myself had no idea of participating in the asitatory exercises, but Salkes had prepared himself with a pair of patent leather pumps, ornamented with delicate gold buckles, and it was evident that he intended to "shake a leg," or do something else on the "light fantastic toe." The ball-room was not as capacious as it might have been, nor was it of modern model; the manner of lighting it, too, by dip candles inserted in sconces suspended on nails along the walls, was rather antiquated, but still it answered—and although the crowd was so great as to almost prevent dancing, yet everything went merry as a marriage bell.

The musicians were selected from the orchestra of the New Census Midwinter Opera House, and under the batonship of Signor Hittimaginni performed wonders with their wind and string instruments. The programme announced that the ball would commence with the grand march from the opera of "Norma," and in accordance with this arrangement the floor managers ordered a line to be formed two deep for the opening promenade. When everything was ready, the signal was given and the band struck up; but instead of playing a staid and dignified march in which old and young could participate, "Garry Owen" was substituted, and before the procession had gone half round the hall, the whole congregation was hurried into a general breakdown. I was indignant at this, and so were a number of other elderly gentlemen; but there was neither time nor opportunity to declaim against this outrageous departure from the printed arrangements. I only know that a party young couple came between J. M. and myself, and while the young gentleman "set" to the dame, and hammered the floor terribly with heels and toes, his partner, a forward little minx, caught me by the hands, and, bellowing out "swing corners," gave me a wrench that sent me springing half way across the room. I had hardly time to recover myself before I was assailed by others in the same way, until I was fain to break from the ranks and seek sanctuary in one of the chairs. I turned then to look for the madam, when to my utter amazement I saw her prancing about, as wildly and apparently as any one of the company. I did not feel pleased at first at her apparent levity; but when I saw how majestically and gracefully she bore herself, and with what precision her little feet kept time to the rollicking "Greek" air, and how, with a wave of her hand she kept the would-be familiar young gentleman at bay, I was perfectly satisfied, and felt delighted to see her enjoying herself. Salkes, here, there and everywhere, was manifestly absorbed in the pleasures of the evening, and entirely oblivious to everything but unadulterated fun; and Col. Convex, of the Boundless Continent, and a few other village bloods, shook their noses from him—flung themselves about like maniacs. After the introductory performance the various dances were called up, in order, and we elderly folks retired to one end of the hall, where we could see the sport without being obliged to engage in it. Postmaster Grawdles was there with his wife and five daughters, had, having seen them properly portioned out, he came over and took a seat by me in our corner. He knew almost everybody, and took great pleasure in pointing out various conspicuous personages. Woolcomber, his assistant, was there, too, and his make-up was astounding; he was certainly the "loudest" dressed man I ever saw in my life. He wore a blue dress-coat with brass buttons, red vest, white pants with broad red and blue stripes down the sides, a flashy yellow scarf with a monstrous cluster pin stuck in it, and a pair of black gloves a good deal too large for his hands. He was a picture, I assure you, and the observed of all observers, and was evidently well pleased with the admiration he excited, and swaggered round like a swell of the first water. Grawdles, Jr., was there, too, and behaved himself with commendable modesty. I will not, however, go into further description of characters or locidents; let it suffice that the affair was a brilliant one, and everybody enjoyed themselves. Convex was wild with excitement, and took occasion to assure me, in a half whisper, that it was "fully equil to the fayst of Bilchszzer."

At 12 o'clock supper was announced, and at 2 dancing was resumed. About an hour after this I was conversing with Mr. Grawdles on general matters when some one beckoned to him from the door. He went out, but returned almost immediately, and very quietly informed me that the post-office had been broken open by thieves, and he wished me to go over with him and see what damage had been done, and of course I went. Procuring a lantern, we proceeded to the office, and found the front door wide open. We entered and closed it. The lamps were then lit, and we commenced a survey of the situation. No key, jimmy or crowbar was needed to effect an entrance, for the door was so insecure that a cat could almost have pushed it open. The letters and papers in the boxes and drawers to all appearance had not been disturbed; but a desk had been burst open, from which stamps and money had been abstracted, and about which Grawdles bemoaned fearfully. A further search showed that a couple of registered letters had been carried off; but this did not seem to weigh with him at all in comparison to the loss of a few dollars in stamps, fractional currency and nickels. Woolcomber and young Grawdles, having got wind of the disaster by this time, came over, and on careful scrutiny of the boxes, confirmed the opinion that the letters therein had not been tampered with; but the registered ones having been permitted to remain on the mailing table, instead of being put in some secure or less conspicuous place, excited the cupidity of the robbers, who were probably only after the stamps and money, who appropriated them, as they were so tempting and convenient, and supposing the contents were valuable, else they would not have been registered. "It might have been much worse had I kept all my stamps and money here," said Grawdles; "but you see I only keep stamps enough in the office to last a day or two; the rest are in the bank where I deposit my money. I never thought this a very safe place anyhow." "And yet," said I, "you permit all these letters to remain here, and allow registered letters, upon which an extra fee has been paid to ensure extra caution, to lay round loose in what you regared as an insecure place! Out of your own mouth have you condemned yourself, and I'll wager a big apple, that if the lost registered letters contained money you will have to make the loss good. Pardon me, Mr. Grawdles, for a little plain speaking—but it strikes me that a man who can be so indifferent to the safety of the letters of a community entrusted to his official care and custody is hardly the proper person to hold the office of postmaster. This place of yours, viewed from the inside, shows no impregnable spot, and presents no greater obstacle to a forced ingress than would a thin pine shingle to the point of a [illegible] knife. [illegible] in expectin' this for a good while," chimed in Woolcomber, "and spoke to the old man about it several times, and told him a corn-crib would be safer, but he always shet me up with, 'No fears of that, robbers knows they'll git nothin' here'—and now (to Grawdles) you see wher' you ar'—don't charge it to me—it's none o' my funeral." This brought on a war of charges and countercharges, during which reference was made to certain registered letters which were not shaken out of bags, that bags were never half shaken and never examined to see if they were empty, &c., amidst which I returned to the hotel and found the ball about breaking up, and J. M. waiting for me. She peremptorily demanded where I had been to that time of night, and said I ought to be ashamed of myself. A little explanation, however, entirely relieved her, and we all went home in the best of humor.

The next day the Boundless Continent gave a brief description of the ball, and an elaborate one of the post office burglary. These two unusual occurrences created an extraordinary sensation, but it was ephemeral—and the Angle soon resumed its normal condition.

I have since learned that but one of the registered letters stolen from the post office contained money ($20, I believe), and belonged to a poor woman to whom it had been sent by her son. Grawdles positively refused to make good the loss to the really needy victim—assuring her that he was a sufferer himself, but I know he has written to our member at Washington, asking him to use his influence to get Congress to repair the damages he has suffered—amounting to some thirty-two or three dollars—but it is to be hoped our member will pigeon-hole his application. I verily regard it as the most cheeky and preposterous appeal I ever heard of; such things, however, have been done, and it is probably owing to this that postmasters feel so little solicitude about having their offices located in thief-proof premises. Go into the towns and villages of the country and you will frequently find the post office located in the most rickety, shabby, tumble-down building in the place—convenience and security are made subordinate to cheap rent, and anything that shelters from the wind and rain is considered good enough for a repository for mails and mail matter. Of course I know the compensation is not sufficiently large to admit of the leasing of a granite building, supplied with fire and burglar-proof safes, but I do believe that every postmaster (no matter what his salary is) can procure a suitable and safe room for the transaction of postal business, and where mail matter cannot be reached by dishonest hands, if he has the good of the service and the public welfare at heart.

Now one word in regard to the neglect in shaking mail bags, and the proper care to examine them after they have been emptied.

If any postmaster or clerk is too lazy to shake a pouch after the contents have been emptied on the table, he is too lazy for anything and is not fit for the position he occupies; and if he is so careless and neglectful as not to carefully examine a pouch after it has been emptied and before it is stowed away, thrown aside or hung up for fresh matter, decapitation is too good for him. Some one, I forget whom, told me once of a registered letter having performed two or three trips between the same offices before it was discovered stuck fast to the bottom of the bag. I am sorry I have forgotten the names of these postmasters, but I will try and remember them, and if I can I will send them to you and will ask you to publish them, in capital letters, so that their brethren can breathe easy, if any complaint is made of delay in correspondance sent from their respective offices to people within the deliveries of these antediluvian shirks.

We publish below the opinion in full of Judge Sherman, of the Supreme Court of the United States, on the rights, duties and responsibilities of newspaper publishers. We advise postmasters to read this decision carefully, and to endeavor to have the most important parts of it published in their local papers, wherever there are such:

United States Circuit Court, Cleveland, Ohio.

[January Term—Thursday, January 18.]

United States vs. Lecky Harper. Indictment for mailing newspapers to persons not subscribers, without prepayment of postage. The defendant was tried by a jury upon an agreed statement of facts, and a verdict of guilty was rendered. The defendant filed his motion in arrest of judgment, which the Court overruled. The following is the OPINION BY JUDGE SHERMAN.

The defendant was indicted at the last term of this Court as the proprietor of "the Mt. Vernon Banner," for an alleged violation of section 41 of the act of March 3, 1863, which reads as follows:

"The Postmaster-General may require an affidavit, in form to be prescribed by general regulation, to be taken by any publisher, or any clerk, agent or servant of such publisher of any paper or periodical, which by the terms of this act may be sent to regular subscribers without prepayment of postage at the mailing office; to the effect that neither he nor any other proprietor, clerk, agent or employe within his knowledge, has sent, or caused or permitted to be sent through the mails, without prepayment by postage stamps, any copies of such paper or periodical [naming it], except the same were sent to bona-fide and regular subscribers thereto, and if it be ascertained that such papers or periodicals have been thus unlawfully sent, with the knowledge or consent of such proprietor, or of the agent or clerk in charge of that business; or if such affidavit, when required by the Postmaster-General, or by a special agent of the Post-Office Department, shall be refused, the person guilty of such offense or refusing such oath shall be liable to a fine of fifty dollars in each case, to be recovered by suit before any court of competent jurisdiction," etc.

At the present term a verdict against the defendant was rendered by the jury, and a motion in arrest of judgment made for the purpose of having the opinion of the Court upon the indictment and the facts. There are two violations of this section complained of in the indictment:

First—That the defendant sent copies of his weekly papers through the mails, postage unpaid, to other than regular and "bona fide subscribers thereto."

Second—That when required, by the Special Agent of the Post-office Department, the defendant refused to take the affidavit referred to in said section, in form as prescribed by general regulation.

The facts as agreed upon are substantially as follows:

That the defendant as such editor and publisher, during the political campaign of 1871, was called upon by certain parties, who furnished him a list of persons residing within his county to whom he should send his paper during the campaign, payment for the same to be made by the parties furnishing said list. It is admitted, that without any communication being had with the parties named in the list, as to whether they would stand as subscribers or receive the peper, the papers, to the number of about three hundred, were so addressed and mailed at Mt. Vernon, without prepayment of postage; and further: That a number of the parties to whom these newspapers were thus sent, refused to receive them and never did accept them, denying that they had subscribed for them, or that they ever authorized any one to subscribe for them; and it is not claimed that any such authority was ever given. The question then is, on the facts as thus farnished, whether the parties to whom these papers were thus sent, and especially those who refused to receive them, can be regarded as "regular and bona fide subscribers."

It appears to the Court that the bare statement of the question carries with it its own obvious answer. I would not wish to be understood as holding that the terms employed by the act, to wit: "bona fide and regular subscribers" were to be construed so strictly as only to embrace persons who, by their own hand, have made subscriptions; but it is quite plain that no one can be a subscriber unless he has subscribed himself, or by some authorized agent, or has subsequently, in some sufficient way, ratified the subscription which may have been volunteered for him. It follows that the sending of newspapers without prepayment of postage to persons who have not subscribed themselves, nor by any authorized agent, or not subsequently ratified it, is not a sending to subscribers, and is a violation of this section. In such a case, where a party not yet authorized desires to subscribe and have the newspaper sent to some other party, the only way of keeping within the law would be to prepay the postage until the party to whom the newspaper was sent had explicitly signified in some unequivocal manner that he ratified the subscription which had been made for his benefit, and was willing to occupy the position of, and be considered as a regular and bona fide subscriber. Until such ratification, as, in a case like the present, the parties addressed could not be regarded as subscribers, and the sending of papers to them, as such, the postage unpaid, would be a violation of this section as we have already seen.

The post-office laws and regulations are framed with special reference to liberality in encouraging and facilitating the transmission of newspapers between publisher and subscriber. Hence the provision of law allowing this to be done, free of postage charge, and between those two classes of persons, but to extend it further, or to apply it to such a case as this, would open the door to gross abuses of this postal privilege. Parties engaged in a political campaign, or parties desirous of distributing newspapers containing their business advertisements, for example, or other matter, which for reasons purely personal they wish to have disseminated without reference to the wants or wishes of the parties addressed, might thus encumber and load down the mails as a cheap medium of circulation, thus converting what is intended for the public good, in facilitating the transmission of newspaper intelligence, into a cheap scheme for promoting mere personal or political speculation. In this case, moreover, it is to be remarked, that a number of the parties addressed neither subscribed nor authorized subscription, nor ratified it when it was brought to their attention, but entirely repudiated it.

It has been suggested by the defense, that the custom has prevailed to a considerable extent for publishers to send out, without prepayment of postage, specimen numbers or copies of their papers, in the hope of inducing subscription.

I am unable to see how, under the postal laws and regulations as they now stand, this can be safely done; for even should it be granted, which is by no means clear, that a subsequent ratification would relate back to the time of sending the first unauthorized specimen copy, yet, if not subsequently ratified, or if before ratification the publishers should happen to be called upon to make the required affidavit, and be unable to do so, the penalties of this section would obviously, though unintentionally perhaps, as in the present instance, be incurred.

I understand that the District Attorney does not desire to claim anything from the alleged violation of the law as set forth in the other count of the indictment, regarding the one as practically covered by the other; I therefore do not examine the law and facts in relation to that charge.

I sustain the verdict of the jury, and overrule the motion. As I understand the wishes of the government officers, and as there was actual evidence before the jury of but one person that refused to ratify the subscription so made, the defendant should only be held liable to one penalty of fifty dollars and costs of this prosecution.

U. S. Attorney George Willey for the government; J. C. Devin, of Mount Vernon, for defendant.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. By J. KOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY, 1870.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 137 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately exceeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1850, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

THE following telegram to the New York Evening Post effectually disposes of the slanderous charges made against our efficient and energetic Postmaster General:

VINDICATION OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The investigation into the alleged corrupt action of Postmaster General Creswell, with reference to straw bids, shows there is not the slightest foundation for the allegations made. The person who instigated the charges was Mr. McKibben, an unsuccessful bidder. He alleged that Mr. Creswell violated the law in the manner in which he awarded contracts, but the evidence taken by the Postal Committee shows that Mr. Creswell acted strictly in compliance with the opinion of the Attorney General, whose advice was asked. Members of the Postal Committee say that the whole matter is a farce, and that thus far no evidence has been adduced impeaching General Creswell's official integrity.

Sundry Post-office Matters.

We have a word or two or more to say to postmasters who neglect to postmark letters, and we refer not only to letters originally mailed, or posted in a better word, at their offices, but to all letters that leave their offices by mail. This includes missent and forwarded letters, letters forwarded by request, and return request letters. It often affords satisfactory explanation of the cause of the delay in the delivery of a letter, or of its non-delivery, to be able to point to a postmark, with its date.

In a case before us, a letter to the postmaster of New York, covering a card request envelope, contains a complaint from the writer that the letter inclosed in the envelope had been returned to the writer, when he knew the letter was properly addressed, and that the addressee was at the place indicated. The writer of the complaint asked for an explanation. But the envelope did not contain any other postmark than the original one made at New York on the day the letter was mailed. Dates, indeed, furnished probable evidence that the letter had been properly sent and duly received at the office of delivery. But this was all the evidence, and hence the only explanation that could be given was unsatisfactory. Had the letter been postmarked at the office of delivery, with the date of its return, the writer would have been satisfied that it had been there, and that the mistake, if any, was probably with himself. At the least, a large number of post officials would have been relieved of the suspicion of having delayed, if not pocketed, the letter, and the question could have been answered down at the office of delivery and the address of the letter. Make a note of this, postmasters, and never allow a letter to leave your office in the mails unless postmarked with the date of leaving; of course we do not include letters passing through separating offices, on the way to offices of delivery. The letters laid aside for our usual article are all, with one exception, complimentary instead of inquiring. We will reply to the one exception, wherein a postmaster inquires what disposition he shall make of worn and torn fractional currency taken for postage stamps. This currency is redeemed at the various Sub-Treasuries, and certain National Banks (we cannot give a list), and at the Treasury Department at Washington. In all cases where postmasters cannot reach a Sub-Treasury or a National Bank authorized to redeem such currency, they should sort it, putting each denomination in a package by itself, send the whole to the Treasurer of the United States, with a statement of amount, &c. In doing this write your name and post office address very plainly. Our remaining letters are, as we stated, complimentary. We are modest, but nevertheless are tempted to repeat a few of the kind things said to us. S. C., of Iowa, writes, "This makes ten consecutive years that I have taken the MAIL. I could not keep house without it, and have examined all the other postal papers and give the MAIL the preference." J. J. B., of New York, says, "I must not forget to mention that it (the MAIL) saves a great deal of hard feeling and words;" and B. R. W., of N. H., "Nor do I ever expect to be able to run this or any other post office properly without the MAIL;" and Mrs. E. A. P., of Ill., "I wish every postmaster in the United States was obliged to subscribe for the MAIL, perhaps there would not be quite so much borrowing." Want of space forbids further extracts; we close by thanking all our friends for their "good words."

WE call the special attention of postmasters to the decision of Judge Sherman, of the U. S. Supreme Court, on our first page.

SOME changes have been made in our Foreign Postage Table this month in the rates of postage on newspapers to Australia, etc., via England and Brindisi. The table has also received a thorough examination, resulting in the correction of some minor errors affecting registration.

The Postmaster General has appointed Bradford Easton special agent to take charge of the Covington, Ky., post office, during the illness of Jesse R. Grant, at a salary of $1,600 per annum. Mr. Easton has accepted the appointment with the understanding that he is to be made postmaster in case of the resignation or death of Mr. Grant.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Post-Office Regulations and Directory.—J. F. M., C—— P——, N. Y.—Apply to the First Assistant Postmaster-General for the Post-Office Regulations and a Directory.

Oath of Mail Carrier.—P. M., M—— B——, Mo.—A mail carrier having taken an oath to carry the mail on a route specified by its number, should, on going on to another route, take a new oath; although, by Section 52 of Code of Laws of 1866, any person employed in the care, custody or management of the mails shall be liable to all pains, penalties and forfeiture, the same as if he had taken the prescribed oath.

Miscellaneous Mailable Matter.—Section 222 of Code of Laws of 1866 contains a list of miscellaneous mailable matter. Sections 221, 222, 223, 243, 244, 245 and 261 of said Code would be a profitable subject of study to postmasters who desire to be posted in the law of postage.

Receipt for Newspaper Postage.—A. H. M., C—— C——, Mich.—Postmasters are obliged to give receipts for newspaper postage, if demanded.

Forwarding Newspapers.—H. M. F., A——, Mass.—1. Regular newspapers on which the quarterly postage has been paid cannot be forwarded free of postage to subscribers who have removed, but transient postage must be charged on each copy as received. But if the subscriber orders the papers sent direct from the publishers to his new office, and shows to the postmaster at that office a receipt for quarterly postage paid at his former office, he is entitled to receive the paper for the time for which he has paid. 2. Subscribers to papers cannot send them to others at quarterly rates of postage.

Opening Letters from Escaped Culprits.—J. B., L——, Mich.—There is no authority for a postmaster to open a letter from an escaped convict or culprit; neither has a United States marshal, a sheriff, or a constable any such right. In a few words, no one has the right to open a letter but the person to whom it is addressed, or some one to whom he has given such right. Of course this does not apply to the officers at the Dead Letter Office in opening dead letters.

Procuring Mail Bags.—G. W. G., S——, Me.—For mail bags apply to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Contract Office, Washington, D. C.

Insufficiently Prepaid Letters.—S. H. S., B—— S——, Mich.—1. The department has decided that: In ordinary cases, where one full rate shall have been prepaid, the amount omitted should be rated up as an under-charge, and the letter forwarded to its destination; but in case of known intentional and willful omission, the letter should be held for postage, and if not paid by the mailing party should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. 2. A letter simply directed to a Post-Office should be opened by the Postmaster.

Small-sized Papers.—A. W. R., L—— G——, N. Y.—It is about as difficult to fix the standard of a "small-sized" newspaper as it is of the size of a piece of chalk. Postmasters receiving religious, temperance, &c., papers in packages should mail to their judgment in rating them. In case of doubt they should apply to the Department (First Assistant Postmaster-General) for instructions, inclosing a copy of the papers in question.—Sec. 207, Reg. 1866.

Subscribers to a County Paper.—There is no decision as to how long a time a person must take a county paper to constitute him a bona fide subscriber; but from analogy to the law and regulations relating to quarterly postage, we should say that the person should take the paper for at least one quarter. It is certain, however, that a person ordering a publisher to send a certain copy of a paper containing his marriage notice, or notice of a given number of his friends, does not constitute them bona fide subscribers for that week, so as to entitle them to receive the papers free of postage. The same remarks apply to storekeepers and others.

Subscribers to Regular Newspapers.—J. F. H., O——, O.—The question, "What constitutes a subscriber to a newspaper?" has been often argued and various opinions held and advanced. The nearest solution, so far as the postoffice is concerned, will be found in the following official decision: "While it is not necessary that a postmaster should know by whom a subscription to a regular newspaper is paid, yet in order that it may pass through the mail as a regular newspaper to a bona fide subscriber, it is essential that there be an understanding between the publisher and subscriber." And again: "The law says nothing about paying the subscription to a newspaper, and when a publisher or his clerk subscribes to the oath required by law, all that remains for a postmaster to do is to mail the paper in accordance with the address. If the paper shall be sent regularly for at least one quarter, and the postage shall be paid thereon at the mailing or delivery office, it is not for the officers of the department to inquire who pays the subscription." See also decision on first page.

Misdirected Letters.—A. J. M., J. C——, Pa.—A letter bearing the name of a county not in the State to which it is addressed, if not delivered, should be treated as other undelivered letters, either returned to the writer or sent to the Dead Letter Office. It should not be sent to some other office of the same name and county, but in a different State.

Laws of Newspapers.—L. M., W——, N. Y.—It is impossible for us to give the laws respecting the liability of subscribers to newspapers, or any matter relating to the contract between publishers and subscribers, for these are State laws, and vary in different States. The Department's claim is for postage and decency, and in protecting and defending this claim it is often necessary to inquire into the character of papers, or the contract under which they are sent or received; but this does not include any responsibility for the contract between publisher and subscribers. By contract we mean any understanding, or basis, or reason for sending or receiving papers.

Affidavit to Quarterly Returns.—A. S., E—— F——, La.—A Justice of the Peace has a right to charge a Postmaster the usual fee for the affidavit to his quarterly return, and the expense is personal, must be borne by the Postmaster in person, and not charged to the Department.

Registration.—J. M. J., G——, N. Y.—Return registered letter receipts may be attached to registered letters sent to Switzerland and the North German Union but to no other foreign country. The instructions may be found in the MAIL for December, 1868, and June, 1871. . . D. B., A——, Ga.—A domestic package, to be entitled to registration, must have the postage prepaid at letter rates. . . . M. T., R——, Mich.—By consulting the last sentence of section 12 of Registration Regulations of 1868 you will find that registered package envelopes "received," are to be placed on file for six months, and then sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Foreign Postage.—W. C. G., F——, Wis.—The figures in our foreign postage table comprise the whole postage that can be paid; there is no additional charge for domestic postage; that is, the postage on a letter from any part of the United States to Germany direct, is, as stated in the table, 6 cts.; closed mail, 7 cts. The same rule applies to the whole table.

Papers Deposited by a Newsdealer for Local Delivery.—J. H., C——, Mich.—Newspapers placed in a post office by a news agent for delivery to regular subscribers, are subject to the same quarterly rates of postage as those received through the mail from the office of publication.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AWAY UP IN VERMONT, Jan. 16, 1870.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—Dear Sir: In the last number of the MAIL, I noticed in the periodical effusion of Monsieur Tonson the complaint of the publisher of the Boundless Continent (which is supposed to extend some distance in all directions) "that he was prohibited from inclosing in his papers handbills, quack circulars, etc., without subjecting them to materially increased postage." I propose to enlighten him in relation to the annoyance to postmasters by such practices, and how one invented a perfect remedy, if vigorously applied.

After having exhausted his patience in instructing publishers that such practices were in his opinion unlawful, he sent samples of supplements to the Post-office Department, asking explicit instructions as to whether they were bona fide supplements, in the mean time withholding the papers from subscribers except upon payment of letter postage, thus placing the issue between publishers and subscribers, and before receiving the reply, taking quietly the curses and anathemas of the subscribers; in due time the reply came, sufficiently explicit to satisfy the most fastidious; the postmaster was declared all right by the subscribers aforesaid, and went for the publishers. And I can assure all officials who are troubled with a weak spinal column, that this remedy is a "sure cure"; it will choke off the practice so effectually, that publishers will learn what they are slow to learn in any other way, that the copyright is not worth the paper upon which it is printed.

Now for those postmasters who practice mailing regular and transient papers where the party addressed has removed, by erasing the name of the office to which they are addressed and writing thereon the name of the office to which the party has removed, without prepayment or even marking any postage as due thereon: then comes at the offices of delivery the scolding, and in some instances the swearing, with the information that they have always paid the forwarding to them in other cases, and never before ever called on for postage, adding that the postmasters at Podunk and Sandbank ought to know as well as you what the law is; and the reply always is, I think so too, and if they allow the department to be cheated it is no reason why I should, they don't swear to do their duty, for me! From such experience I am inclined to think very many postmasters do not understand their duty in such matters, and that civil service reform would illustrate the force of the answer given by an ignorant foreigner, who at the dinner table shoved aside his plate, knife and fork, and peeled his potato and eat it from his hand. On being asked if they did not have those things where he came from, he replied that some did but more did not. Now, Mr. Editor, if my remedy (suggested before) could be applied, to wit, compel all postmasters to take the MAIL or Post Office Gazette (I have both) and read them, we could do better than the idiotic boy in the gallery at church, who amused himself by throwing chestnuts at the sleepers below; upon being reproved by a sharp look by the minister, he coolly remarked, "you go on with your preaching and I will keep them awake." We "extra officious" postmasters could do both.

A POSTMASTER WHO "GOES FOR THEM."

C—— I——, Me., Jan., 1870.

EDITOR OF U. S. MAIL: I hope the time will come when all postage will be prepaid at the mailing office on the matter excluded from the mails. It is hard work to collect postage at this place, but the MAIL tells me how to do it, and I do it and get plenty of abuse for it. There are some at this place who, when I say postage to them, abuse me; but I say, pay your postage or you cannot have your papers, for the postal laws forbid it; then they say, we will have you turned out of your office. I am a poor man and have confined to my house all the time, but I am able to tend my office myself and I try to do my duty as the law directs me. I shall do so as long as I hold the trust of this office. I think when complaint is made to the Post-office Department against postmasters, the Post-office Department should investigate the matter before they remove them with false charges. I am aware the man that serves the public has to take plenty of abuse, but I can say that postmasters who take the MAIL and read it and go by its teachings can perform their duty aright.

Yours, respectfully,
E. E., Postmaster.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a one on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retindo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each; if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each; and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia,
Antigua,	Grenadines,	*St. Thomas,

Cuba,	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inague, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, if not exceeding 1 ounce in weight 2 cents; when exceeding 1 ounce and not exceeding 2 on cee, 3 cents; when exceeding 2 ounces and not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents; and four cents for every 4 ounces or fraction thereof. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York twice a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Oruba,
Coche,	Hayti,	Porto Rico,
Cuagna,	Les Saintes,	Saba,
Curiobra,	Margarita,	St. Bartholomew,

Deseado,	Martinique	Tortuga.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds; except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 223, Law, 1866

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks; and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 193, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 194 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)	30	"
For Tri-Weekly,	"	"	15 "
For Semi-Weekly,	"	"	10 "
For Weekly,	"	"	5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on the respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 3 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 3 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Metallic Post-Office Lock Boxes, that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post-Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market (all of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent. We will not hesitate to prosecute vigorously against any and all persons who manufacture, buy or use any of them, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable in damages with the manufacturers.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, Feb., 1872.

If any of the readers of the MAIL desire any more winter than has thus far fallen to their share, they can be amply accommodated by a visit to this section of country. For a radius of thirty miles the snow is anywhere from three to six feet deep; in many places burying hedges and fences, end totally obliterating the dividing lines between farms, and the air is keen enough to freeze the tears, it startles from their warm cells, as soon as they reach the fringes of the eyes. Whether we deserve this unusual and prolonged visitation as a reward for our good deeds, or a punishment for our bad ones, is beyond my psychological grasp; but in either event there is too much of it. The round of rural social amusements has run to exhaustion and has become dreadfully insipid, and sleighriding has lost all its novelty and attraction. The fact is, we are to a great extent shut out from the world, and, did not our old mansion possess boundless resources for home edification and entertainment, the time would drag terribly—even as it is, it goes very slowly sometimes. We have the satisfaction of knowing that this confoundad snow-bank can't remain with us much longer; but even the contemplation of its departure fills us with anxiety, for a sudden thew will swell the streams above and pour down upon us an ovelanche of water, sufficient to wipe out this entire establishment. In anticipation of such an occurrance, J. M. suggests (although she is sure nothing will happen) that we pay a long-promised visit to some of our relatives in Vermont and I presume, I will have to go, for when the deer good woman makes up her mind about anything, there is no use in trying to reason her out of it.

I have been to the Obtuse Angle post-office but once or twice since it was "burgled," but that was often enough to show that Grawdles has made the most commendable improvement in the appearance and safety of the place. All the old fittings, such as shelves, boxes and drawers, have been replaced by new ones, and the office now is as neat and convenient as any one of the size within my knowledge. In tearing out the old fixtures a number of letters were found which had slipped into crevices or had fallen behind the boxes and drawers, some of which had been there for months, and about which repeated inquiries had been made; and the inebility of the post-office people to account for them had engendered a good deal of distrust as to the honesty of Grawdles and his employees. I have no doubt that scores of letters disappear in a similar way in many offices, and if officials would take the trouble to make a periodical search into nooks and corners they would no doubt resurrect a good many missives that have mysteriously disappeared, and thus satisfy their owners that letters are not always strayed or stolen if they do not turn up promptly. With the renovation of the office, a new system of doing business was established, and, with the exception of a few individuals, who were wont, to unlawfully intrude and impertinently pew over letters and papers on the opening of the mails, or who claimed the privilege of thrusting their arms through the delivery window and helping themselves from their own boxes—the whole community is very much gratified with the improvement—and even Colonel Convex, the editor of the Boundless Continent, is loud in his laudations, and despite his former animosity toward the postmaster he comes out in his last number commending Grawdles to his readers "as being the right man in the right place, and fully entitled to all the rights and benefits of civil service, which in his case should take effect from the date of his original appointment." There is a good deal of Mijesian fog about this paragraph, but I presume Convex knows what he is talking about, whether anybody else does or not. Assistant Woolcomber, too, has molded himself to the new order of things, and has become wonderfully civil and attentive to business, so that, upon the whole, the loss of a few stamps and a registered letter has resulted in a great gain to all persons having business to transact at the post office.

If such a beneficial transformation would always follow the surreptitious entrance of post offices, I know of a good many where such visitations are needed. I do not want to be understood as encouraging maraudings, but almost anything that would infuse new life and energy into some of these dilapidated offices and their sloth-like occupants would be better than have them remain as they are. The race of anti-progressives, however, is growing scarcer day by day, and it is to be hoped the last of them will soon be seen in public service. The anticipated introduction of civil service reform, and the preparation necessary to meet the examination into the qualification of innumbents, are putting the zeal and wisdom of a great many to work who are anxious to stay where they are, and probably a good many will take time by the forelock and get out, to save themselves the pain and mortification which will necessarily attend a failure to "pass muster." Again, the very idea of having to pass through such an ordeal will deter many from pressing real or imaginary claims for official position, because self-inspection will convince them that they are unfitted to assume functions and responsibilities beyond their intellectual and executive calibre. Under the old system local popularity is regarded as the strongest recommendation. Now, according to my thinking, a man may be a "clever fellow," "a jolly good soul," "a trump," "a regular brick," and all that kind of thing, but these attributes, without mental polish and business qualifications, certainly ought not entitle him to the occupancy of public stations which require capacity and careful attention to fill, and this I think applies particularly to post offices, large and small. I don't regard it as essentially necessary that public functionaries should be great statesmen, profound philosophers, powerful orators or universal genuises—nor should it be any objection if they were tinctured more or less with these endowments—but to be a good officer a man should have practical knowledge enough to understand his duties clearly and thoroughly, and zeal, skill, intelligence and ambition (not of the vaulting kind, however) to perform them with diligence and alacrity.

The public mind, however, has not yet been educated up to the point where it demands such selections, but the world moves, and probably the time is not far distant when mental culture and how to honestly use it will prove a more powerful claim for a government position than anything else that can be urged; while, on the other hand, ignorance and inability, no matter how well coached, will be regarded as incurable infirmities [illegible] ordinary.

MONS. TONSON.

[OFFICIAL.]

Mutilated United States Currency.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 12, 1872.

To the Postmaster:

SIR: In reply to frequent inquiries in relation to mutilated currency, your careful attention is called to the inclosed regulations of the Treasurer of the United States, and you are respectfully directed to communicate the information therein contained to all persons who offer mutilated currency to you in payment of post office dues, or for the purchase of money orders, stamps or stamped envelopes, or who may desire you, as Postmaster, to transmit such currency to the Treasury or depositories of public moneys for redemption.

Postmasters are not required by law to redeem, or accept in payment of post-office dues, money orders, stamps, or stamped envelopes, any currency which may be so mutilated as to be uncurrent, nor is it any part of their duty to receive and transmit to the Treasury, for redemption, mutilated currency belonging to individuals, except as regular mail matter, forwarded in the usual manner at the risk of the owner. Such packages, if addressed to the "Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.," will be sent free of postage, but if the same be registered, the registry fee must in all cases be prepaid by stamps.

The necessities of the postal service are such that all funds received by Postmasters must be kept in current and passable money so as to be immediately available for paying the drafts of the department, money orders, and expenses of the service.

The arrangements of the Treasury department for the transmission and redemption of mutilated currency are safe and liberal, and afford the public ample means to convert uncurrent United States money into passable "greenbacks" without unreasonable delay, and at little or no cost.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Redemption of United States Currency.

Circular No. 1.

TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2, 1872.

The following regulations are adopted in lieu of all which have been heretofore issued by the Treasury Department governing the redemption of United States currency:

I.—DEFACED AND MUTILATED CURRENCY.

1. All regulations heretofore in force, subjecting mutilated currency of the United States to discount on redemption thereof, are hereby abregated; but no claim for refunding discount heretofore withheld will be entertained.

2. Defaced and mutilated fractional and legal-tender notes, each equaling or exceeding by face measurement three-fifths of its original proportions in one piece, will, if in such a condition that their genuineness can be clearly ascertained, be redeemed at the full face value of such notes, in new notes or currency, by the Treasurer, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated depositaries of the United States, and all national banks designated as depositaries [illegible] will be received at their full face value by all officers of the Treasury Department in payment of all currency due to the United States.

3. The officers of the national bank depositaries, by whom such currency shall be redeemed or received, will not use it in their disbursements, but may forward it to the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, at the expense of the department under the government contract with Adams Express Company.

4. The course prescribed in sections 2 and 3 will be pursued by the above-mentioned officers and banks in redeeming, receiving and forwarding to the Treasurer, for retirement, legal-tender notes of issues prior to 1869, whether defaced or mutilated or not, provided only that they be not mutilated beyond the extent above specified.

5. Officers of the government, other than Assistant Treasurers and Depositaries, will be permitted to present the notes and currency received by them directly to an Assistant Treasurer, depositary, or national bank depositary for redemption, if they shall prefer that course to forwarding them to the Treasurer; but no express charges will be paid by the department except for remittances directly to the Treasurer.

6. Whenever the amount presented for redemption at any one time by the same holder to an Assistant Treasurer, depositary or national bank depositary shall equal or exceed fifty dollars in legal-tender notes or five dollars in fractional currency, it shall be optional with such officer or bank to either pay the owner its value in money, or give a receipt conditioned for such payment when proceeds of the parcel shall have been received from the Treasurer of the United States. When the same person shall habitually present for redemption currency in sums somewhat less than those mentioned, with the evident intention of evading this resolution, it shall be discretionary with the officer or bank to whom the currency shall be presented to refuse to receive it until it shall have been made up to the amount above designated.

7. The department will receive, at its own expense, under the contract with Adams Express Company, from any person, company, firm, bank, or corporation, legal-tender notes and fractional currency which are defaced or mutilated, or in any way unfit for circulation, and legal-tender notes of issues prior to 1869, whether defaced or mutilated or not, provided that the fractional currency be sent in sums of five dollars and upward, and the legal-tender notes in sums of fifty dollars and upward.

II.—FRAGMENTARY NOTES.

Fragments of legal-tender notes and fractional currency, constituting less than three-fifths of the original proportions of whole notes [illegible] current value and by whom presented.

1. Fragments of legal-tender notes and fractional currency, constituting less than half of the original proportions of the notes, will be redeemed only when accompanied by affidavit that the missing portions of the notes have been totally destroyed. The affidavit must state the cause and manner of the mutilation, and the character of the affiant must be certified to be good by a magistrate or other public officer. When accompanied by satisfactory proof, such fragments will be redeemed for the full face value of the notes of which they are part.

2. Fragments, each less than one-half, but together purporting to constitute more than one-half of a note, will be redeemed only when it shall appear, either from the fragments themselves or by affidavit made in conformity to the foregoing paragraph, that they are actually parts of one original note. The Treasurer will exercise such a discretion under this paragraph as may seem to him needful to protect the United States from fraud.

3. Entire pieces, constituting half or more than half, but less than three-fifths of notes, will be redeemed for but half of the full face value of the notes, except when accompanied by an affidavit made in conformity to paragraph 1.

4. Half notes that have been punched will in no case be redeemed.

5. Counterfeit notes will be branded and returned. Unredeemed fragments less than half will be retained.

III.—FRACTIONAL CURRENCY.

1. Fractional currency, before being presented or forwarded for redemption, must be assorted into the different issues, which are easily distinguished; each issue must be assorted by denominations and inclosed in paper straps at least one inch wide, securely pinned; each strap, if the size of the deposit or remittance will admit, must contain one hundred notes of the same denomination; and on each strap must be written with ink the number of pieces and denominations inclosed and the name of the owner.

2. The entire deposit or remittance must be securely done up in one package, and upon the wrapper the date of deposit or remittance, the amount inclosed and the name of the owner must be written with ink.

3. Packages other than those on government account will be paid for in the order as to time in which they shall have been received, as soon as the currency can be counted and passed upon, in lawful money of the United States, unless otherwise requested, in which case returns will be made as provided for in Section V.

IV.—MODE OF TRANSMISSION TO TREASURER.

When parties making remittances fail to give their full names and post-office addresses, including the State, the remittances will be retained until such addresses shall be furnished, accompanied by satisfactory descriptions of the packages claimed.

An inventory, describing the contents by parcels, denominations and amounts, should accompany every remittance.

AT EXPRESS.

1. Direct all remittances intended for redemption to "Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C."

2. Packages should be put in wrappers of stout paper or cloth, tied with strong twine, secured with careful sealing and plainly marked on the outside with the amount and nature of the contents, the full name and post-office address, including the State, of consignor, and the fact that they are forwarded under the government contract with Adams Express Company, thus:

> TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES,
> From Washington,
> JOHN SMITH, D. C.
> Smithville, O.

3. A letter of advice, written on not less than half a sheet of commercial note paper, stating the name and full post-office address of the owner, the amount of the remittance, and the manner in which returns shall be made, must be put inside the package, and a duplicate letter should be sent by mail to the Treasurer on the day that the remittance is forwarded.

4. Fractional currency may be sent to the Treasurer for redemption at the expense of the Department by Adams Express Company, or any of the other express companies mentioned below, in sums of five dollars and upwards. Legal-tender notes may be sent in like manner in sums of fifty dollars and upwards. Parties remitting currency for redemption, and especially officers of the Department, are, however, requested to make their remittances as large as practicable, and when possible to remit in sums of $1,000 or an even multiple thereof. Remittances of fifty dollars and upwards may be composed in part of fractional currency and in part of legal-tender notes.

5. The Government contract with the Adams Express Company extends to and includes all "points accessible through established express lines, reached by continuous railway connection," within the United States, but does not extend westward beyond Omaha and Nebraska City, in Nebraska, and Atchison and Leavenworth, in Kansas, nor include the lines of Wells, Fargo & Co. in Missouri and Iowa. The contract covers the lines of the following express companies: Adams, American Merchants' Union, Central, Earl, Eastern, Hamden, Hope, Howard, National, New Jersey, Southern, United States, and United States and Canada. Remittances can be made by express, at the expense of the Department, only from points within the territory covered by this contract.

By Mail.

1. Direct all remittances intended for redemption to "Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C." Letters or packages so addressed are delivered by mail, postage free, whether they contain money or not.

2. Money for redemption, after being prepared as hereinbefore directed, should be sealed or tied up in paper of suitable strength, and plainly marked on the outside with the owner's name and full address, and with the amount inclosed. The package should then be sealed up in an envelope, together with a letter of advice, written on not less than half a sheet of commercial note paper, stating the name and full post-office address of the owner, the value of the remittance, and the manner in which return shall be made.

3. Remittances of this treasurer by mail are invariably at the risk of the owners. All communications to the treasurer, in regard to packages ascertained to have been lost in transmission by mail, will be referred for investigation to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, to whom any further inquiry on the subject should be addressed.

4. It is a protection against loss to register letters containing money; but the registry fee must in all cases be prepaid by the party remitting.

V.—RETURNS—HOW MADE.

1. Returns for amounts less than five dollars will, unless instructions be given to remit proceeds by check, be made in new currency, by mail, at the owner's risk, or, if requested, by express, at his expense.

2. Returns for amounts of five dollars and upwards, received by mail, will be sent by express at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, or San Francisco, as the owner may request.

3. Returns for amounts of five dollars and upwards of fractional currency, and fifty dollars and upwards in legal-tender notes, received by express, will, unless otherwise requested, be made in new currency, by express, at the expense of the department. If requested, checks on any of the above-mentioned Assistant Treasurers will be sent. Returns for five or more than five, but less than fifty dollars in legal-tender notes, will be sent by check on any one of the above-mentioned officers, or, if so requested, in new currency, by express, at the owner's expense.

4. When the remittance is from an assistant treasurer, designated depositary, or other officer of the department, or from a national bank depositary, the proceeds will, if desired, be credited in account.

VI.—GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

1. Every officer of this Department is required, whenever any spurious note purporting to have been issued by the United States, or by a National Bank, shall be presented to him, to stamp thereon the word "counterfeit."

2. Notes of national banks which have failed or gone into voluntary liquidation will be received, redeemed and forwarded to the Treasurer of the United States for retirement under these rules by the officers and banks hereinbefore mentioned in the same manner and on the same terms as legal-tender notes, of issue prior to 1869.

Notes of all other national banks, whether mutilated or not, are redeemable only by the banks which issue them.

3. In case of the loss or destruction of his checks, the Treasurer will, upon notification thereof, stop payment of the original and furnish the applicant for a duplicate with a form for bond of indemnity; upon this return of which, properly executed, a duplicate will be issued.

Observance of the foregoing regulations is enjoined on all officers of the Department, and will be expected of all making remittances to which which they are applicable.

It is hoped that the liberal terms for the redemption of mutilated currency which are established by these regulations, and the facilities which are provided for its remittance to the Department, will result in such an improvement of the condition of the circulation of the United States as will obviate all cause for complaint.

To secure this end, the Department asks the cordial co-operation, not only of all its officers and depositaries, but also of all the national banks, in forwarding to the Treasurer of the United States for retirement all United States currency unfit for further circulation, as well as legal-tender notes of issue prior to 1869, whatever their condition, which shall be received by them.

F. E. SPINNER,
Treasurer United States.

Approved:
GEO. S. BOUTWELL,
Secretary to the Treasury.

Bona Fide Supplements.

We publish below a decision of the First Assistant Postmaster-General respecting bona fide supplements, for a copy of which we are indebted to one of our correspondents:

[COPY.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21, 1871.

"SIR: In reply to your letter of the 16th instant, I have to say that the mere heading of a printed slip or sheet, as a supplement to a newspaper, does not make it a bona fide supplement to such paper, as contemplated by sections 216 of the postal law and 226 of the regulations.

"To entitle any additional publication to be classed as a supplement it must be made up of matter germane to that of the regular issue and necessary to make complete said regular issue, but crowded out for want of room.

"When publishers of newspapers inclose bond-bills, posters or separate advertisements in the same package with copies of their paper, in violation of law, the duty of a postmaster is plain. He should rate up such packages with letter postage according to the weight of the same. See sections 212 and 216 of the postal regulations and section 253 of the postal law. If not paid at letter rates by the party addressed, the packages should be returned to the mailing office, as required by the 316th section of the postal laws and the 41st section of the regulations, for the postmaster thereat to prosecute the sender in the penalty of five dollars in each case.

"Suit may be brought before justices of the peace, magistrates, or other judicial officers having competent jurisdiction in such amounts. See section 325 of the postal laws, edition of 1866.—I am, respectfully, &c.,

"J. W. MARSHALL,
"1st Asst. P. M. General.
"P. M. Pawlet, Rutland Co., Vermont."

Prepayment of Postage.

P. O., C—— C——, Texas, Feb. 10.

For years now, the "U. S. MAIL," through its correspondents and its editorials, has advocated the prepayment of newspaper postage. There has been a singular unanimity and an earnest appeal on the part of the postmaster correspondents. The attention of the Post-Office Committee in both houses of Congress was called to the subject three years ago. Their reply was, "We have the matter under consideration." As nothing has been done or even introduced, we conclude they are still "considering" the question.

In the meantime, as the publishers of the newspapers do not favor the change, as there is nobody specially interested in it except the postmasters (they all have feeling sense of the present plan), and as there is nobody to suffer loss except the Government of the United States (that does and must lose largely), it is quite certain that the present most miserable system will be continued, and that the several postmasters will pay what they fail to collect, as some must and will let the whole matter go as others do.

In our simplicity we thought the reform could be carried on presentation of its merits. We are older now by years, and we expect to be still older when Congress has the subject well "coasidered."

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the correspondieg whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 138 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1850, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from ——— General CRESWELL, who adds to indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes. JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6, 1872.

SIR: An important acceleration in the British mail service to India, China and Australia, by the route via Brindisi, has become practicable by the opening of the Mont Cenis tonnel, through which these mails are now forwarded.

This change involves no alteration of the present rates of postage on letters, book packets or samples from the United States for those countries by this route. On newspapers, however, a reduction has been made, so that the rates chargeable thereon to the countries in question by the British mails via Brindisi will, in future, be only one penny (2 cents) per 4 omoces, over and above the rates chargeable via Southampton.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.

J. Gaylor, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL, New York.

Manuscript.

The editor of a popular and widely circulated monthly magazine, having issued a Circular of Instructions to his contributors, containing, among others, the following instruction—

"MSS. sent by mail should be marked Book MSS and prepaid at the rate of two cents for every four ounces," the Department addressed to Jas. Gayler, Esq., Special Agent P. O. D., a letter on the subject, of which the following is a copy:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29, 1873.

SIR: The attention of the Department has been called to the inclosed circular, purporting to have been issued by the publishers of the "* * * *" as to the manner of sending manuscripts for publication in their magazine.

You are desired to call at the office of that publication and notify the publishers of their erroneous construction of the postal law, in requesting their contributors to mark manuscripts mailed to them "Book Manuscripts," and prepay them at two cents for each four ounces. The law expressly confines this reduced rate of postage to "Book Manuscripts," and it cannot be so construed as to allow manuscripts for publication in magazines or other periodicals to pass at the same rate. Very respectfully, your ob't servant,

J. W. MARSHALL, First Ass't P. M. Gen'l.

JAMES GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent P. O. Dep't, New York.

This letter effectually sets at rest all question of the postage on different kinds of manuscript.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Our first letter is on "Boxes," which, ever since the law requiring postmasters to account to the department for box rents, has been a fertile source of misunderstanding, inquiry, dispute and annoyance. The case before us is one of those where the boxes were—"long time ago"—erected by contribution. Under the law above mentioned the postmaster is required to collect rent, and the contributors think unjust, as it is charging them for the use of their own property. The question of injustice is not for us to discuss, but the question put to us, whether a postmaster is required to charge rent on boxes erected by contribution, must be answered, and the answer must be "Yes." But as box rents are really the perquisites of postmasters—being returned to them in their salaries—if they have no desire to retain such rents, they could, after adjustment and settlement with the department, be retnrued to those who paid them. This plan would prevent the dissatisfaction of those who contribnted to erect boxes, but should be applicable only in the case of boxes erected before the passage of the law in question....Our next letter contains an inquiry where stamps of large denominations can be purchased, and reflects somewhat severely on "this model republic" because such stamps cannot be procured at every little post office, a comparison being made with Germany, where "there is not a single post office in any town, village or city, large or small, where each and every denomination of stamp cannot be immediately supplied." We will not here discuss this difference between the "model republic" and the "model empire," but would inform our correspondent that the Post Department of the former gives to postmasters the privilege of selecting such stamps as they judge suited to the wants of their respective offices. As several stamps of different values can be used to make up a greater value, neither the people nor the Department suffer by a postmaster not having all the current denominations. In fact, none suffer but enthusiastic stamp collectors, one of which our correspondent evidently is, for he thinks "the P. O. D. should devise some plan of cancelling the value of the post envelopes without disfiguring the beautiful and unique art designs." He also objects to the words "North German Union" in our foreign postage table, "which power," he says, "has ceased to exist." Our only explanation is that the postal Union, and these words were introduced when there was such a "power," and as the change of "power" has not affected the treaty, we have not thought it worth while to go to the trouble of altering our table. And now we proceed to answer our correspondent's first question, where he can get stamps of a large denomination, and tell him to send to some friend or dealer in a large city, who will procure what he wants. ....Our next contains the inquiry why the Department, in its correspondence, does not put the name of the county on envelopes as it recommends the public to do, and thus "give material aid in introducing the practice." Although we cannot reply to the inquiry, there is no force in it. It is a practical application of the doctrine, "Physician heal thyself," but our correspondent should recollect that "Do as I say, not as I do," is a general weakness of humanity, whether private or public, whether clerical, medical, legal, mercantile or mechanical, whether princely or beggarly.

To Our Subscribers.

Many of our subscribers having remitted to us for renewal and then receiving their papers with the number on the wrapper not changed from the previous year's subscription, fear that their remittances have not been received, and consequently write to us on the subject. We ask the especial attention of all to the "Special Notice to Subscribers" in the first column of this paper. Read it through, particularly the N. B.

Others request us to return their receipts immediately by letter, without providing for the postage thereon. While the postage on one letter is a small item, the small item repeated many times becomes a large one. The postage law allows publishers to return receipted bills in their papers; those who want them by letter should inclose a stamp for that purpose.

Death of Special Agent Briggs.

Joseph W. Briggs, Special Agent of the Post Office Department for the supervision of the free delivery system, died at his residence in Cleveland on the 23d ult. Mr. Briggs was a faithful, thorough and energetic officer, with his whole heart enlisted in the success of the free delivery system. I owe the highest acknowledgment of his character to say that he was retained by four successive Postmasters General.

We condense from the Cleveland Daily Leader the following notice of Mr. Briggs:

At Cleveland Mr. Briggs was appointed as an employe in the post-office by Mr. Edwin Cowles, when postmaster, and delivered the first letter as a carrier, when two cents a letter were collected or rather paid the carrier for delivering letters. We have heard him say that it did not pay very well, as so many of the letters were from soldiers or citizens of Cleveland, who were away at the front in the army, addressed to their families, and he could not take from the wives and daughters of those who were fighting for their country.

When free delivery was authorized he became an enthusiastic devotee of the system, and when ten letter carriers were appointed he took a district on the north side of Superior street to St. Clair street, from Ontario to Water street, and the first day he delivered thirteen letters in five trips, and was ridiculed for attempting to put in operation such an unwise system. But he persevered, as he had no doubt of its final triumph. In 1864 he addressed a letter to Postmaster General Blair, making suggestions as to the improvement of the letter carriers' system. The letter was handed in Washington to an Assistant Postmaster General, who took it to Mr. Blair. Upon reading it Mr. Blair remarked: "Here is the man I want," and, after making some inquiries relative to Mr. Briggs, of one who had long known him, Mr. Blair ordered a commission to be sent him as special agent of the Post-Office Department, accompanied with a letter of instructions putting him in charge of free delivery of letters throughout the United States. Mr. Briggs immediately entered upon the discharge of this important duty, and organized the system of free delivery of mail matter in fifty-two cities, from Bangor, Maine, to San Francisco, California. It was not strange that in almost every city he should have met with opposition by Post-Office officials both in and out of Washington. It was an innovation upon a long established custom. Persons did not like the idea of having their letters brought to them, and they did not like the change. But in every city where the system has been carried out it is a complete success, and in no city more fully than here in Cleveland.

We do not believe the government ever had a more faithful, honest and diligent official. He was appointed upon his own letter, because it gave evidence that he had adaptation for the place; and he literally was worn out in the discharge of his duty. He had the respect and confidence of the Post Office Department. Being troubled with symptoms of heart disease, he has traveled thousands of miles with his name, business and residence so affixed to his dress that it would be readily seen, with a request that if he was found dead on the train the conductor would give his body in charge of the mail agent, that it might be sent to his family in Cleveland.

Mr. Briggs was born in Clermont, Columbia County, New York, and was in the fifty-ninth year of his age. It is rather a singular coincidence, that when his uncle, Governor Briggs, was in Congress from the Berkshire district, he was on the Post-office Committee, and was for some time chairman of it, and labored earnestly for cheap postage, and the nephew was the friend of the last step of reform and improvement in the postal service of his country.

Mr. Briggs leaves a widow and six daughters, and two sons, but one of the daughters married. He was one of the kindest and most affectionate of husbands and of fathers, and one of the most benevolent and generous hearted of men. He bore his long, and at times painful, illness with true Christian faith and heroism, without a murmur or complaint. A few weeks before his death, when his fainment of departure had come, he said, after a paroxysm of severe suffering, "If this is death, it is nothing to die." And when the last hour came he fell asleep, and died as quietly as sleep comes to the wearied traveler. He is at rest, and as he often said, "It is all right" with him.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Post Office Account Books.—R. H. C., N—— E——, N. J.—The account books advertised in the MAIL are good. Postmasters can judge better for themselves, and should send for sample sheets, which we believe are gratuitously furnished.

Delivery of Mail at an Office, &c.—C. T., E—— L——, N. Y.—1. Where offices supplied by railroad are within one-fourth of a mile of the depot or station, the railroad should deliver the mails into such office. 2. Notify the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Contract Office, Washington, D. C.

Delivery of Letters.—H. W. I., S—— J——, Vt.—1. In the absence of any special instruction from a wife, letters may be delivered to her husband; such delivery places them beyond the control of the Post Office Department. 2. A postmaster has no right to deliver letters to a husband contrary to the orders of the wife.

Circulars Bearing Cards.—W. L., C——, O.—Card or request circulars cannot be returned to the writer free of postage, but such circulars missent should be duly forwarded, without additional charge, to the correct address.

Letters from France.—L. E. O., L——, Pa.—There is no postal treaty with France; hence letters for or from that country direct are charged 10 cents for each half ounce, according to section 270 of Regulations of 1866.

County Papers.—S. Z., V—— B——, O.—Subscribers must reside in the county where the paper is published to be entitled to receive it free of postage. It is not sufficient that, residing out of the county, they get their mail matter at a post office in the county. They may, however, receive the paper at an office out of the county provided they live in the county. Sec. 228, Reg. 1866.

Back Postage.—G. K. D., M——, N. Y.—Postmasters cannot detain mail matter for postage due on other matter that has been delivered. But there should be no occasion to do this, for no mail matter should be delivered until all postage due thereon has been paid. Sec. 152, Reg. 1866.

Daily Mail Service.—C. H., S——, M—— R——, N. J.—For increase of mail service, write to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C.

Exchanges to Discontinued Publications.—J. R. L., P——, N. J.—After the publication of a paper has been discontinued, the late publisher thereof has no right to the exchanges, except he prepays the postage thereon.

Misdirected or Not Directed Package of Letters.—E. D., S—— G——, Conn.—A package of letters missent or not directed at all, received at an office, should, in the first case, be returned, in accordance with sections 83 and 70 of regulations; in the other, the packet should be properly addressed and forwarded to destination. The letters, in the latter case, should not be postmarked with the name of the office, unless the words "Missent and forwarded" are added (sec. 80). The directions in the February MAIL were intended to apply to letters missent to an office; that is, letters intended for some other office, that were found in the letters properly sent; also to return letters.

Payment for Card Request Envelopes.—L. E. W., P——, O.—A postmaster may require payment in advance at the time of ordering envelopes for a business firm. As the envelopes are charged to the postmaster ordering them, he has the right to make himself secure in any way he deems best, that they will be taken and paid for.

Notched Envelopes.—J. T. L., B——, Tenn.—Miscellaneous matter contained in, sealed and notched envelopes is subjected to letter postage. To be subject only to printed matter rates, the envelope must be left unsealed.

Circulars and Handbills.—J. R. A., S——, Me.—The postage on handbills is two cents per four ounces or fraction, on circulars two cents for each three or less. But a package of circulars—the circulars having no address thereon, may be mailed to one address at the rate of two cents per four ounces, or fraction thereof.

Postage on Letters from Chili.—A. Y., S——, R. I.—Letters received from Chili by British mail should be prepaid by British stamps, as foreign stamps are not recognized by the British Post Department. Going to Chili, they must be prepaid by United States stamps.

Packages Sealed Against Inspection.—S. C. F., T—— C——, Mich.—Any package sealed against inspection is chargeable with letter postage.

Making Change.—E. R. B., B—— F——, Pa.—A postmaster is not bound to make change. In making sale of stamps, he is expected to evince a due spirit of accommodation, but if he cannot readily make change, the purchaser must tender the exact amount. Sec. 171, Reg. 1866.

Misdirected Letters.—A. J. M., C——, Pa.—We stated last month that a letter bearing the name of a county not in the State to which it is addressed, if not delivered, should be treated as other undelivered letters, either returned to the writer or sent to the Dead Letter Office. The disposition of such letters has long been a question with postmasters, the practice varying. We now learn that it has been decided that such should be forwarded to an office of the same name in some other State.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the One is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chergeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must he mede by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREION LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Orest Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rettimo and Tripoli; also for Belginm, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brnnswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Qneensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, Sonth Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fea (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must he fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Nethorlands, to Italy and the Roman or Pepel States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Romen or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokobama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the Orst distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will he found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when inafficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serions loss and annoyance to the writers.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolutioo of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages dne on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Orest Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belginm, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on e corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the seme is to oq accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to he collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills.- Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREION COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four onnces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot he forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall he insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deOcient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREION COUNTRIES.

The regulations to he observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must he wrepped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. Bnt entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not he regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or npon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for snspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable ustnre, or whatever may have a merket valne of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this gronnd an intrinsic valne.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 onnces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal covelop s or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 229, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 232, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutante General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may he forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four onnces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may he enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and nnmbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to he furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (8 mos.)			30 "
For Tri-Weekly,	"	"	15 "
For Semi-Weekly,	"	"	10 "
For Weekly,	"	"	5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	13 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four onnces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to he prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

IMPORTANT TO POSTMASTERS.

IMPROVED STAMPING INK.

All know the great want of a good Stamping Ink. We offer a superior article, now used by the New York, Boston and Philadelphia Offices. Our Stamping Ink does not dry up, evaporate or gum the stamp, and is indelible. Price, for the Black, $2; Blue, $3; Red, $3, per box. Can be sent by Express or Mail.

FRANCIS & LOUTREL,
45 Maiden lane, New York.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Metallic Post-Office Lock Boxes, that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post-Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market full of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent of them, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable to damages with the manufacturers.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 7. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1872. WHOLE NO. 139.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

SUGAR BUSH CASCADES, Msrch, 1872.

Well, here we are under the shadow of the Green Mountains—rather more white than green just now—and here we have been a week, only a week, but upon my life it seems like a year. J. M. says she is delighted, and tells her friends I am too. It is a blessed thing they cannot read countenances, else might mine breed a doubt in their unsophisticated minds as to the correctness of the madam's assertion. We were favored with the company of Colonel Convex, of the Boundless Continent, McShamus O'Raddle, Esq., author of "Pipes, Poteen and Potatoes," and Doctor Ouldart of the Dispensary, as far as New Census, where they were going as a delegation from the Knights of Milesia of Ohtuse Angle to take part in the celebration of St. Patrick's day. Convex flowed with jokes, O'Raddle occupied himself with a huge note-book, Ouldart sat silent, but looked severe, and was apparently the custodian of the property of the party, which consisted of a pair of old-fashioned saddle-bags, from which the necks of several bottles protruded, a small white flag, with a green baize harp stitched thereon, and a small basket containing a clump of white clay pipes and a bunch of watercresses, which Convex endeavored to prove "wor rale shemrocks from Ballygallynegooch." The distinguished individuals were met at the depot by the "Inisfail Huzzars," a military organization, specially employed, at large expense, by the municipal authorities to keep people off the grass in the public parks in mid-winter and to visit the various polling-places on election-days during the balance of the year, to assist each other in voting early and often. The company banner bore the device of a dilapidated school-house and the legend:

"They change their skies, but not their hearts,
Who cross the seas to foreign parts."

As the Angle delegates and their escort moved off to the sound of martial music, the transfer coach in which we were seated wheeled away in an opposite direction and soon landed us at the Northwest depot, where we took the train for Mount Ida Junction, at which point we again changed cars for our destination. The latter stage of our journey lay over the Nobleton railway, which is undoubtedly in the sere and yellow leaf of its existence, if we can base an opinion upon its apparent limited patronage, antiquated rolling stock and slow speed. For the greater part of the way we had a car entirely to ourselves, but toward the end of our pilgrimage we had an accession (not a desirable one, however,) in the person of an individual considerably intoxicated, who would persist in asking the conductor if "he didn't know rum and m'lasses would skeer away the small-pox." At length we arrived at our destination, the cars stopped and we got out. From what J. M. had told me coming along, I had imagined Sugar Bush Cascades to be a glorious place even in the frigid season, and said to her, no doubt we shall behold a very fine railway station crowded with porters, hackmen, drivers, all anxious to cicerone us to the best hotel, where, of course, we will sojourn until our friends call for us. We contemplated, too, with delight, a visit to the falls, which, from all I had heard, outvied Niagara for winter beauty. But mark the sequel. On stepping from the train I looked in vain for a depot; no such building met my eyes. In dismay I shouted to the fast-receding conductor, "Where'e the depot?" He did not reply, but merely pointed to a small wooden shanty about twenty rods from where we stood, which presented the appearance of having been erected for a sheep-shed, and painted with liquid mud and a split broom. A closer inspection proved it to be even more wretched than it looked. It had but one window, in which there was not a whole pane of glass; but the lack of windows was compensated by six wide open doors. The ceiling and walls were totally devoid of plaster, and the only furniture in the waiting-room were a bench and two seats made out of a flour-barrel cut in half and filled with straw and old paper. These were occupied by a brace of rustics, who were warmly discussing some subject involving the price of wool and the coming maple sugar crop. On inquiring of these "fellow-citizens" as to the possibility of my procuring a conveyance to Sugar Bush Cascades, one of them looked at me with surprise, and echoed back, "Sugar Bush what?" Before I had time to reply his companion broke in with, "He means Tottle's Dam. The new name was gin it last camp-meetin', 'cause the good Christens who was up here then thort 'Tottle's Dam' sounded like swearin', and so it was called 'Sugar Bush 'cades;' it's nigh onto three mile from haro, Mister, and the only way to git there is to walk. You should have gone to the next station, seven miles up the road, and then you could have staged it to the village." "This is where we were told to get off," said I, "and we expected Deacon Tottle, a relative of ours, to meet us here." "Oh, eh! be you connections of the Deacon's? Wall, he's driv to t'other station, sartin. You made a mistake, but it's mor'n likely he'll drive down here, so you can wait or walk along." "But what will become of that," pointing to J. M.'s big Saratoga trunk, "if we leave here?" I inquired. "Oh, we'll help you to put it inside here, and it'll be safe till some one comes for it." Providentially the weather was very moderate, so that we suffered none on that account, but night was coming on, and as there was nothing inviting about the locality to induce us to linger, the trunk was housed, and we set out afoot, hoping to meet our friends by the way. We were both in bad humor, and Tottle and his family were pretty severely criticised for their outrageous neglect; and had there been a train passing either way before next morning we would have given them the cold shoulder. We had walked about half the distance, when we observed a team approaching at full speed, and very soon it got near enough for J. M. to recognize the Deacon and his daughter. They were so mortified when they met us, and expressed their regrets so feelingly at the unfortunate mistake we had fallen into, that we were satisfied and mollified; and when the Deacon learned our baggage was at the station he carried us back the way he had come, a short distance, and left us at the house of a neighbor, to remain until he fetched the trunk. We were shown into a plainly furnished room by a demure looking lady, who desired us to be seated and to excuse her for a few minutes, as "she was making preserves, and had to watch 'em while they were bilin'." Glancing round the room, while J. M. and Miss Tottle were telling each other over so many family secrets, my eye fell upon a small desk in one corner, on the end of which a shingle was tacked, bearing the painted inscription, "Post office." I was about to make a closer inspection of it, when the demure lady re-entered. "I observe you keep a post office, madam," said I. "Yes, sir," she replied; "but it don't amount to much, and don't begin to pay for the trouble of keepin' it." "Well," said I, "is not the honor of being postmaster something?" "'Tis; but I hain't postmaster. Doctor Fifer, on the hill, is postmaster, but he is too busy to see to it, so he gives me half the salary for room rent and 'tending to it; and as the salary is only fifty-eight dollars a year, my half don't amount to much." "What does he want with the office," I asked, "if he cannot attend to it?" "R'ally I can't say, unless it is for the honor of it; but I do think he ought to give me the salary, for he's got plenty without it." I thought so, too. But Fifer is not the only postmaster that works his office on the shares; there are a good many others, and it is more than likely that if the attention of the department was called to the fact there would soon be a wonderful reduction of the class who run their offices by proxy. Entirely too many offices, large and small, are farmed out in this way, and official duties are transferred to irresponsible people, who certainly cannot feel that deep interest in the service which a legitimate connection therewith creates and requires. A postmaster who accepts the appointment and takes the oath of office must either have a very elastic conscience or be very dull of comprehension if he can feel justified in substituting Tom, Dick or Harry to perform duties which he has sworn to perform himself; but it is a melancholy fact there are such.

In due time the Deacon and his team reappeared, and within an hour we were comfortably ensconced in the Tottle homestead, and here we have been, as I said before, nearly a week. The first day or two passed off well enough, but it has grown fearfully monotonous, and I am anxious to get away. J. M. appears to enjoy it: she has been made an honorary member of the "Moon-on-the-Lake Dorcas Society," and as she is well posted in the mysteries and intricacies of modern female gear she is much sought after by those ladies who are friends of progress. To me, however, time moves heavily; but by good luck the post office is close by, and an hour or two spent there every day when the mails arrive affords me infinite relief. This office is called Skyrake Centre, to distinguish it from East, West, North and South Skyrakes, Skyraka Corners, Skyraka Bridge and other Skyrakes "too numerous to mention." It must be obvious to you that a letter addressed to Skyraka simply would have only one chance in about ten to reach the proper party. A poor missive doomed to run such a gauntlet would become so bedraggled and be smeared before it got through (that is if it did get through) that even the person addressed could not recognize it, and if he did would be ashamed to claim it, unless it was freighted with valuables. Probably not one in a hundred of the residents of these localities ever call their residences anything but Skyrake; and, if such is the case, how in the name of goodness can strangers discriminate? Letters are addressed wrong, and, of course, they go wrong, and are lost or despoiled, and then the sufferers "charge bayonets" on innocent persons. Between us I think it would be a good idea for some of your officials to visit this and other points, where a number of post offices are known, wholly or in part, by the same name. I have an idea that some important discoveries might be made of use to them. Skyrake Centre is a good sized office, and seems to be carefully looked after. The Postmaster himself is always present when the mails arrive, and opens and helps to distribute them himself; he then goes to his other duties of civil engineer in a saw-mill close by, and leaves his wife and his son to deliver mail matter.

During one of my visits a gentleman rode up to the door and throwing himself from a horse that had the appearance of having been hard ridden, barried into the office and at the top of his voice shouted out, "Is this Skyrake Post Office, and have you any letters for Garrett Edom." The boy looked and found two. The stranger was delighted. "By gosh, I expect I'll get 'em all," he exclaimed. "I am agent for the Leviathan Well Digging Company. I have had quite a number of letters addressed me at Skyrake, and upon my soul I believe every post office within forty miles is called Skyrake. I've been to about a dozen already and found letters at every one; if you will only tell me which is the real Skyrake—I mean the original Jacobs—I'll be much obliged." But without waiting for a reply he hurried out, mounted his horse and galloped away. I thought he was the most patient man I ever saw.

But I do not want to take too much space in your paper, and I will finish the Skyrakes some other time. MONE. TONSON:

"Legal Tender for Coin."

We are indebted to W. G. White, Esq., Cashier of the U. S. Assistant Treasurer's Office in this city, for the following very interesting and valuable summary of the laws relating to the "legal tender for coin:"

Act of January 18, 1837, enacts as follows: Dollars, half dollars, quarter dollars, dimes and half dimes shall be legal tenders of payment, according to their nominal value, for any sums whatever.

For all sums whetever the eagle shall be a legal tender of payment for ten dollars, the half eagle for five dollars, and the quarter eagle for two and a half dollars.

The silver coine heretofore issued at the Mint of the United States, and the gold coins issued since the thirty-first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, shall continue to be legal tenders of payment for their nominal values on the same terms as if they were of the coinage provided for by this act.

Act of March 3, 1849, authorizes the coinage of gold dollars and double eagles, and enacts that for all sums whatever the double eagle shall be a legal tender for twenty dollars, and the gold dollar shall be a legal tender for one dollar.

Act of March 3, 1851, authorizes coinage of three-cent pieces, to be three quarters silver and one-quarter copper, and enacts that it shall be a legal tender in payment of debts for all sums of thirty cents and under.

Act of February 21, 1853, reduces the weight of the half dollar from two hundred and six and one-quarter grains to one hundred and ninety-two grains, and enacts that the quarter dollar, dime and half dime shall be respectively one-half, one-fifth and one-tenth of the weight of said half dollar, from and after the first day of June, eighteen hundred and fifty-three; and that the silver coins so issued shall be legal tenders in payment of debts, etc., for all sums not exceeding five dollars. Also authorizes to be issued a coin of gold of the value of three dollars, and for all sums whatever to be legal tender for three dollars.

Act of April 22, 1864, provides that the standard weight of the cent shall be forty-eight grains, and be composed of ninety-five per cent. copper and five per cent. tin and zinc; also a two-cent piece of the same composition, and weighing ninety-six grains; and the said one-cent coin shall be a legal tender in any payment to the amount of ten cents, and the said two-cent coin to the amount of twenty cents.

Act of March 3, 1865, enacts that there shall be coined a three-cent piece, composed of copper and nickel, not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of nickel, and standard weight to be thirty grains, and to be a legal tender in any payment to the amount of sixty cents.

Also that one and two-cent coins of the United States shall not be a legal tender for any payment exceeding four cents in amount.

Act of May 16, 1866, enacts that there shall be coined a five-cent piece, of copper and nickel, not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of nickel, of the standard weight of seventy-seven and sixteen-hundredth grains, and that said coin shall be a legal tender in any payment to the amount of one dollar.

Two ways that money may be lost in the mails without the aid of dishonest post office clerks:

In the Chicago Post Office, one day last month, there was found in the mails a newspaper containing $110, which the simple-minded sender was trying to forward to England under a two-cent stamp. The name of the party mailing the paper could not be ascertained, and the valuable package went to the Dead Letter Office.

The Worcester Gazette says that a gentleman of that city sent his office boy, a day or two since, to deposit several letters in the post office, one of them containing a check for $2,000. He subsequently found that the boy had dropped them in a box designed for orders for the removal of garbage, etc., mistaking it for a "lamp-post post office."

COMMUNICATIONS.

Hints from the Postmaster.

When you call at the office for your mail and the postmaster hands it out, ask him if that is all.

If you ask for mail and he tells you there is none, tell him there ought to be; then go home and send the rest of the family around to ask at different times through the day.

Don't bring your mail to the office till the mail closes; then curee the postmaster for not opening the mail-bag and putting your letters in. When you want a stamp on your letter, tell the postmaster to put it on; if he don't like it lick him. In case you put it on yourself soak it in your mouth long enough to remove the mucilege; it will then stick until it is dry.

Be sure to ask the postmaster to credit you for stamps; if he has any accommodation about him he will do it.

If you have a box, stand and drum on it until the postmaster hands out your mail; it makes him feel good, especially if he is waiting on somebody else.

D. P. M., Dulton, Ga.

AWAY UP IN VERMONT, March, 1872.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—Sir: I noticed in the last number of the MAIL your comments upon a letter on "boxes," and I agree with you as to box rents being "a fertile source of misunderstanding, inquiry, dispute and annoyance." Having been placed in the same position in relation to the collection of box rents with your correspondent, it became a matter of inquiry to me, and upon looking the matter over and asking if my case came within the rule, was answered by Department that if I owned no boxes and collected or returned no box rents none would be taken into account in readjusting my salary. This I understood to be an "adjustment and settlement with the Department" according to your intimation, except that I returned the rents without collecting them, as by the terms of my answer from Department that if, under the circumstances, I did not care to have the additional to my salary, it would not be looked after by Department, especially for my benefit.

Why the Department, or Congress rather, should make the collection of box rents imperative, and the Department insist upon applying the rule to cases where the public purchase boxes at their own expense and then pay it back to the postmaster in his salary has been a puzzle to me and many others, and the conclusion to which I have come is this, that there is a gateway through the law large enough to drive a coach and four, which I will illustrate. The first question occurring to me was, what shall the rent of boxes be fixed at? Next, who is to fix them? The answer came from Department that the Postmaster was at liberty to fix his own price for rents; and then it occurred to me that should he be disposed to collude with the occupants of boxes and fix rents at 50 cents during the time he was returning stamps cancelled, box rents, etc., return that amount as a basis for a salary for two years, and subsequently reduce the rent to one-third the amount, it could be done, his returns all properly sworn to, and Department might pay the salary two years and receive a nominal sum for rents in return.

Perhaps your readers may exclaim: you appear to "know how it is yourself." But I can assure them that having taken my office under the strongest protest against box rents, and defending the principle that boxes were more for the accommodation of Postmasters than the patrons, I found myself caught in my own trap; and was obliged to wriggle myself out as best I could—and I did it as I have stated, at an expense of probably two hundred dollars, to be consistent. Now don't understand me as suspecting Postmasters of being dishonest; I think there are far more careless than dishonest ones; yet in almost any country town there may be found some individuals (and there may be occasionally a Postmaster) who, under suitable circumstances and surroundings, would pre-eminently adorn the position of "Boss Tweed"—and experience has fully confirmed my early expressed opinion that boxes in a Post-office should be considered for the benefit of Postmasters, and the collection of rents therefor should be abolished altogether, or so modified as to make it impossible for a Postmaster to fleece the public or the Department, my most prominent reason being that all country Postmasters would erect boxes for their own convenience, if not allowed to collect rents therefor; and being compelled by law to collect them, is a strong inducement to collect all they think the public will submit to.

REFORM.

POST-OFFICE, B——, Ill., March, 1872.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL: Endless inquiries are constantly made by persons desiring to send unmailable matter in the mail why such article is charged with latter postage, and many postmasters, mainly in the rural districts, are much embarrassed to answer the question, although they feel sure that they are right. To all such P. M.'s I wish to say: Throw the burden of proof on the questioner and finally, by stating to him that the postal laws demand letter postage for everything not specially excepted, and let him show you in the laws and regulations the paragraph which allows a hammer, a pocket-knife, or a sealed package of photographs, notched on the corners, to pass at less than letter rates.

It is erroneous for a P. M. to examine the regulations with the view to find if a certain article is named as one for which letter postage is to be charged. The proper way is to examine if such article is named as one which may pass at a lower rate, and if not so found, charge letter postage. For instance, you will not find a pocket-knife named in the regulations as being subject to letter postage; but not finding it to be exempted, you have to charge letter postage. Cotton or woolen goods sent per mail to a citizen you will not find to be exempt from paying letter postage (see. 222 law); but cotton or woolen clothing for a soldier, up to a certain weight, you find exempted, and are therefore authorized to receive it at reduced rates (see. 223 law).

Clerk Hire, etc.—J. R. W., C——, Ga—The allowance for clerk hire at separating offices of the third, fourth or fifth class, depends on the additional labor required. Apply to the First Assistant Postmaster General. 2. Salaries are based on the former method of computing compensation by commissions, etc.; this includes the items in force at the time the law took effect. 3. Written communications to a magazine must be charged at letter rates. See the article on this subject in the MAIL for last month.

Making Change for the Purchase of Stamps.—E. R. B., B—— F——, Pa.—Postmasters are not required to make change; they are required to evince a due spirit of accommodation, but if they cannot readily make change the purchaser must tender the exact amount. There can be no question that changing five dollars for the purchase of a three-cent postage stamp would come within the meaning of "read ly making change."

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, APRIL, 1872.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 139 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1850, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes. JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14, 1872.

SIR: According to information received from the postal administration of Denmark, correspondence for Iceland, Greenland and the Faroe Islands may be forwarded from the United States in the Danish open mails at the following rates of postage and conditions of payment, to wit:

PLACES.	Letters. For each ½ an ounce.	Letters. Registry fee.	Each Newspaper. Not exceeding 4 ounces.	Each Newspaper. Every additional 4 ounces
	Cents.	Cents.	Cents.	Cents.
Iceland	10	10	8	8
Greenland	7	10	4	4
Faroe Islands	*7	10	4	4

PLACES.	Book Packets and Samples. Not exceeding 1 ounce.	1 ounce to 3 ounces	3 ounces to 4 ounces	Every additional 4 ounces.
	Cents.	Cents.	Cents.	Cents.
Iceland	5	8	12	12
Greenland	3	6	8	8
Faroe Islands	3	6	8	8

* Denoting optional prepayment; being in all other cases obligatory.

The rates of postage, as above given, on correspondence for Greenland will prepay the same to Copenhagen only, beyond which point the privilege of prepayment does not extend; but the rates, as above set forth, on correspondence for Iceland and the Faroe Islands are in full to destination.

Please note these changes in the next issue of your paper.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H BLACKFAN, Superintendant.

J GAYLER, Esq., editor U. S. MAIL, New York city.

Post Office Department—Notice.

Owing to the rapid increase in the mails and the establishment of many new Post Offices throughout the country, this Department finds it necessary, in order to facilitate the distribution and to secure a speedy transmission of the heavy mails now passing, particularly over the trunk lines of railroads, to request of the public, that in all cases the name of the County, as well as the Post Office and State, be superscribed upon letters, circulars, newspapers and other matter to be forwarded by mail.

Postmasters will place this circular in a conspicuous place in their offices, and use every endeavor to urge upon the public the importance of this matter.

J. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster General.

Washington, D. C., February 1, 1872.

Post-Office Department—Spring Mail Lettings.

The regular lettings for mail transportation this season embrace all the routes in New Jersey (100), Pennsylvania (707), Delaware (27), Maryland (162), and Ohio (447), making a total of 1,443 routes, for which 7,300 proposals are a fair estimate; besides all the railroad service in those States, numbering nearly two hundred routes.

On the first day of March this gigantic work was begun by the opening of bids, each of which, with accompanying papers, was "marked" with the initials of the Postmaster-General and the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, in charge of the contract office. Then the proposals were passed into the hands of experienced clerks, by whom they were arranged, examined, indorsed, re-examined and recorded in the Registers. Every bid was carefully considered, and without the slightest interruption to current business the entire letting was closed on Saturday, the last day of March, and the results made known to all parties concerned who desired the information.

This mail service has been improved to its greatest extent; on many of the routes tri-weekly service is superseded by daily, and once or twice by three times a week, affording many additional facilities to the people of every remote neighborhood, as well as to the villages, towns and cities.

The decisions have rendered universal satisfaction, for we learn that not a single exception has been taken by any of the competitors for the service.

THE Postmaster-General has appointed Mr. SAMUEL SMITH, of New York, Special Agent of the Department, and assigned him to the duty of supervising the Free Delivery Service, in place of the late Mr. J. W. Briggs, whose decease we noticed in our last number. Mr. Smith has been for several years connected with the New York Post-office in a capacity which gave him peculiar facilities for qualifying himself for the position he now occupies; and judging from his past record as an upright, intelligent and faithful public officer, it is safe to predict that he will fully justify the Postmaster-General's action in bestowing upon him an office of such importance and responsibility.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The first letter we take up to notice in our usual "Sundries," is a comment on "the difference" between furniture furnished to post offices by the Department, and that furnished to custom houses by the Treasury Department. The custom house, at the place whence the letter was sent, "has just received $550 worth of new and handsome black walnut furniture, while the post office has received, in five years, permission to have a cheap table made at an expense of $8. The post office would be glad to receive the cast-off furniture of the custom house." Such is the gist of our correspondent's statement. We give it more as a matter of curiosity than of comment, for though the allowance to postmasters is very small, it should not be forgotten that the number of post offices is very much larger than that of custom houses, while the revenues arising from them are smaller and the character of the business very different.... Our next letter calls our attention to the fact that the MAIL nowhere gives the registry fee on domestic letters. As we desire to make the paper as complete as our limits will allow, we have inserted in this number some information on domestic registered matter on third page.... Our next contains a copy of a petition to the Senate and House of Representatives, made by a postmaster, "to so amend the Postal Laws of the United States, that all printed matter, sent from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, be delivered FREE. For the following among many other reasons that could be assigned: First. The revenue derived from this source being so inconsiderable compared with the whole revenues of the government that the amount of loss therefrom would not be realized," etc. Our correspondent states that this petition was forwarded to the Hon. Roscoe Conkling, U. S. S., and was by him presented to the Senate, and referred, and, adds our correspondent, "I enppose Congress has it under consideration." This is a practical move toward a change in the law respecting newspaper postage, and if followed up by other postmasters would, no donht, be effectual. Quarterly postage is, in fact, except at a few large offices, a very inconsiderable part of the postal revenue—too small in some offices that the postmasters prefer paying it themselves to the trouble of collecting it..... A correspondent in Honolulu asks our opinion of the law or privilege of national vessels taking or sending letters and other mail matter from a port in a foreign country to another country with which that foreign country has a postal treaty? We would cheerfully reply to the query, but the subject is one of international law or courtesy, and should be acted on only by the State Departments of the countries interested. Besides, for us to reply would involve inquiry and research, for which we have not time and opportunity.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Mutilated Currency.—E. L., H——, N. Y., and P. J. K., V——, Pa.—By the circular of the Postmaster-General, published in the last MAIL, you will perceive that "postmasters are not required by law to redeem or accept in payment of post-office dues, money orders, stamps or stamped envelopes, any currency which may be so mutilated as to be uncurrent," and that "the necessities of the postal service are such that all funds received by postmasters must be kept in current and passable money." Persons having uncurrent, mutilated currency, however small the amount, can have the same redeemed by sending it to the "Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C." It may be sent free of postage, but if registered the usual registry fee must be prepaid by stamps. The provisions of Secs. II., III. and IV. of the Instructions should be complied with.

Legal Tender for Coins.—E. B. C., N——B——, Pa.—One and two cent coins are a legal tender for all payments not exceeding four cents, three cent for sixty cents, and five cent for one dollar.

Free Papers, etc.—M. D. H., M—— Michigan.—1. No papers except weeklies, and those lawfully franked, and publishers' exchanges, can pass through the mails or be delivered free of postage. The sample you send is a monthly. 2. The regulations respecting the delivery of letters to fictitious addresses may be found in section 60 of Regulations of 1866. It is a proper regulation, but if too literally carried out would work more harm than good. The purpose of it, undoubtedly, is to assist in preventing the mails being used for base purposes; but whether it should be extended to a well-known respectable merchant, who is a box-holder at an office, and who, for very proper purposes, wishes letters occasionally addressed to some other than his own usual address, is a question. We may illustrate a case in point: The popular and widely-circulated American Agriculturist has, among its editors, a gentleman who calls himself "The Doctor," and who requests correspondents to address him by that name. Literally, the address is "fictitious," but we cannot say that the Department would refuse to deliver to him letters bearing that address.

Postage on Monthlies.—J. T., S——, Pa.—Mouthlies published in the county of the subscriber are subject to postage, as well as if published elsewhere. It is only county weeklies that can be delivered to the subscribers free of postage. Sec. 228, Reg. 1872.

Carrying the Mail, &c.—S. C., P—— S——, Mich.—1. A man not a citizen cannot carry the mail, for he cannot take the requisite oath. 2. The franking privilege of postmasters does not extend to Canada.

Advertising Letters.—H. W. H, L—— R——, N. Y.—Drop letters are not to be advertised, but should be sent to the Dead Letter Office if not delivered. Secs. 864 and 880, Reg. 1866.

Box Rent.—B. S. G., L—— G——, N. C.—1. Postmasters must charge rent on boxes in their offices, whether lock-boxes or not. Sec. 475, Reg. 1866. 2. The regulation providing for the time offices should be kept is No. 27, of the Regulations of 1866. Business customs and conveniences vary so much in different places that postmasters must be their own judges of what will be a compliance with the section named. The postmasters of some places might very well close their offices for dinner, while in others, and by far the larger number, the usual dinner hour is the most convenient for callers.

Postage on Papers to Foreign Countries.—R. T. M., D——, Minn.—1. Papers cannot be sent to regular subscribers in foreign countries at the domestic quarterly rate of postage, but postage must be paid on each paper sent at the rates found in the table of foreign postages. 2. Letters should remain in the delivery one week before being advertised. 3. Regular papers can only be forwarded on the prepayment of postage at transient rates.

Postage, Etc.—P. F. W., E—— N——, O.—1. Yarn and cloth, though wrapped with the ends open, are subject to letter postage, except they are sent in small quantities as samples. 2. A postmaster has a right to register a letter in his own name. 3. If a postmaster refuses to reply to an official communication, he should be reported to the Post-master-General, but if his refusal only extends to the private business of the person who writes, there is no remedy; he is merely guilty of a breach of courtesy.

Postage on Transient Matter.—F. N. M., R—— C——, Ind.—A transient package of weekly Waverlies, weighing 56 ounces, should have been prepaid at the mailing office at the rate of two cents for four ounces. The same rate should be charged if it arrives at the delivery office unpaid. On 56 ounces the postage would be 28 cents.

Quarterly Postage.—G. W. S., D——, Kan.—You will find the quarterly rates of postage on the third page of the MAIL.

Postage on Shoemaker's Hammers.—L. R. J., C—— C——, Ind.—Postage on shoemaker's hammers should be paid at letter rates; if not so paid at the mailing office, the amount due should be collected at the delivery office. Sec. 158, Reg. 1866. If the payment is refused, the hammers should be retained and sent to the Dead-Letter office. The "dire consequences" of a postmaster so ignorant of his duty as to send hammers, knives, boots, &c., at the miscellaneous rate of two cents for four ounces cannot be very "dire," except it may be to himself.

Quarterly Postage on Two Papers.—A. R. E., S——, Mass.—Two papers cannot be sent in one wrapper to a regular subscriber at one rate of postage, though the two together weigh less than 4 oz. Each paper is subject to postage. Papers of different kinds may be sent in one package, as transient matter, but then transient postage should be prepaid.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. U paid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rutimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, NovaScotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via Eggaad) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered dimestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is corapulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Saraana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mention d in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelops or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 222, Law, 1866

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) except-ing those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all bandbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registration to any part of the United States is 15 cents. This charge is exclusive of the prepaid postage. Both the registry fee and the postage must be prepaid by stamps.

All domestic registered packages must be charged at letter rates of postage.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.
Six times per week, per quarter (8 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " 5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz. 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 8 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof,. the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Mineillo Post-Office Lock Boxes, that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post-Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market (all of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable in damages with the manufacturers.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 8. NEW YORK, MAY, 1872. WHOLE NO. 140.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, April, 1872.

Sugar Bush Cascades is a nice, quiet village; the people are intelligent, sociable and hospitable; morality flourishes luxuriantly, for vice finds no soil to plow or plant upon, hence there are no crops of iniquity. Temperance, sentineled by its band of Good Templars, keeps watch and ward over the month of every citizen, and not a drop of any kind of beverage is permitted to cross the threshold of their lips save tea, coffee and water—for even cider is banned. The druggist informed me that he sold a good deal of Dr. Schiedam's Juniper Bitters, but that is a medicine, you know. Through the week, from the rising of the sun until the going down thereof, scarcely a soul can be seen out doors, but on Sunday the highways and byways are thronged with people of the village and the adjacent neighborhood riding and walking to and from church, and this hebdomadal convocation, instigated primarily by devotional promptings, affords the opportunity for the transaction of a good deal of secular business with which matters of money and matters of matrimony have a good deal to do. Even "Sparking" (every body knows what that means) is evidently regarded as a Christian duty, and one not to be performed on any other than the Sabbath day, and the young folks set about it in the most unsophisticated, matter-of-fact way, but still with an air of solemn seriousness which is rarely, or perhaps never, seen elsewhere during ante-nuptial experiences. But with all its silence, saintliness and simplicity I could not feel at home at the Cascades—there was too much of it, and too much of anything surfeits me. Had it not been for the little variety afforded by occasional visits to the Skyraka Centre Post Office, and the opportunity to chat with the postmaster, to see him do his work and hear him detail his official troubles, my misery would have been complete. But this was an oasis to me, and for the gratification afforded by the privilege of "coming and going" when I pleased, I reciprocated by telling the obliging functionary what little I knew about managing a post-office. It had been his custom to permit the druggist, the cashier of the bank and the clerk in the store over the way to assist him in opening and distributing his mails. The first time I visited the office I observed these accommodating gentlemen at work, and I thought from the manner in which they pawed over letters, passed them to each other with grins or sneers, and the freedom with which they handled newspapers and magazines, tearing off the wrappers and stopping to admire the illustrations, that if they were regularly employed their wages should be very small for the amount of useful labor they performed; but when I subsequently learned who they were, I told the postmaster that it was illegal and eminently improper for them to touch any mail matter before it was duly delivered to them, and he at once dispensed with their further services; but they took great umbrage at it, and forthwith began to threaten him with removal. But complaints from such a source, for such a cause, merit and will meet with deserved contempt; and the officer who fearlessly performs his duty as laid down in the books strengthens himself in every way by a rigid adherence thereto. But Skyrake Centre is not the only place where this thing is tolerated—and I have spoken of the dangerous practice before—there are other offices, and I could name them, too, where the stern rules and regulations of the Department are ignored and disregarded, and that too by officials who know better, and who have sworn, solemnly sworn (with a mental reservation, perhaps), to faithfully perform all the duties required by law.

Now, independent of its illegality, is it not a burning shame that gentlemanly and intelligent authorized custodians of the postal confidences coming to or passing through their offices should so far forget what is due to the communities among whom they occupy positions of high trust and honor, and to their own sense of duty and self-respect, as to turn their establishments into intelligence offices for those seeking to devour the family or business secrets of their neighbors; or into curiosity shops, where inquisitive gossips can spy out who gets letters and who don't, and where they come from and where they are going, and then go out on the street corners, and, from mere surmise, throw out innuendoes, or fabricate rumors, to the detriment of people infinitely better than themselves in every respect.

I enlightened him in many other ways from my little stock of postal knowledge, and I have no doubt the old gentleman—familiarly known as Deacon Bonesett—will profit by it. Among other things I found that a number of his neighbors had contributed toward the construction of a set of boxes, which they used and paid nothing for, because they owned them. I referred him to the postal laws, and showed him sections 92 and 242, and he shut down at once on the "dead-head" box arrangements. I showed him how to clean his marking and rating stamps, and how to cancel his postage stamps (all of which I learned at Clambank).

He followed my instructions at once, and I do not believe there will be any reason to find fault with Skyrake Centre on this account while the Deacon has charge of the office. But what horrid daubs one sees on letters sometimes! The postmark simply a dirty, clotty, circular blur, and the defacement of the stamp a nasty smear, and both looking as if there was a sinister purpose on the part of the official who did the work to conceal either the name of his office or old canceling-marks on the postage-stamp. This, of course, is not the reason, but it really looks suspicious. It is only laziness and fearlessness of unclean things. I would wager almost anything that where you find a bright, plain postmark, and a neatly but effectually canceled stamp, the hand that did it is not a stranger to soap and water, and that stains and blots and smears are not marked features about the office books and papers; and, where blotched disks and daubed stamps are made, you may look for dirty paws, soiled linen, torn and dog-eared books, and mutilated and ink-besplattered papers. If you think I am mistaken, follow up one of the latter to where it originated, and I am pretty confident you would decline to bet with me.

Another thing I enjoined upon him for his reputation sake, was to send away at once all letters reaching his office by mistake to their proper destination; to be very particular about returning uncalled for letters at the time indicated in the printed request thereon—and which no honest official can or should fail to see and comply with—and to forward promptly to the Dead-Letter office all held for postage and undelivered advertised letters at the proper time, as directed by the regulations of the department, being careful to mark them with their own office stamp. Some postmasters are shamefully remiss in this respect. As a general thing, it is not done with a criminal intent; but letters lying around an office a good while will fly open in some mysterious manner, perhaps from shrinkage, or abrasion, or the moistness of the atmosphere, and when they are open it is probably impossible to withstand the temptation of looking inside—and in this way letters full of domestic confidences, business secrets, love messages, souvenirs, trinkets, and occasionally greenbacks, and even gold,

> "Bright and yellow, hard and cold,
> Molten, graven, hammered and rolled

are disclosed, and in the estimation of some are regarded as too valuable for revengeful, slanderous or mercenary purposes, and never reach their intended destination. But the time spent with the postmaster was only a temporary relief. My patience was entirely exhausted, in fact I had a politic sufficiency of Sugar Bush Cascades, and its ancient manners and customs, and determined to start for some more congenial locality for a week or two, leaving J. M. behind to finish up her visit. The dear, good creature evidently sympathized with me, and graciously granted me a fortnight's vacation, suggesting at the same time that a good and sufficient reason ought to be given to our hospitable entertainers for my sudden departure, which was done in the highest style of gammon. But "where was I going to?" That was the momentous question which J. M. propounded, adding in her affectionate way, "You know you are a bad hand to journey alone, and traveling at this season of the year, you know, is peculiarly dangerous to man and beast."

Having no particular spot in view, I said at a venture that a visit to Mayugavia, the Spiritualistic Mecca of America just now, might be recuperating, interesting and edifying. The idea at once struck her as a splendid one, and she hurried me away with the understanding that if the thing was not a humbug I should return as soon as possible and she would go with me—to all of which I agreed, with a private wink to myself. Fifty-six hours from that time found me one of a very respectable but limited audience of spectators, witnessing the mysterious demonstrations of "Black spirits and white, red spirits and gray," invitingly beckoning us to "mingle, mingle, mingle, you that mingle may." It would take a small volume to tell all I saw and heard, which I am neither able nor willing to write, although nothing will be lost to the world, for there were numerous pen and pencil artists present; but being asked by a very pretty, fair-haired, red-cheeked maiden medium if I desired to be put in communication with some departed friend, skeptic as I was, I responded in the affirmative (and so would you, reader, if that charming little witch had asked you), and straightway the shade of a long since departed postmaster and intimate friend was called to the fore, and responded in a flash, and I have no objections to make public the result of our interview. "Is it the spirit of Dumaorix Pulper, formerly postmaster at Tawybroda, that now awaits my interrogatories?" I asked. A hollow voice from beneath the floor replied, "It is, it is, you may bet your bottom dollar on it." "Are you happy, friend Dumaorix?" "Indeed am I." "Would you, if you could, come back and resume your old position?" "No sir, no sir," was the reply, snappishly given. "Why not, my spirit friend?" "Ah! friend Tonson (he evidently recognized me), little you knew of the trials and temptations which environed me when I run the Tawybroda machine. If I hadn't been firm as a rock, as strong as Samson, as impregnable as a modern fortress, and as deaf as a post, the demon of temptation would have flung his neck and heels into the toils of avarice and necessity—as many a good man and brother has been, who was too weak to resist and too blind to see the consequences." "But, my lost to sight tho' to memory dear friend," said I, "do you not know that wonderful improvements have taken place in the postal service since your day, and that everything connected with it now is so simplified and systematized that it ought to be a pleasure as it is an honor to be a part of it?" "Certainly I know it," was the rejoinder, "but it has been amplified and elaborated to such an extent that it requires not only a constant watch over the conscience and temper, but an amount of intellectual capacity to administer its affairs satisfactorily and intelligently that I did not possess, and therefore I could not if I would properly perform the duties, and would not if I could for the frauds attempted to be perpetrated through the mails by sawdust, and bogus lottery and gift enterprise swindlers, and by dishonest publishers who try to defraud the department of its just dues, would so try my temper that my Christian meekness would lose its virtue and pugnacity would usurp its place, urging me to go for such unmitigated rascals with a club, instead of with a policeman, at the risk of losing my position in the ranks of the class of people from whom those I now associate with are selected, for there is no doubt if I started on a mission of extermination I would root out the villains at the risk of soul and body, and thereby bring upon myself a judgment that would put me in different companionship from that which I now enjoy and which fills this extensive establishment with its intangible but essential presence——"

Just here a stentorian voice shouted out, "Proceedin's is stopped for a hour. All them as wishes grub at sixty cents a head kin walk into the eatin' saloon at t'other end of the buildin', and the sperits will cork up accordin'." There was a general hush and a sudden illumination of the room, a general rush for "wittles," and my interview with the ghost of Dumnorix was cut off short.

MONS. TONSON.

Report of the Committee of the House of Representatives on the Sale of Stamped Envelopes, March 19, 1872.

THE COMMITTEE ON THE POST-OFFICE AND POST ROADS, to whom were referred sundry petitions from envelope manufacturers, printers and stationers, asking that the manufacture, sale and transportation of stamped post-office envelopes and the printing of "return requests" thereon be abolished or so regulated by law as to protect the petitioners from "invidious discrimination," made the following report:

That they have duly considered the objections and suggestions of the petitioners, and have given their representatives, as well as the officers of the Post-Office Department, full opportunity to present their views. They find that stamped postal envelopes were first issued in this country by authority of an act of Congress approved August 31, 1852, at which time there was but a small trade in plain envelopes, and these were principally imported from Europe. The envelope business, from the small start given it under the auspices of the government in 1853, has grown to great importance, although the number of establishments extensively engaged in the manufacture of the same is confined to a few leading corporations and firms. It is estimated by the Post-Office Department that about five hundred and seventy-five million (575,000,000) letters, in envelopes, passed through the mails during the last fiscal year; and the official report of the Department shows that only one hundred and four million, in round numbers, of stamped envelopes were manufactured and issued for sale to the public, through postmasters, during that year, being less than one-fifth of the whole number of envelopes that passed through the mails; but when the fact is considered that large quantities of the stamped envelopes issued remained in the hands of postmasters, unsold, at the close of the year, it is fair to estimate the number of stamped envelopes sold and used at one sixth of the whole number that passed through the mails. The envelope trade of the country, however, is not confined to the manufacture and sale of envelopes exclusively used for mailing letters. Railroads, express companies, banks, insurance companies, associations and corporations of every description, use immense numbers of envelopes in the transaction of their business, which do not pass through the mails, but which greatly add to the grand total of envelopes manufactured, to say nothing of the envelopes used for private, personal and social purposes; all which must necessarily enlarge the business and add to the profits of envelope manufacturers. Probably a fair estimate of the number of stamped envelopes issued at the present time would be one in every twelve envelopes of all kinds manufactured and sold in the United States, or one million stamped against eleven million unstamped envelopes.

It is necessary to consider these statistical facts in order to form a just conclusion respecting the complaint of the envelope manufacturers that an "invidious discrimination" is made against them by the Government in furnishing to the public stamped postal envelopes, whereby, it is claimed, "their business is largely diminished and their machinery reduced in value," constituting "a dangerous precedent, which, if followed in other departments of the Government, would powerfully tend to discourage private enterprise and concentrate in the Government unwarrantable powers."

From the facts already stated, the committee are clearly of opinion that the introduction of stamped envelopes has been the means of building up and stimulating the envelope trade of the country, increasing the demand for paper, machinery, printing material, labor, &c. It has been shown that stamped envelopes require in their manufacture more than double the machinery and labor necessary to the manufacture of ordinary envelopes. The stamping, water-marking, extra-heavy gumming, the superior quality of the paper used, and the printing of the "return requests," therefore, contribute in no small degree to the manufacturing and laboring interests of the country. The Government makes no effort to monopolize the envelope business; it does not manufacture envelopes, but purchases its supplies under contract, let according to law to the lowest bidder. Thus it will be seen that private manufacturers supply all the envelopes used.

Instead of diminishing the envelope business, reducing the value of envelope machinery, as stated by the petitioners, the contrary seems to be true. The mission of the Post-Office Department, within its proper sphere of duty, is to afford every facility and accommodation to the people; and whatever efforts may be made in this direction should, in the judgment of the committee, be sustained and encouraged by Congress. The interests and convenience of our whole people, to whom the mail service is an absolute necessity, and who pay every cent of the postal revenue, should not be overlooked and disregarded to gratify the wishes or further the interests of a few leading manufacturers, which, if successful, would break down and destroy one of the most valuable features of the postal service. The government contractor, like any other envelope manufacturer, uses machinery, purchases material, and employs labor, and in every respect occupies an equal footing. If, by furnishing one-twelfth of the envelopes made in this country for sale to the public through the Post-Office Department, he is able to produce a better article at a less price than can be furnished by others who have to depend on an aggregation of small orders for their business, certainly the public, who use and pay for the better and more convenient envelopes, have good reason to be satisfied.

There are several reasons why stamped envelopes should still be manufactured under government direction, as at present, one of the most important of which is the collection of postage on letters transmitted outside of the mails. It is a well-established fact that, prior to the passage of the act of 1852, the government lost largely in postage by the carrying of unpaid letters, by railroads, steamboats, expresses, stages, etc., which loss was in a great measure prevented by a provision in the law referred to authorizing and requiring, under severe penalties, letters to be carried in stamped envelopes outside of the mail; and millions are now so used, and are found to be an indispensable convenience to both sender and carrier, protecting them from the stringent penalties of the law, and at the same time securing a large amount of revenue, estimated to be much more than the entire cost of all the stamped envelopes issued which otherwise would be wholly lost to the Department. A stamped envelope, by being addressed and sealed, is virtually canceled, the embossed stamp possessing no value when detached. This is not the case when letters are sent outside the mails, stamped with the ordinary adhesive stamp, for the reason that the stamp, not being canceled by an officer of the Post-Office Department, may be taken off and re-used any number of times.

Another advantageous feature in stamped envelopes is the system of "return-requests," authorized by an act of Congress, approved April 6, 1860, which provides that "when any person shall indorse on any letter his or her name and place of residence, as writer thereof, the same, after remaining uncalled for at the office to which it is directed thirty days, or the time the writer may direct, shall be returned by mail to said writer, and no such letters shall be advertised, nor shall the same be treated as dead-letters until so returned to the post office of the writer, and there remaining uncalled-for one quarter."

This, certainly, is a great public convenience, and to more fully carry out the plan the Department provides in all its contracts that stamped envelopes shall be furnished, when ordered in quantities of five hundred and upward, with a printed "return-request," without additional cost.

If every letter uncalled for or undelivered should be sent to the Dead-Letter Office, there to be opened and registered and then returned to the writer, the force of dead-letter clerks would necessarily have to be largely increased, whereas, by the system of "printed return requests," this delay, labor and expense are avoided, and the postal service rendered much more efficient than it otherwise would be. Indeed, if every letter sent through the mail bore a "return request," or the same and post office address of the writer, the Dead-Letter Office could be almost entirely abolished, and a large amount now paid for clerk-hire, estimated at not less than $100,000 annually, saved to the Government.

In fact, the committee are informed that since the introduction of the "return-request" envelopes the decrease in letters returned to the Dead Letter Office has been so great as to dispense with the services of forty clerks, thus decreasing the expenses of the Department about $40,000 per annum.

The committee think there can be no question as to the utility, convenience, safety and economy in the use of stamped envelopes. They are kept on sale at every post-office, even at remote points where there are no stationery stores, and are sold at a trifle above the contract cost. The envelopes are water-marked, with a monogram of the Department, and made in a superior manner, of the best quality of paper, are extra-heavily gummed, and in every respect are better than the envelopes usually sold by the trade. Their use not only affords the Government the means to collect a large amount of postage on letters carried outside the mails, but also protects it against loss by the re-use of stamps, and letters are rendered more secure in transmission than if prepaid by adhesive stamps, which are liable to become detached, and thus cause the correspondence to be sent to the Dead-Letter Office.

In regard to delivering stamped envelopes through the mails, we find that the envelopes have always been manufactured by contractors in the city of New York, at fixed rates per thousand, under the supervision of an officer of the department; that the contractor, under the direction and inspection of said officer, packs and delivers the envelopes at the New York Post-office, ready for mailing, in such separate packages as are necessary to meet the daily requisitions of postmasters throughout the country; that there are about thirty thousand post-offices in the United States which are thus supplied, and that the packages thus forwarded are at once distributed over the various mail routes of the country, day by day, throughout the year, in the same manner as other daily mail matter is forwarded.

It is asserted by the Post-Office authorities that no mail contractor has ever asked or received any additional or extra compensation for carrying these packages, which are so combined with the general mail matter as to be undistinguishable in the yearly operations of the Department, and it is claimed that if stamped envelopes were abolished entirely no abatement in the annual cost of transporting the mails could be reasonably hoped for.

If, however, a doubt arises as to the correctness of this view, then the committee reply that the small profit of something over 2 per cent. realized from the sale of envelopes is quite sufficient to balance the increased cost of mail transportation imposed by the delivery of envelopes to postmasters. The weight of envelopes so delivered is not equal to 2 per cent. of the aggregate weight of mails passing over the mail routes of the country.

The committee, therefore, conclude, after thorough consideration of all the statements and suggestions made by the petitioners, that it would be highly injudicious to abolish stamped envelopes, to do away with the printing of "return-requests," or add to the price of the envelopes for printing or transporting them through the mails. They are now sold to the public at a slight advance on their cost, or as near their cost as may be to avoid fractions and indivisible sums, the price of the stamp being, of course, added.

As already stated, the printing is not an extra charge to the Government or to the consumer, and the transportation is provided for by the regular machinery of the Department without any appreciable increase in the annual expense of carrying the mails. Certainly the Department has an undoubted right to use its own means for accommodating the public and increasing and protecting its own revenues. Its object is not to make money or to break down private manufacturers or printers, and, in the judgment of the committee, no good reason has been shown why the present plan of furnishing stamped envelopes should be interfered with or changed.

We, therefore, recommend that the prayer of the petitioners be not granted.

Samples.—E. S. T., L——, Ky.—The definition of samples is not very definite, or if definite not very logical. A sample, postally considered in the United States, is something "of dry, flexible material, of no intrinsic value;" the judgment of the respective postmasters must decide from this meaning what are samples and what are not. The correct meaning of the word is—some part of a whole by which one may judge of the whole, and this is the meaning given by the English Post Department, which Department allows samples of any materials not injurious to the mails to be sent by mail.

Newsdealers Sending Regular Papers, etc.—H. A. C., O——, N. Y.—1. Newsdealers have the right to mail regular newspapers, without prepayment of postage, to bona fide subscribers, the same as publishers. The authority may be found in section 225 of the Regulations of 1866. 2. Postage on newspapers to and from Germany should be paid on each newspaper. 3. All publishers of regular papers and periodicals may exchange free without regard to character or frequency of publication, but limited to one copy each, and not to exceed sixteen ounces in weight. Sec. 258, Laws 1866. The privilege is confined to the United States and the Dominion of Canada. Sec. 261, Reg. 1866.

Refused Papers.—P. P. Y., N—— S——, N. Y.—Where a publisher sends papers not prepaid to persons not subscribers, a report of the fact should be sent to the special agent of the district. Sec. 257, laws 1866.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, MAY, 1872.

Terms—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when one, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 140 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1850, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

[Official.]

Registration to Brazil.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13, 1872.

Notice is hereby given that letters and other articles of correspondence for Brazil may from henceforth be registered for transmission in the mails dispatched to that country by the mail steamers plying monthly between New York and the ports of Brazil.

The fee for such registration is fixed at 10 cents on each letter or other article registered, and this fee, as well as the charges for ordinary postage, must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing in this country.

Postmasters will take notice hereof and govern themselves accordingly.

By order of the Postmaster General.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Supt.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

A correspondent who says he must have the MAIL, and whose office is one of thirteen with names alike, states that if a letter comes to his office having as part of its address the name of the county in which an office of the same name in another State is situated, he erases the name of the State, and inserts that name which corresponds to the county name. This we learn is the view of the department, and however much it may differ with another taken by some postmasters and others, we take the law or practice as it is.... We are requested to "publish full directions for advertising and returning dead letters to the department for small offices, "as the regulations seem to apply to the larger offices." The regulations are intended to apply to all offices, and if our correspondent will study Chapter XXXV., he will find all he wants. Section 360 defines dead and unclaimed letters; Section 362 instructs how often, and how, letters are to be advertised, at offices where the salary is less than five hundred dollars; Section 370, when to return Dead letters to the Department; Section 371, how to treat and prepare them for the Dead Letter Office; Section 373, how to treat dead registered letters; Section 374, when to return unmailable letters, and letters held for postage; Section 376 instructs to preserve duplicate lists; Section 380 instructs how to make out the dead letter bill; Section 381, to preserve duplicates of dead letter bills; Section 383, that there must be affixed to each account current, at the end of the quarter, a proper dead letter bill for the whole quarter, prepared from the duplicates required by Section 381. These sections embrace the main features, but there is much valuable instruction in the other sections of the chapter, which postmasters should study and use.... Our next correspondent requests us to define a book. This is about as puzzling as to define a sample, as noticed in our Answers to Correspondents. Section 305, Regulations of 1866, define a pamphlet, and constructively a book. But this constructive definition should not be held to include periodicals—such as the monthly magazines and other paper-covered publications issued at regular times. Our correspondent thinks that, if postmasters will insist, in a firm and gentlemanly manner, upon payment of newspaper postages, they will have very little trouble in collecting them. This is doubtless true, but the difficulty is, that as postmasters receive from three to five cents for the exercise of this firmness and gentlemanly manner, they are apt to think the pay inadequate, make no demand for postage, say they would rather pay it themselves, and then forget to do so.... Our next correspondent touches on the subject of prepayment of all newspaper postage, and advocates it because "none but postmasters know the trouble and vexation of collecting."....Our next, a lady, wishes Monsieur Tonson would come in her neighborhood and hunt up the thief that stole three letters, containing together $5.50, sent for newspapers; she has been postmaster ten years and never lost money before. To which we reply, that she has been most fortunate; but her case proves the rule, that to those who send money in ordinary letters through the mails, time never secures an exemption from loss, but that sooner or later the loss will occur. And while we agree with our fair correspondent, that it is a shame "that we cannot send a dollar or two without registering," we think it a greater shame that any one should send money in ordinary letters, and thus become tempters to those not strong to resist temptation. The British Postal Guide, on this subject says: "Any person who sends money or jewelry in an unregistered letter, may be the means of ultimately bringing some clerk or letter carrier to moral ruin." And who would run the risk of ruining a fellow-being, to save fifteen cents?

Postal Registration.

In view of the recent action of the Dominion Board of Trade on the subject of governmental responsibility in connection with registered letters, and the recommendation that the continental system should be applied in this country, it may be as well to state particularly what that system is. In England and in the United States, the same principle of non-responsibility obtains as in Canada. Whether, therefore, our system is the best or not, the Government in devising it have at least followed the experience of nations tolerably perfect in their postal systems, and tolerably well disposed to accept any reform which the experience of other nations may suggest. The object of the registration in the three great letter writing communities is simply to enable the lost letter to be traced to some point; and in this way undoubtedly it has prevented disputes as to the delivering of letters with valuable contents, and it has proved an admirable detective of official carelessness. Thus, a letter sent from Montreal to Halifax, can be, unless in case of mail robbery in transmission, against which no system will fully provide, traced to Halifax, and its delivery to the party to whom it was addressed ascertained without doubt, by his signature to the receipt book. What the Dominion Board of Trade desire by their recommendation is that the Government should be responsible to the sender of the letter for its contents, in the event of its not being delivered to the party for whom it was intended. And if this additional guarantee connected with the postal registration system of the country can be adopted without danger to the public service, it will undoubtedly prove to be of very great advantage.

In France there are two classes of registered letters. First, letters may be registered without declaration or recognition of value contained, on pre-payment of ten cents in addition to ordinary postage rate; and if the letter is lost in transmission, under circumstances not beyond the control of the Post Office, an indemnity of ten dollars is paid. This is simply a system of ordinary insurance, and if generally adopted, must we should think prove an important source of revenue to the government. Whether, however, it would be so generally adopted in Canada may well be doubted. The second class includes letters containing value such as bank notes and other value payable to bearer, which may be registered with responsibility on the part of the Post Office, if lost under circumstances within its control, on the following conditions: 1. Amount not to exceed four hundred dollars; 2. Letter to be put in an envelope sealed with five seals of wax on the back, in the centre and on each of the folds, the seal to be nothing common, such as a piece of money or thimble; 3. The amount declared to be inclosed must be written in words at the top of the face of the envelope; and 4. The payment of the following charges: the ordinary extra insurance rate of ten cents in addition to the regular postage, and a further rate of two cents for each twenty dollars, or fraction of twenty dollars, declared to be inclosed. It will thus be seen that for an inclosure of say four hundred dollars, the cost of insurance would be an addition to the ordinary postage of fifty cents. That is considerably higher than the express companies charge for the conveyance of valuables, and it is very doubtful if, unless the rates were made very much lower, this system of letter insurance would be availed of to any extent. The penalties are as heavy as the insurance rate. If bank notes or other value payable to bearer are inclosed in a letter without declaring the amount and paying the charges, a fine is imposed of from ten to a hundred dollars.

In Belgium the system closely resembles that of France as to the second class of letters, that is the insurance for full value, the charges, however, being somewhat less. The Belgian Post Office registers letters on prepayment of a registration charge of four cents, but without recognition of contents, and without guarantee in case of loss. In the case of letters insured, a declaration of greater value than the letter really contains is punishable by imprisonment for not less than one month nor more than one year, and a fine of from twenty-six to five hundred francs. A declaration of lesser value incurs a penalty of twenty times the amount of registration charge evaded. In Prussia there is no system of insurance of full amount; but a system of registration prevails corresponding to the first class in France, that is, a charge is made in addition to postage, and the Post Office pays an indemnity of a fixed amount, something like ten dollars, in the event of the letter being lost. There is, of course, a decided advantage in adopting this system, because by it a regular contract is established between the Post Office and the sender of a letter, distinctly limiting the liability of the former; but we do not think this was what was aimed at by the Dominion Board of Trade in their recommendation. In Canada the number of registered letters which miscarry without having the loss made good by the Postmaster in fault, is very small. If the number would be reduced by the adoption of the French system, it would be an advantage to adopt it; but we confess an examination of the facts stated above, and which have been furnished to us by a gentleman thoroughly conversant with the whole subject, induces us somewhat to modify our views on that point.—Montreal Gazette, April 17.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Book Manuscripts, Etc.—H. P., M——, Mass.—1. Book manuscript is confined solely to manuscript for books, and does not extend to that for pamphlets and newspapers. See letter from the department on this subject in the MAIL for March last. 2. A fictitious letter is one not addressed by the name of the person for whom it is intended. Letters and packages addressed to fictitious persons, etc., are not deliverable according to the regulations, section 60, but a postmaster must exercise some discretion, as, for instance, in the case of letters addressed to the well-known but not real name of an author or actor, or to the box number of a merchant or tradesman, who for good reasons desires that his name should not be known in some transactions, such, for instance, as advertising for a clerk.

Mail Carriers.—J. L. O., L——, Ind.—Mail carriers are not allowed to leave any part of the mail behind. Sec. 408, reg. 1866. There is a fine for so doing. Sec. 120. Report the fact to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Contract Office, Inspection Division, Washington, D. C.

County Paper.—E. H. D., M——, N. J.—Papers published in one county cannot be delivered free to persons residing in an adjoining county. A paper cannot be a county paper to a person not residing in the county of publication.

Delivery of Letters.—L. W, T——, O.—A letter addressed to one person, care of another, may be delivered to either, unless the person for whom the letter is intended should order it delivered only to himself. Secs. 58 and 59, Reg. 1866.

Official Envelopes.—T. H. McF., S——, Cal.—Official envelopes for general use are furnished only to offices of the first and second classes. But envelopes for registered letter use are furnished to all offices, by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. Sec. 19, Reg. 1866, and Sec. 10, Reg'n Reg. 1868.

Money-Order Offices.—E. F. H., P——C——, Mich.—There are no special conditions under which a post office is entitled to be constituted a money-order office. Postmasters are at liberty to make application to the Superintendent of the M. O. B., Washington, D. C., giving such reasons as they may have why the applications should be granted.

Returning Franked Newspapers.—H. S. D., A—— A——, Mich.—There is no provision for returning newspapers to the mailing office, whether franked or postage-paid. The provision for returning free applies only to letters. Sec. 66, Reg. 1866.

Quarterly Postage.—W. J. B., M——, N. Y.—Postmasters are correct in charging twenty cents yearly postage on weekly papers, and twenty-four on semi-monthly (Sections 201 and 202 of Regulations of 1866); but "why it is so" we cannot say, except that it is the law. If it were possible to inquire of the Congressional Committee that reported such a provision, you might get a "reason why."

Account of Newspapers.—J. H. De C., B——, Me.—There is an account for unpaid printed matter received at post-offices. Apply to the Blank Agency at Washington.

New Post Offices and Changes.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.
FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandratta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Selgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfonndland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail vie England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia.

Cuba,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
	St. Eustatius.

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inagua, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, if not exceeding four ounce in weight 2 cents; when exceeding 1 ounce and not exceeding 2 ounces, 3 cents; when exceeding 2 ounces and not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents; and four cents for every 4 ounces or fraction thereof. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York twice a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Oruba,
Cocbe,	Hayti,	Porto Rico,
Cuagua,	Les Saintes,	Saba,
Culebra,	Margarita,	St. Bartholomew,
Curacoa,	Marie Galanta,	St. Martin,
Deseade,	Martinique	Tortuga.

A direct mail for Hayti, San Domingo, Samana and Port-au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and book-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Sec. 222, Law, 1866.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registration to any part of the United States is 15 cents. This charge is exclusive of the proper postage. But the registry fee and the postage must be prepaid by stamps.

All domestic registered packages must be charged at letter rates of postage.

The name and address of the writer must be endorsed on the back of the letter.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.
Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " " 5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States;

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz. 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.... 3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, free. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 239 of Regulations.

SOOKE, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, 2 cents for three or less.

Other matter, 2 cents for each 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Metallic Post-Office Lock Boxes, that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post-Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market (all of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent. We will not hesitate to proceed vigorously against any and all persons who manufacture, buy or use any of them, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable in damages with the manufacturers.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 9. NEW YORK, JUNE, 1872. WHOLE NO. 141.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, June, 1872.

Mayugavia, referred to in my last epistle as the village where believers in the modern delusion of spiritual manifestations most do congregate, prior to the construction of the Point-no-Point railway—a thing of recent date—was, no doubt, a quiet, unobtrusive huddle of habitations, and was so far away from the then lins of travel that the face of a stranger within its gates must have been a rare sight. It's very different now. The first settlers showed great taste in selecting this nesting-place in one of the prettiest, sweetest little vallays in the world. Two chains of parallal hills, which have hitherto kept company almost arm and arm, gracefully recede from each other at this point to renew their proximity again a few hundred yards beyond. By this mutual deflection a magnificent amphitheater is formed through the center of which a vigorous brook of limpid water bounds over tha pahhlee in the jauntiest, sauciest kind of a way, gleefully singing to itself, "My heart is just as happy as a big sunflower," or something else, and finally leaps out of sight behind a curve of the railway embankment.

In its primitive state this sequestered dell must have been a popular place for fairy convocations and pastimes, that is if such supernaturals were ever permitted to grace the lap of mother earth with their pageants and banquets; and even now its picturesque and attractive attributes, its isolated and remote situation, walled in around about by mountains, the extraordinary stillness which prevails everywhere and the loneliness of its loveliness suggests it as a safe retreat where superstition can ply its vocation at pleasure, and where worshipers at the shrine of the supernatural can pay their devotions and their money at the same time and the world be none the wiser. This was probably the reason which prompted the spirit-rappers to shelter in this quiet nook, where credulous and ignorant victims could be enticed and allured beyond the reach, ken or warning, and upon whom they could practice their shaurdities. And, from the appearance of things, there were plenty of patrons during my visit, not all believers, to be sure, for many, like myself, were stimulated by curiosity, but, nevertheless, everybody had to pay, and it cost just as much to be duped understandingly as ignorantly. The sudden interruption of my conference with the invisible hut responsive spirit of Dumnorix Pulper was doubly annoying, because it was unfinished and because it cost three dollars—it costs just three dollars an interview, short or long. I asked the little minx who acted as master of ceremonies if she required an additional fee for another "shake" at Dumnorix after supper. "Why, of course," said she; "no second admission on the same ticket." I was certainly a little curious to know what further silent-land intelligence I might receive from my ghostly interlocutor, but I was disgusted with the harefaced extortion for indulging in humbuggery, and left the premises determined to shake the dust off my shoes and leave the town by the first opportunity.

Thinking "thusly," I slowly walked down the street towards the hotel, but hearing a voice behind me shouting out my name I turned round and beheld a man entirely unknown to me, who said, "The mejum wishes to see you." The evening was pretty well advanced and I hesitated a moment, but, having nothing else to do and wondering just a wee bit why I had been sent for, I retraced my steps to the hall I had just left. But how different an appearance it presented! The lights, the table, the company and my medium were all gone, and in their place was a venerable old gentleman, clad in a suit of sable, with a snowy beard which reached almost to his knees. Around his neck he wore a white tie, the forked ends of which stuck out a foot or more, right and left, as stiff as broom-handles. On his head he wore a huge hat the shape of an inverted hell; and on his feet were a pair of india-rubber boots in the legs of which his pantaloons were immersed to the knees. In fact, if it had not been for that hat and those boots he might have passed for a clergyman of the purest ray serene.

"Sir," said he, before I had time to ask a question, "I noticed the skepticel look you wore while in communication with the spirit of Dumnorix Pulper this evening, and resolved to give you what few people have the opportunity of enjoying, viz., a private manifestation."

Astonishment held me speechless: I looked round for the keeper of this madman (for such I supposed him to be), but he anticipated me by quietly remarking, "Nay, friend, I am neither mad nor crazy. Come with me," and we entered an adjoining room, dimly lighted by a lamp suspended by a chain from the ceiling. Stepping to the center, gloomy as it was, I saw that we stood by a coffin-shaped table around the edges of which a row of skulls were arranged, giving the scene rather a ghostly repulsive appearance. "Now," said he, "lay your right hand on the edge of the table and think of any one with whom you would like to have a spiritual pow-wow."

Of course I thought of Dumnorix Pulper, and said so, and forthwith I was en rapport with him. But he was evidently ill-natured, for in reply to my question, "How are you again, friend Dumnorix?" he crabbedly rejoined, "Why, Tonson, O why do you persist in calling me away from my club? This is one of our meeting-nights, we expect distinguished visitors and I am on the reception committee; great men of every nation will be present; there is to be a banquet and songs and toasts and speeches.. I am down for a song—"Benny Havens, O!"—that venerable and stirring old favorite of ours, and you must really excuse me. If you could only make your arrangements to come and stay with us permanently I will propose you for membership and then we can have all the hours we want to talk over old times. Good night."

"You will have to think of somebody else now," said my aged companion, but I could think of no one that I cared about interrogating; indeed, I began to feel a little ashamed of myself, and intimated to the old gentleman that I was fully satisfied, but, for some reason or other, he was not, and was evidently disinclined to suspend operations.

"Wait a moment," said he, and he went out. Presently he returned, leading by the hand a pretty little girl, about ten years old. "Here," said he, "I can furnish eyes for you to see anywhere, if I cannot furnish tongues to reply to you from the spirit land. This child I can put in a clairvoyant state, and through me she will communicate to you any intelligence or information you may desire in regard to people or places, no matter where, only so that I know enough to direct her attention to the locality."

Here was another surprise, for I never dreamed of things coming up in this shape; but I was in for it, and told him to fire away. He seated the girl in a large arm-chair, made a few downward passes with his open hands and then pronounced her ready for business. "And now," queried he, "where does your search after knowledge or your natural inquisitiveness lead you?"

I pondered awhile, but my head was full of Dumnorix Pulper and his views on postal matters, so I thought I might as well fight it out on that line, and proposed an inspection of the post-office at Sandpiper, where a friend of mine was apprehensive his correspondence was read and digested by the persons in charge. He imparted the necessary instructions to the little sleeping beauty in a peculiar way of his own. Presently he wheeled the chair round to the table, placed a pen in the child's hand and paper before her. Suddenly her right arm became rigid and shook violently; gradually the spasm subsided and she commenced to write swiftly, and this is a copy of her statement, only she wrote it from right to left instead of vice versa:

"I see a large room, across the front of which there is a hartende of small boxes with glass in front, and opposite each box a number. In these boxes there are papers and letters, and more are being put in. Behind this hartende three or four persons are engaged opening leather bags and taking therefrom letters and papers. One young person presses his thumb and finger quite heavily on every letter he gets hold of, but whether it is to ascertain if it contains anything but writing inside or whether the effort is simply a habit I am not able to say. He has a way, however, of casting furtive glances about him when thus engaged which detracts very much from his otherwise genteel appearance. I notice a stranger outside who has his face close up to the boxes earnestly watching something, but I know not what. A vehicle has just driven up to the door; the driver brings in a large bag, goes inside, takes a bunch of keys from a nail, opens the bag, scatters the contents on a table, tumbles it about, picks and assorts it, puts a good deal of it back in the bag again, walks over to another table and gets more which he puts in his bag, locks it, takes it out, jumps into his vehicle and drives away and no one in the office takes any more notice of his arrival or departure than if he had never been there. A young person, one of half-a-dozen lookers-on inside, asks 'why some one did not help the stage-driver to overhaul his mail.' 'O, he can do it as well as we can,' is the reply, 'and he would sooner do it than not. He carries his mail to five or six offices and helps at all of them. He saves time himself and gives postmasters along the road a chance to attend to other business. If he wasn't so accommodating they would have to be at the office every time the mail arrives. As it is now, he opens and closes their mails and they come to the office and wait on people when they are ready. Some folks grumble and say its unlawful and unsafe and some have even gone so far as to say they have lost letters and papers; but grumblers will be grumblers, and my doctrine is to let them grumble till they get over it.' Just as he finished, a number of little wickets in the barricade were opened and a great many people who have been waiting outside rush up to these openings and inquire for letters and papers. They are waited on pretty fast and disappear. One elderly gentleman seems to be very much exasperated at the non-arrival of his newspaper. 'This is the third one I have failed to receive and I am going to see about it,' and he stalks angrily away. Just then another gentleman steps up and says, 'Here is a paper don't belong to me,' and he hands it in. 'O, thunder!' says one clerk, 'here's old Worpath's paper, now! What'll we do about it?' 'Chuck it in the waste basket,' says another, 'it would never do to own up to a mistake to that old covey: we told him it did'nt come, we must stick to it, by Jove! and then he'll pitch into tha mailing office.' Everybody, apparently, has been served and the place is quite deserted outside. Two young ladies have just gone in and are amusing themselves by looking over the letters uncalled for in the different boxes. They are apparently enjoying it very much and no one notices or chides them, they evidently are accustomed to this interesting, amusing and dignified recreation. After they got through they went to one of the young gentlemen, who handed them a number of defaced foreign stamps, which must have been accidentally detached from packages after they reached this office, although I heard one of the clerks say to a gentleman who remarked that 'his foreign papers frequently arrived without stamps, that 'they must have been shaken off in the mail-bags by the rolling of the steamer while crossing the ocean;' to which the gentleman replied, 'Why, bless me, I never thought of that before! but I've no doubt it's so, for I've read of the sea being so rough that the sailors had to be lashed to the mast to prevent their being washed overboard. What chance, then, can postage-stamps have in a time like that? To be sure! to be sure!' The ladies, having really or ostensibly accomplished the object of their visit, departed, and soon after two of the clerks, and the only one now remaining in the office is the individual who is given to pinching or squeezing the letters. He has just risen from the seat which he has occupied for the last half hour, looks at the clock, commences to whistle, goes to a box, takes from it two letters, returns to his seat, throws wicked glances in every direction, opens one letter—it contains a written sheet and a pressed rose: he returns them to the envelope, applies some mucilage from a little vessel on the desk, seals it and then opens the other one. It contains a written letter and an oroide Sunday-scholar's medal with a ribbon attached. It has an inscription on it: he reads it, and, evidently disappointed at something, he replaces the contents of the second envelope, seals it as he did the other and returns both to the place from whence he took them. He may have written and mailed the letters himself and reopened them to see if he had forgotten something—I tell only what I see. And now he is preparing to close up for the day, but from his movements he is expecting some one. A dissipated looking young man meets him at the door as he is locking up and they go away together. Just after they had gone a genteel looking lady, dressed in mourning, came in: she knocks, then tries to open the door, but there is no response and the door is locked. She bursts into tears as she turns away, and, in a subdued voice betokening great agony, she mutters, 'O, my son, my son, I fear what I hear is too true! The company you keep and the places you visit have weaned you from home and, I am afraid, from the path of rectitude. O, what shall I do to save him? for I know he is on the road to moral, if not physical death.'"

Here the pen dropped from the sleeper's fingers and she woke up with a start.

"Well, sir, are you satisfied now?" asked the ancient, with a triumphant look.

"Perfectly," said I.

"Well, then, you can pay me three dollars: we generally charge more for private exhibitions, but in your case we are moderate. But tell me was the child's description of the Sandpiper office accurate?"

"O, yes," said I; "but it answers just as well for several other places within my knowledge," and, bidding him good-night, I left, fully convinced that the Mayugavia artists were doing a paying business, if not a bona fide one.

MONS. TONSON.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The first letter we take for our usual notice contains the pertinent request to say, in our paper, "to postmasters, not to delay other people's papers. Very often my paper is half worn out before reaching my office." The penalty for detaining newspapers is a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment not exceeding six months, and ineligibility for holding the office of postmaster Sec. 320, Laws 1866. Whether any postmasters or other officials render themselves liable to this penalty by detaining the MAIL they best know themselves. We would passingly remark that it is a great risk to run, to save a dollar.....A Suburban Subscriber, not an official, complains that book packages for foreign countries, prepaid according to the charges made by country postmasters, are, if insufficiently prepaid, detained at the Exchange Office to which sent, and frequently lost. His inquiry, "Why should I suffer for what was no fault of mine?, Can you tell me?" may be answered by saying that the arrangements between the United States and those foreign countries with which treaties exist are to recognize only Exchange Offices. Thus the Exchange Offices in the United States are really the mailing offices, and insufficiently prepaid matter, requiring full prepayment, is properly detained at them. That the sender suffers for the ignorance of the country postmaster is true, but the remedy for this is only in having better postmasters, or the senders themselves taking the UNITED STATES MAIL and making themselves perfectly familiar with the Foreign Postage Table. The first involves questions not within the province of the MAIL to discuss, the second involves the sending one dollar for the MAIL, receiving a paper worth more, and studying that paper after it is received. But, besides giving this remedy for what is an evil, we would say to country postmasters that they should be very careful in rating postage, especially to foreign countries, and to the public that they should see that the postmasters at the various offices take the MAIL or some good postal paper. We will add that this trouble of insufficient prepayment and detention is not, however, only an American grievance; a few weeks ago application was made at the New York post office for a book alleged to have been sent from England. After a thorough search and the usual amount of suspicion, notice was received by the addressee that the book was detained in England for insufficient postage. Probably it would be but proper that our Post Department should adopt a like courteous course of notifying foreign addressees....Our next letter commences thus: "I have noticed that a large number of persons have the impression that they can 'send small bundles of dry goods at 'paper rates' by leaving the packages open." The letter is accompanied by one from an irate postmaster to our correspondent, complaining that he charged at the office of delivery unpaid postage at letter rates on a package containing "nothing but one shirt and a pocket-handkerchief," which "he thinks a very great wrong." A month or two ago we noticed the case of a postmaster who mailed "shoa hammers" at miscellaneous rates. How any one of ordinary intelligence or ordinary care could find in the sections defining mailable matter anything like shirts or shoe hammers is a mystery, as much so as the whim of the "gentlemen of the quill" who find in "Book manuscript" the whole catalogue of whatever may be written by themselves—tales, stories, essays, letters or what not.

The Civil Service Rules.

We give below the Executive order respecting civil service, and such of the regulations as affect post officials:

EXECUTIVE ORDER.

WASHINGTON, April 16, 1872.—The advisory board of the civil service, having completed the grouping contemplated by the rules already adopted, have recommended certain provisions for carrying the rules into effect.

The recommendations, as herewith published, are approved, and the provisions will be enforced as rapidly as the proper arrangements can be made, and the 18th of the rules adopted on the 19th day of December last is amended to read as published herewith.

The utmost fidelity and diligence will be expected of all officers in every branch of the public service. Political assessments, as they are called, have been forbidden within the various departments; and while the right of all persons in official positions to take part in politics is acknowledged, and the elective franchise is recognized as a high trust to be discharged by all entitled to exercise, whether in the employment of the government or in private life, honesty and efficiency, not political activity, will determine the tenure of office.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

REGULATIONS.

1. No person will be appointed to any position in the civil service who shall not have furnished satisfactory evidence of his fidelity to the Union and the Constitution of the United States.

2. The evidence in regard to character, health, age and knowledge of the English language required by the first rule shall be furnished in writing; if such evidence shall be satisfactory to the Board of Examiners, or to the person or persons designated by them to conduct the examination, the applicant shall be notified when and where to appear for examination; but when the applicants are so numerous that the examination of all whose preliminary papers are satisfactory is plainly impracticable, the board shall select for examination a practicable number of those who are apparently best qualified.

* * * * *

9. When a vacancy occurs in the office of postmaster in cities having, according to the census of 1870, a population of 20,000 or more, the Postmaster-General shall ascertain if any of the subordinates in such office are suitable persons, qualified to discharge efficiently the duties of postmaster; and if such one be found he shall certify to the President the name and names of those subordinates, not exceeding three in number, who in his judgment are best qualified for the position, from which list the President will make the nomination to fill the vacancy. But if no such subordinate be found so qualified, or if the nomination be not confirmed by the Senate, the nomination will be made at the discretion of the President. Vacancies occurring in such positions in the said post offices as are included in the subjoined classification will be filled in accordance with the rules. Appointments to all other positions in the said post offices may be, until otherwise ordered, excepted from the operation of the rules.

10. When a vacancy occurs in the office of Postmaster of a class not otherwise provided for, applications for the position from any subordinate or subordinates in the office, or from other persons residing within the delivery of the office, may be addressed to the Postmaster General, inclosing proper certificates of character, responsibility and capacity; and if any of the subordinates so applying shall be found suitable and qualified, the name or names of the best qualified, not exceeding three, shall be certified by the Board of Examiners to the Postmaster General, and from them nomination or appointment shall be made. But if no subordinate be found qualified, the said Board shall certify to the Postmaster General the name or names, not exceeding three, of the best qualified among the other applicants, and from them the nomination or appointment shall be made. If, however, no applicants under this regulation shall be found suitable and qualified, the vacancy will be filled at discretion. Appointments to all other positions in the said post offices may be, until otherwise ordered, excepted from the operation of the rules.

11. Special agents of the Post Office Department shall be appointed by the Postmaster General at discretion from persons already in the Postal Service, and who shall have served therein for a period of not less than one year immediately preceding the appointment. But if no person within the Service shall, in the judgment of the Postmaster General, be suitable and qualified, the appointment shall be made from all applicants under the rules.

12. Mail Route Messengers shall be appointed in the manner provided for the appointment of Postmasters whose annual salary is less than $200.

* * * *

18. All communications in writing relative to employment, appointment, or removal from office must be addressed to the proper department. Communications otherwise addressed will not receive attention; and personal application from those who desire appointments will not be entertained by the President or by the heads of departments.

19. Appointments to all positions in the civil service not included in the subjoined classification, nor otherwise specially provided for by the rules and regulations, may, until otherwise ordered, be excepted from the operations of the rules.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.

J. GAYLER, ... Editor,

F. S. THOMSON, ... Publisher,

NEW YORK, JUNE, 1872.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 141 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Official Indorsement.

Since its establishment in 1830, the UNITED STATES MAIL has received the official recommendation of Postmasters-General BLAIR, DENNISON and RANDALL, and we take pleasure in publishing also the following from Postmaster-General CRESWELL, who adds to those of his predecessors his recognition and indorsement of the MAIL as a medium for the publication of official orders and instructions, and of correct information on postal subjects:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST-OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at NewsYork, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

[Official.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24, 1872.

SIR: I inclose herewith a notice relative to mails for the West Indies, and request that you will please cance the same to be published in tha next issne of your paper. I am, very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Supt.

Editor U. S. MAIL, New York.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24, 1872.

MAILS FOR THE WEST INDIES.

Owing to recent changes in the British Mail Packat Service in the West Indies, which prevent close connections at St. Thomas between the United States and Brazil Mail Steamers and the several British Mail Packets touching at that point, mails for the British Post Office Agency at St Thomas, containing all correspondence for the British or Foreign West Indies (except Jamaica, British Honduras, Bayti and the Danish West Indias) are made up and forwarded from the New York office on the 15th or 16th of each month by United States mail steamers to Kingston, Jamaica, and thence by British West India Mail Packets to destination.

Correspondence for Jamaica, British Honduras and Hayti is also forwarded by the same steamers on the 15th or 16th of each month from New York to Kingston.

Correspondence for tha Danish West Indies (to wit: St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz) will continue to be forwarded by the United States and Brazil Mail Steamers, leaving New York on the 23d of each month.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.

Our Postal Relations with France.

For a long time past our postal relations with France have been in a most unsatisfactory condition; and though no effort on the part of our Government has been spared to improve them by the negotiation of a fair and equitable convention, such as already exists between our own and most of the European post departments, those efforts have hitherto proved futile, owing to the persistent refusal of the French Government to reciprocate in the matter of cheap postage—the French traditional theory that the post-office should be primarily a source of revenue rather than a great public convenience, having been the stumbling-block over which all attempts at negotiation have hitherto tripped. The following, from the Paris correspondence of the Tribune, explains the present situation clearly, and holds out a hope of better things which we trust will not prove fallacious:

Among the conclusions of this world our postal relations with France may be signalised as bad. Some folks have ventured to think that a Minister of such brilliant diplomatic talents as Mr. Washburne, and who has a so peculiarly happy knack of making himself agreeable to the French and their government, might have compassed some sort of temporary arrangement, awaiting the negotiation of a treaty. Any arrangement would be better, they think, than the actual derangement which has lasted so long. Since none has been made, they are doubtless wrong. That there were formerly serious difficulties in the way of an equitable definitive arrangement is indisputable. There is good reason now for believing that were Mr. Kasson or some other equally competent person sent here to renew negotiations he would promptly bring them to a satisfactory issue. An American gentleman who knows well M. Rampont, the present head of the postal administration, and has had frequent communication with him on the subject, says that he is most favorably disposed for a fair settlement. That the Minister of Finance, in whose department the Post Office administration belongs, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, are also well disposed, there can be little doubt. This appears from the provisions of the new postal convention with the German Empire, which was negotiated last February, and was sanctioned yesterday, after thorough debate, by a vote of the Assembly. The principal of these simple and sensible provisions may have an interest for Americans. The rates are, for a single letter from France to Germany (the Empire limits), 40 centimes; from Germany to France, three silver groschen, or 37½ centimes. The trifling difference is owing to a difference in the money divisions of the two countries. Another article of the convention, looking to a rational simplification of accounts, leaves the entire receipts of pre-payments or post payments to the country where they are paid. That is acceptance of the principle of complete reciprocity. But an important part of the business of the French post is with letters and other postal matter in transitu. Spain and Portugal, for example, on one side, parts of Austria, Russia, and the northern countries on the other, communicate through France or through Germany with each other and with France or Germany. Here again are regulations marked with the same common sense and intelligible simplification that are the general characteristics of the convention. The transit by what are styled depeches closes—that is, closed mail bags, received at one frontier and transmitted over another, formerly embarrassed by complex calculations—is now charged at a uniform rate of six francs per kilogramme for letters, and one franc per kilogramme for printed matter.

Any one at all aware of the traditional practices of the French Post Office will be impressed, on reading the above paragraph, with the kind and degree of innovation admitted there, and the larger tendency to reform implied in those definite practical admissions. It is the first abdication of a pretense and renunciation of a conception relating to the postal service that have hitherto ruled all other regimes, and hardly been questioned by individual reformers. The Post Office administration principally had its reason of existence as an instrument of communication between the Central Government and its officers throughout the country. The service it might render to the nation at large and to individuals was accidental, vonchsafed, ex-gratia, and to be paid for as a favor at more than cost. Let us not hasten to raise our voices in shrill thanksgiving that we are so essentially not as those other French silly sinners. The once universal notion that governments and gifted official folks were divine-righted and officially privileged primo for themselves, and only secundo for the rights and benefits of the governed, is still traceable in that queer coprolite, our fossil franking privilege.

A chief obstacle to all fair postal treaties with France has naturally been, hitherto, the French assumption that, in the sharing of the postage receipts, France could not admit the idea of reimbursing, for her special part in the payment on a foreign letter, the entire sum of her internal postage. A letter sent from the Isle of Skye to Laed's End in Great Britain costs a penny—two sous; but one from Dover to Calais, an hour's distance, costs three pennies—six sous. This is because a letter from Calais to the next town within the French territory costs five sous. In other words, and briefly, the traditional policy of the French Government has been, hitherto, in these matters, to submit all foreign people to the conditions imposed on French people. In this Franco-German Convention this policy is relinquished. It is worth noting that Rouher found occasion to express approval of it, and voted for the law sanctioning it, proposed by Government.

Of all the registered letters forwarded from the New York post office during the year 1870, eleven only remained unacknowledged. The following are the delinquent offices: Centreville, Ala.; Elmington, Va.; Macon Station, Ala.; Butler, Ala.; Oxford, Miss.; Bear Creek, Miss.; Dry Grove, Miss.; Huntsville, Ala. (two); Longmier's Store, S. C.; Hickory Flett, Miss.

During the year 1871, two hundred and thirty-four thousand four hundred and ninety-nine (234,499) registered letters were forwarded from the same office; 65,519 city registered letters and 168,980 distribution. Of this number two are unacknowledged. The delinquent offices are Monticello, Ga., and Augusta, N. Y.

POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.—Some important changes have been made in our Foreign Postage Table this month, in the rates of postage on newspapers. Postmasters should carefully consult notes b and p at the foot of the Tables, and not rely on former practice or knowledge.

THE esteemed wife of Hon. John L. Routt, Second Assistant Postmaster-General, died on the 9th of last month, at Washington. Her remains were taken to her former home, Bloomington, Ill., for interment.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Mail Letters Prepaid only Two Cents.—T. D., G——, D. C.—Mail letters prepaid only two cents are to be treated as letters wholly unpaid (section 389 Regulations of 1866), and all mail matter on which the postage is required to be prepaid by law, reaching the office of delivery without such prepayment, must be charged with postage at the prepaid rate (sec. 150, Reg.), hence a mail letter prepaid only two cents, reaching the office of delivery, should be charged the legal rate of three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof.....J. F. S., L— F——, Ind.—A cerd letter prepaid one full rate should be forwarded, but if prepaid less than one full rate may be either sent to the Dend Letter office as held for postage, or returned to the writer for the deficient postage.

Account of Mails Sent.—B. J. A., C——, Mich.—The account of mails sent was discontinued on the 1st of October, 1868; a "post bill," however, should be sent with all insufficiently prepaid letters that are mailed direct (sec. 92, Reg. 1866).

Book Manuscript.—C. G., G——, Conn.—There is no way, that we are aware of, to judge unmistakably between book and newspaper manuscript; the word and character of the sender, and the address and character of the MSS., should enable the postmaster to form a correct judgment in nearly every case.

Printing on the Wrapper of a Newspaper.—R. & B., N——, Tenn.—The words, "See Card in this Issue," printed on the wrapper of a newspaper, subjects it to letter postage. Secs. 41 and 216, Reg. 1866.

Writing on the Margin of a Newspaper.—W. T. B., L——, Ind.—A publisher has the right to send a bill for subscriptions in his paper, but this cannot be construed into the right to write the words, "Amount due," on the margin. These words do not constitute a "bill;" they may refer to the subscription or they may refer to something else.

Distributing Circulars.—M. L. B., G—— S——, O.—Circulars may be sent in bulk to a post office to be distributed, provided the rate of two cents for each four ounces, or fraction thereof, on the bulk, and the proper local postage on each circular, is prepaid.

Monthly Papers Issued by a Society.—D. A. S, P——, Cal.—A monthly paper issued by a society and furnished to each member in consideration and as part of the return for fees received for membership is not a paper published for "gratuitous circulation, and depending upon advertisement for support," and hence should be mailed as a regular publication, and postage paid accordingly, either at the mailing or delivering office.

Two Papers in One Wrapper, etc.—J. M. J., B——, N. Y.—1. Two or more transient papers may be sent in one wrapper at the rate of two cents for four ounces or a fraction thereof. 2. Newspapers having been received from the place of publication on quarterly postage, cannot be sent by the subscriber to another post office at the quarterly rates and conditions, but postage must be prepaid at transient rates.

Franking.—H. C. S., R——, Pa.—It is impossible for us to reply to individual cases of franking, but must refer postmasters to chapter 15 of regulations of 1866. There is no law or privilege more abused than the franking privilege, and no abuses more difficult to correct.

Letter Posted with a Defaced Stamp.—C. H. V., G——C——, N. Y.—A letter posted with a defaced stemp should be "held for postage," and sent to the Dead Letter Office, unless the error can be corrected by the writer. Sec. 360, Reg. 1866.

Cents.—J. P., N——, N. Y.,—Apply to the Director of the mint, Philadelphia, Pa. for instructions to dispose of surplus cents.

County Newspapers.—M. E. A., B——, Iowa.—A subscriber may receive free one copy each of as many county weekly papers as he pleases.

Postmaster Signing his Name.—E. F. L., M—— M—— S——, Mich.—A postmaster should sign his name to official papers in all cases where it is possible. Where it is not possible, his assistant should sign it, and add his own name thus: "A—— B—— P. M.," by C—— D——, Assistant P. M." Sec. 296, Reg. 1866, and Sec. 16, M. O. Regulations of 1871.

Letters "held for Postage" etc.—W. F. D., N—— M——, Ind.,— Letters held for postage should be sent to the Dead Letter Office once a week, and be accompanied by a list of the names of the persons to whom they are addressed. Sec. 374, Reg. 1866. Either the postmaster or a special agent may require the affidavit set forth in section 210, Regulations of 1866.

Salary.—J. R. L, P——, N. J.—"Postmasters are prohibited from using, loaning, investing, depositing in bank, or exchenging moneys received for postages." Sec. 281 Reg. 1866. You will see from this that postmasters are not at liberty to use postage money until they take credit for it as salary in their quarterly accounts. . . . L. N., B——, Ga.—Under the previous system of peying postmasters by commission, where a mail errived in the night, an eddition of 10 per cent. was ellowed on the first $400; that is, 70 per cent. instead of 60 per cent. You should have made the claim when you made up your stetement for e readjustment of salary.

Weight of Mail Matter, &c.—W. W. K., E——, Mo.—1. Four pounds is the limit to weight of packages in the mail; the postege rate will be according to the "class" of the matter. Sec. 220 Reg. 1866. 2. It is a violation of law to inclose two or more letters for different persons in one envelope, whether the persons are of the same family or of different families. Sec. 217 Laws 1866.

Registration.—J. H. D., G——, Nev.—Newspepers may be registered if prepaid at letter rates of postage, but not if prepaid at miscellaneous raies. Sec. 8, Regn. Reg. 1868 ....E. D. H., O——, Miss.—The numbering of Registered Letters, and of Registered Package Envelopes, must begin anew, with No. 1, at the beginning of every quarter. For letters, see instructions in the registered letter bills; for package envelopes, see section 11 of Registration Regulations of 1868....S. C. P., S—— S——, Tenn.—By order of the Third Assistant P. M. General, under date of September 1, 1870, the sender of a registered letter or package is required to indorse his name and post office address, or a "return request," on the envelope or wrapper of such letter package. The sender may specify the number of days or not; in the latter case, the letter would remain at the office of delivery thirty daye ...T. B. J., P—— P——, Mich.—The person to whose care a registered letter is sent may sign the receipt for it. Sec. 13, Regn. Reg. 2 Newspapere to he delivered free from a post office must be properly folded and addressed. Sec. 3, Act of July 27, 1868..... A. E. R., Y——, Cal.—The Registration Regulations are not specific in directing into which of a through or a way mail bag, where both are carried by the same stage driver at the same time, registered packages should be put. But to put them in a through bag, accompanied by the proper receipt "to be signed by the postmaster at the office where the pouch containing the same is next opened," would be a compliance with the Regulation. Sec. 2. Regn. Reg., 1868.

Official Wit.

FRIENDSHIP, N. Y., April 20, 1873.

P. M., WILLIAMSPORT, PA.:—Will you inform me if the pigeons are nesting in your vicinity? If so, at what place? By so doing you will confer a favor. H. ADAMS.

POST OFFICE, Williamsport, Pa.

DEAR SIR.: Guess not. If so no carrier has arrived to inform us of the fact. Several stuffed pigeons roosting at "Star Saloon." Last roosting place in this State, within our knowledge, was at State Capitol, Harrisburg; but the Legislature has adjourned, and the "birds" have scattered; and I may say, as you seem to be in the bird line, that the "goose hangs high" since the logs have reached the boom. Very respectfully,

POSTMASTER.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.
FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Not exceeding one ounce, two cents; exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces, three cents; exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces, four cents, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDUATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretto, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States; or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, hook packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment required.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 onnces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 onnces or fraction thereof; hook-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 onnces or fraction thereof, if the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 onnces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 onnces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Pre-payment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,

A direct mail for San Domingo, Samana and Port au-Plate, leaves New York via American packet about the 20th to 25th of each month. Postage, ten cents per half ounce on letters, and domestic rates on newspapers and hook-packets. Prepayment both on letters and other matter compulsory.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, without addition by writing, mark or sign.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. Sec. 223, Law, 1866.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 222, Law, 1866

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 45, Law, 1866.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rats is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) except ing those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

No newspaper pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when such scription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registration to any part of the United States is 15 cents. This charge is exclusive of the pr per postage. Both the registry fee and the postage must be prepaid by stamps.

All domestic registered packages must be charged at letter rates of postage.

The name and address of the writer must be endorsed on the letter.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)	30	"
For Tri-Weekly, " "	15	"
For Semi-Weekly, " "	10	"
For Weekly, " "	5	"

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.....	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.....	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.....	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.....	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.....	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.....	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.....	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in publications, their bills and receipts for the same of postage, etc, free They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each packages not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

The New York Times.

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the time—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democracy has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They propose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of the narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects, and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, recognizing the claims of American industry in adjusting the sources of revenue; and it will advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

CAMPAIGN EDITION.

During the ensuing Presidential Canvass, we shall publish a SPECIAL WEEKLY EDITION for the convenience of those who desire the latest and most trustworthy political intelligence.

The CAMPAIGN EDITION of the NEW YORK TIMES will be furnished to mail subscribers, for six months, for the sum of FIFTY CENTS. All copies sent to the same post office to be mailed to one address.

The NEW YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

CAUTION.

THE YALE LOCK MANUFACTURING CO. desires to notify Postmasters and others using, purchasing or manufacturing Metallic Post-Office Lock Boxes that proceedings are now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York against certain infringers of the letters patent for Post Office Lock Boxes, heretofore granted to Linus Yale, Jr., the exclusive right to manufacture under said letters patent being in the undersigned.

And we are advised and believe that the several Post-Office Lock Boxes now in the market (all of which were introduced after and modeled from that made by us) are likewise infringements of the said letters patent. We will not hesitate to proceed vigorously against any and all persons who manufacture, buy or use any of them, and we desire the users of the Boxes to understand that they are equally liable in damages with the manufacturers.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 10. NEW YORK, JULY, 1872. WHOLE NO. 142.

The New Postal Code.

We publish herewith a synopsis of the recently enacted Postal Code, giving in full all sections which contain new provisions or are of general interest, and, in a condensed form, the substance of the other sections. Most of these latter are simply re-enactments of laws in force at the time this act was passed:

AN ACT

To Revise, Consolidate and Amend the Statutes relating to the Post Office Department.

SEC. 1. Provides for the establishment of the Post Office Department, and any person injured by law with the sale of postage stamps or envelopes, who shall refuse or neglect to account for the same (or who shall pledge, or hypothecate, or unlawfully dispose of them for any purpose whatever), shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement, and shall be subject to the same penalty and punishment as are provided in this section for the embezzlement of money.

SEC. 40 That the money required for the postal service in each year shall be appropriated by law out of the revenue for the service.

SECS. 47 and 48—Regulate the method of payments of money from the Treasury on account of the postal service, and authorize advances to agents employed in investigations.

SEC 49—Authorizes the Postmaster-General to transfer to contractors debts due the department from postmasters and others.

SEC. 50.—That in all cases where money has been paid out of the funds of the Post Office Department under the pretense that service has been performed therefor, when, in fact, such service has not been performed, or as additional allowance for increased service actually rendered, when the additional allowance exceeds the sum which, according to law, might rightfully have been allowed therefor, and in all other cases where money of the Department has been paid to any person in consequence of fraudulent representations, or by the mistake, collusion, or misconduct of any officer or other employee in the postal service, the Postmaster-General shall cause suit to be brought to recover such wrong or fraudulent payment or excess, with interest thereon.

SEC 51.—That when the Postmaster-General is satisfied that money or property stolen from the mail, or the proceeds thereof, has been received at the Department, he may, upon satisfactory evidence as to the owner, deliver the same to him.

SECS. 52 to 55 (inclusive)—Regulate the method of deposits of postal revenues in the Treasury.

SEC 56—Authorizes the Postmaster General to transfer money belonging to the postal service between the Treasurer, Assistant Treasurer and designated depositaries at his discretion.

SEC. 57.—Provides for the disposition of fines and pennities collected under postal laws.

SEC. 58. Authorizes the Postmaster General to dispose of, in such manner as he may deem for the best interest (but they must be preserved entire for at least two years).

SEC 59. SEC. 180. That postage on all mail matter must be prepaid by stamps at the time of mailing, an res herein otherwise provided for.

SEC. 181. That all mail matter deposited for mailing, on which at least one full rate of postage has been paid as required by law, shall be forwarded to its destination, charged with the unpaid rate, to be collected on delivery.

SEC. 182. That if any mail matter, on which by law the postage is required to be prepaid at the mailing office, shall by inadvertence reach its destination without such prepayment, double the prepaid rates shall be charged and collected on delivery.

SEC 183. That no mail matter shall be delivered until the postage due thereon has been paid.

SEC. 184. That no box at any post office shall be assigned to the use of any person until the rent thereof has been paid for at least one quarter in advance, for which the postmaster shall give a receipt.

SEC. 185. That the Postmaster General may provide by regulations for transmitting unpaid and duly certified letters of soldiers, sailors and marines in the service of the United States, to their destination.

SEC 186. That on all mail matter which is wholly or partly in writing, except book manuscripts and corrected proofs passed between authors and publishers and local or drop letters; on all printed matter which is so marked as to convey any other or further information than is conveyed by the original print, except the correction of mere typographical errors; on all matter which is sent in violation of law or the regulations of the Department respecting inclosures; and on all matter to which no specific rate of postage is assigned, postage shall be charged at the rate of three cents for each half-ounce or fraction thereof.

SEC 187. That letters commonly known as drop or local letters, delivered through the post-office or its carriers, shall be charged with postage at the rate of two cents where the system of free delivery is established, and one cent where such system is not established, for each half-ounce or fraction thereof.

SEC. 188. That on newspapers and other periodicals, not exceeding four ounces in weight, sent from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, postage shall be charged at the following rates per quarter, namely: on publications issued less frequently than once a week, at the rate of one cent for each issue; issued weekly, five cents; and five cents additional for each issue more frequent than once a week. And an additional rate shall be charged for each additional ounce or fraction thereof in weight.

SEC. 189 That on new papers and other periodicals sent from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, the postage shall be paid before delivery for not less than one quarter nor more than one year, which payment may be made either at the office of mailing or delivery, commencing at any time, and the postmaster shall account for such postage in the quarter in which it is received.

SEC. 190. That the Postmaster General may provide by regulations for carrying small newspapers, issued less frequently than once a week, in packages to one address, from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, at the rate of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

SEC. 191. That persons known as regular dealers in newspapers and periodicals may receive and transmit by mail such publications of other and like character, and all mail matter not otherwise lawfully mailable, and when any such improvement is adopted it shall be subject to all the provisions herein respecting postage stamps or stamped envelopes.

SEC 192 That postage stamps and stamped envelopes shall be furnished by the Postmaster General to all postmasters, and shall be kept for sale at all post offices; and each postmaster shall be held accountable for all such stamps and envelopes furnished to him.

SEC. 193 That postage stamps and stamped envelopes may be sold at a discount to certain designated agents, who will agree to sell again without discount, under rules to be prescribed by the Postmaster General; but the quantities of each sold to any one agent at one time shall not exceed one hundred dollars in value, and the discount shall not exceed five per centum on the face value of the stamps, nor the same per centum on the current price of the envelopes when sold to less quantities

SEC. 194 That postage stamps shall not be sold for any larger sum than the same indicated on their face, nor stamped envelopes for more than is charged therefor by the Post Office Department for like quantities; and any person connected with the postal service who shall violate this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars.

SEC. 195. That the postage stamps affixed to all mail matter or the stamped envelopes in which the same is inclosed, when deposited for mailing or delivery, shall be defaced by the postmaster at the mailing office for such purposes as the Postmaster General may direct; and if any mail matter shall be forwarded without the stamps or envelopes being so defaced, the postmaster at the office of delivery shall deface them, and report the delinquency to the Postmaster General.

SEC 170. That any person employed in any branch of the postal service, who shall wilfully and unlawfully secrete, embezzle or destroy any postage stamp affixed thereto in payment of the postage, shall, on conviction thereof, for every such offence, be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than six months at the discretion of the court.

SEC 177. That any person who shall use or attempt to use, in payment of the postage, on any mail matter conveyed, by mail or otherwise, any postage stamp or stamped envelope, or any stamp cut from any such stamped envelope, which has been before used for a like purpose, shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars.

SEC. 178. That any person who shall make, or counterfeit any postage stamp, or any stamp printed upon any stamped envelope, or postal card, or any die, plate or engraving therefor; any person who shall make, or print, or knowingly use or sell, or have in possession, with intent to use or sell, any paper bearing the watermark of any stamped envelope, or postal card, or any fraudulent imitation thereof; any person who shall make or print, or authorize or procure to be made or printed, any postage stamp or stamped envelope or postal card of the kind authorized and provided by the Post Office Department, without the special authority and direction of said Department; any person who shall, after such postage stamps, stamped envelopes, postal cards have been printed, and, with intent to defraud the postal revenue, deliver the same to any person not authorized by an instrument of writing duly executed under the hand of the Postmaster General and the seal of the Post Office Department to receive them, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of felony, and be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 179. That any person who shall forge or counterfeit, or knowingly utter or pass any forged or counterfeited postage stamp of any foreign Government, shall be deemed guilty of felony, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment of not less than two nor more than ten years, at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 180. That authority to frank mail matter is conferred upon and limited to the following persons:

First. The President, by himself or his private secretary, over his own mail matter.

Second. The Vice-President, to cover all mail matter.

Third. The chiefs of the several Executive Departments.

Fourth Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress, and the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives, to cover their correspondence, all printed matter issued by authority of Congress, and all speeches, proceedings, and debates in Congress.

SEC 194 That every postmaster shall post, in a conspicuous place in his office, a copy of section 181 of non-delivered letters issued by order of the postmaster general.

SEC 192. That the compensation for publishing the list of non-delivered letters shall in no case exceed one cent for each letter so published.

SEC 193. That all letters published as non-delivered shall be charged with one cent in addition to the regular postage, to be accounted for as part of letter postage revenue.

SEC 194 That the Postmaster General may regulate the period during which undelivered letters shall remain in any post office, and the time they shall be returned to the dead-letter office, and he may make regulations for their return from the dead-letter office to the writers, when they cannot be delivered to the parties addressed.

SEC 195. That all domestic letters, deposited in any post office for mailing, on which the postage is wholly unpaid or paid one time only, are still rated as required by law, except letters lawfully free, and duty certificated letters of soldiers, sailors and marines in the service of the United States, shall be sent by the postmaster to the dead-letter office in Washington: Provided, That in large cities and adjacent districts of dense population, having two or more post offices within a distance of three miles of each other, any letter unpaid at one of such offices and addressed to a locality within the delivery of another of such offices, which shall have been inadvertently prepaid at the drop or local letter rate of postage only, may be forwarded to its destination through the proper office, charged with the amount of the deficient postage to be collected on delivery.

SEC 196. That dead letters containing valuable inclosures shall be registered in the dead-letter office and when they cannot be delivered to the party addressed nor to the writer the contents thereof shall be disposed of, and a careful account shall be kept of the amount real and in each case which shall be subject to reclamation by either the party addressed or the writer for four years from the registry thereof and all other letters of value or importance in the party addressed or to the writer, and which cannot be returned to either shall be disposed of as the Postmaster General may direct.

SEC. 197. That the action of the Post Office Department respecting foreign prepaid letters shall be subject to conventional stipulations with the respective foreign administrations.

SEC. 198. Provides for the return to the writers of all "registered letters."

SEC. 199 Provides for the "forwarding" of prepaid and free letters

SEC. 200 to 204 (inclusive). Define what are, and shall be considered post roads—including the waters, canals, railways and plank-roads of the United States (during the time mail is carried thereon), and all intermediate railways.

SEC 207. Authorizes the Postmaster General to change terminal of post roads connecting with or intersecting railways

SEC. 206. Authorizes the Postmaster General to discontinue service on any post road, or on any part thereof, whenever in his opinion the postal service cannot be safely continued, the revenues collected or the laws maintained thereon.

SEC. 209. Authorizes the Postmaster General to contract for transportation of the mails to and from any post office which he deems it advisable, and requires him, if such service be on a railroad not now aided by law, to report the same to Congress at its next meeting.

SEC. 210. Authorizes the Postmaster General to arrange railway mail routes in classes, with a view to a just rate of compensation to each.

SEC. 211. Fixes compensation of railways of different classes for carrying the mails

SEC. 212. Authorizes the Postmaster General, when unable to procure railway transportation for mails at legal or just rates, to provide for transportation of the letter mails on such routes by horse express and the other mails in wagons

SEC. 213. Requires railway companies carrying the mails to carry, without extra charge, all mailable matter and the persons in charge of same.

SECS 214 to 221 (inclusive) Invest the Postmaster General with authority to make contracts for transportation of the mails.

SEC. 222 Requires the master of any United States vessel sailing to a foreign port to receive on board, convey and deliver to the proper officer at such port all such mails as the Post Office Department or any diplomatic or consular agent abroad may offer, and fixes his compensation at two cents for each letter

SECS 223 and 224. Refer to "ship" and "steamboat" letters, and the compensation for their conveyance.

SEC. 225.—Forbids and punishes the display of the words, "United States mail" on any steamboat or other vessel's agee-board or other vehicle not actually employed in carrying the mail: also, the publication of any false notice that such steamboat, vessel, stage-coach, &c., is used in carrying the mail.

SEC. 226.—That every route agent, postal clerk, or carrier of the mail shall receive any mail matter presented to him, if properly prepaid by stamps, and deliver the same for mailing at the next post office at which he arrives; but no fees shall be allowed him therefor.

SEC. 227. That any person concerned in carrying the mail who shall collect, receive, or carry any letter or packet, or cause or procure the same to be done, contrary to law, shall, on conviction thereof, for every such offense, forfeit and pay not exceeding fifty dollars.

SECS. 228 to 237 (inclusive)—Forbid and punish the unlawful carrying of mailable matter.

SEC. 238. That nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit the delivery of mailable matter of letters or packets by private hands with all compensation, or by special messenger employed for the particular occasion only.

SEC. 239 That all letters inclosed in stamped envelopes (the postage stamp in every case being of a denomination sufficient to cover the postage that would be chargeable thereon if the same were sent through the mail) may be sealed, answered and delivered other wise than by mail, provided such letters are not hereby delivered and properly sealed, so that the letter cannot be taken therefrom without defacing the envelope, and the date of the letter or of the transmission or receipt thereof shall be written or stamped upon the envelope. But the Postmaster General may suspend the operation of this section upon any mail route where the public interest may require such suspension.

SEC. 240. That when the amount of mail matter to be carried on any mail route is so great as to seriously retard the progress or endanger the security of the letter mail, or materially increase the cost of carriage at the ordinary rate of speed, the Postmaster General may provide for the separate conveyance of letter mail at the usual rate of speed; but the other mail matter shall not be delayed any more than is absolutely necessary, having due regard to the economical solution and the best means at his disposal for effecting the same.

SEC. 241. That any person who shall knowingly and willfully obstruct or retard the passage of the mail or any carriage, horse, driver, or car or carrying the same, shall on conviction thereof, for every such offense, forfeit and pay not exceeding one hundred dollars.

SEC. 242. That any ferryman who shall delay the passage of the mail by willful neglect or refusal to transport the same across any ferry, or who shall discriminate such mail may be so delayed, forfeit and pay ten dollars.

SECS. 243 to 245 (inclusive) Refer to the details of advertising contracts, and receiving and opening bids therefor

SEC. 247. That any postmaster or other officer of the Post Office Department who shall affix his signature to the certificate of sufficiency of guarantors or sureties before the guaranty or contract is signed by the guarantors or sureties, or who shall knowingly make any false or fictitious certificate, shall be forthwith dismissed from office and shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than $100 nor exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

SECS. 248 to 274 (inclusive). Regulate details as to contracts for transportation of domestic and foreign mails

SEC. 273. That the Postmaster General or the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to empower the consuls of the United States to pay the foreign postage on such letters destined for the United States as may be destitute at the ports of foreign countries for the non-payment of postage, which postage shall be by the consul marked as paid by him, and the amount thereof shall be collected in the United States with the postage on the delivery of the letters, and repaid to said consul, or credited on his account at the State Department.

SEC. 276 That the Postmaster General, under the direction of the President of the United States, is hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate and conclude postal letters and other mailable matter carried to or from any port of the United States, in any foreign packet ship or steamer, at such postage rates of foreign or American postage while the government to which such foreign packet or other vessel belongs imposes upon letters and other mailable matter conveyed to or from such foreign country in American packets or other vessels as the postage of such government, and at any time to revoke the same; and it shall be the duty of all customs-house officers and other United States agents designated or appointed for that purpose to call on and carry into effect the foregoing provisions, and to aid or assist in the execution of such powers; and to that end it shall be lawful for such officers and agents, on suspicion of fraud, to open and examine, in the presence of the master or person having charge of the United States mails, any package suppposed to contain mailable matter found on board such packets or other vessels or elsewhere, and to prevent, if necessary, such packets or other vessels from entering, breaking bulk, or making clearance until such letters or other mailable matter are duly delivered to the collector of the port.

SEC. 277. That all letters or other mailable matter conveyed to or from any part of the United States by any foreign packet or ship, except such vessels as certificated ship or vessel, or any part of the cargo thereof as may be directed to the owner or owners, consignee or consignees, of said ship or other vessel, shall be subject to postage, as aforesaid, to be paid by the master addressed to any person in the United States or elsewhere, provided it is done by the packet or other ship of a foreign country having no postal convention with the United States; and such letters or other mailable matter delivered to foreign packet ships or other vessels, except such specified letters relating to the ship or vessel or any part of the cargo thereof as may be directed to the owner or owners, consignee or consignees, as aforesaid, are hereby required to be delivered into the United States post office by the master or commander of all such packets or other vessels on their arriving, and to be taken from a United States post office when departing, and the postage paid thereon justly chargeable by this act; and for refusing or failing to do so or for conveying said letters or any letters intended to be conveyed in any ship or vessel of such foreign country over or across the Gulf of Mexico, on any portion thereof, the party offending shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay not exceeding one thousand dollars for each offense.

SEC. 278 Punishes the willful injury, defacement, or destruction of mail matter deposited in a letter box or other receptacle for mail matter, established by the authority of the Postmaster General.

SEC. 279. That any person employed in any department of the postal service who shall secrete, embezzle, or destroy any letter, packet, bag, or mail of letters intrusted to him, or which shall come into his possession, and which was intended to be conveyed by mail, or carried or delivered by any mail carrier, mail messenger, route agent, other carrier, or other person employed in any department of the postal service, or from the office or branch post office established by authority of the Postmaster General, and which shall contain any note, draft, check, warrant, revenue stamp, postage stamp, stamped envelope, postal card, money order, certificate of stock, or other pecuniary obligation or security of the Government, or of any State or city, or of any foreign State, or of any bank or banking house, bank post bill, bill of exchange, or notice of assignment of stock in the funds, any letter of attorney for receiving such stock or dividends thereon, stock in the funds for collecting the interest thereof; any letter of credit, note, bond, warrant, draft, bill, bill of exchange, or receipt for money or property, or any part thereof, or any other article of value, or writing representing the same; any person who shall steal or take any of the things aforesaid out of any letter, packet, bag, or mail of letters which shall have come into his possession, either in the regular course of his official duties, or in any other manner whatever, and provided the same shall not have been delivered to the party to whom it is directed, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, for every such offense, be imprisoned at hard labor not less than one year nor more than five years.

SEC. 280 That the fact that any letter, packet, bag, or mail of letters shall have been deposited in any post office or branch post office established by authority of the Postmaster General, or in any other authorized depository for mail matter, or in charge of any postmaster, assistant, clerk, carrier, agent, or messenger employed in any department of the postal service, shall be taken and held to be evidence that the same was "intended to be conveyed by mail" within the meaning of this statute.

SEC. 281 That any person who shall steal the mail, or steal or take from or out of any mail, or post office, branch post office, or other authorized depository for mail matter, or from any post office, branch post office, or other authorized depository for mail matter, any letter or packet, any person who shall take the mail or any letter or packet therefrom, or from any post office, branch post office, or other authorized depository for mail matter, with or without the consent of the person having custody thereof, and open, embezzle, or destroy, any such mail, letter, or packet which shall contain any note, bond, draft, check warrant, revenue stamp, postage stamp, stamped envelope, money order, certificate of stock, or other pecuniary obligation or security of the United States, or of any State, or of any foreign State, or any bank note, bank post bill, bill of exchange, or note of assignment of stock in the funds, or any letter of attorney for receiving stock or dividends, or any letter of credit, note, bond, warrant, draft, bill, promissory note, covenant, contract, or agreement whatsoever, or relating to the payment of the delivery of any article of value, or the performance of any act, matter, or thing; any receipt, release, acquittance, or discharge of or from any debt, covenant, or demand, or any part thereof; any copy of the record of any judgment or decree in any court of law or chancery, or any extract thereof, which shall be sealed; any power of attorney or other receipt, or any other article of value or writing representing the same, knowing any such article or thing to have been stolen, or to have been unlawfully taken from the mail, or out of any post office, branch post office, or other authorized depository for mail matter, or from any person having custody thereof, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment at hard labor not less than one nor more than five years.

SEC. 282 That any person who shall forcibly break into or attempt to break into any post office, or any building used in whole or in part as a post office, with intent to commit therein any felony or other depredation, shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not more than one thousand dollars, and be imprisoned at hard labor not more than five years, according to the circumstance and aggravation of the case, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 283. Punishes the making, altering, forging, counterfeiting, uttering, publishing, transmitting or executing any bond, bill, proposal, guaranty, security, will, bond, public record, affidavit or other writing, for the purpose of defrauding the United States

SEC. 284 Provides that offenses committed in any law to reenact or which shall hereafter be made to the United States, which offense is not punishable by any law of the United States, may be punished in a manner like the laws of the State where such place is

SEC. 285. That if any postmaster or other person authorized by the Postmaster General to receive the postage of letters, shall fraudulently demand or receive any rate of postage or gratuity or reward not or then allowed by this act, for the postage of letters or packets, on conviction thereof he shall forfeit, for every such offense, one hundred dollars.

SEC. 286 That if any person employed in any department of the post office or establishment of the United States shall, willfully and knowingly use or cause to be used in prepayment of postage any postage stamp or stamped envelope or stamped postal card issued, or which may hereafter be issued, by authority of any act of Congress or of the Postmaster General, which has already been once used for the purpose, or shall remove or attempt to remove the cancelling or defacing marks from any such postage stamp, stamped envelope or postal card, with intent to use or cause the use of the same a second time, or to sell or offer to sell the same, or shall remove from letters or other mail matter deposited to or received at a post office the stamps attached to it for same in payment of postage, with intent to use the same a second time for a like purpose, or to sell or offer to sell the same, every such offender shall, upon conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of felony, and shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years.

SEC. 287. That if any person not employed in any department of the post office or establishment of the United States shall commit any of the offenses described in the preceding section, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 288. That it any person not employed in any department of the post office or establishment of the United States shall commit any of the offenses described in the preceding section, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. And any person who shall counterfeit the mark of any person authorized to the franking privilege or willfully alter or use any counterfeit frank with the intent to avoid the payment of postage, shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not less than three months nor more than twelve months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 289 Authorizes the Postmaster General to employ a Special Agent or Agents to make researches for mail able matter transported in violation of law.

SEC. 290 That the Postmaster General may, upon evidence satisfactory to him that any person, firm or corporation is engaged in conducting any fraudulent lottery, gift enterprise, or scheme for the distribution of money, or of any real or personal property, by lot, chance, or drawing of any kind, or is conducting any other scheme or device for obtaining money through the mails by means of false or fraudulent pretenses, representations, or promises, forbid the payment, by any postmaster to any such person, firm or corporation of any postal money order drawn to the order or to favor of him or them, and may provide by regulation for the return to the remitters of the sums named in such money orders. And the Postmaster General may also, upon like evidence, instruct postmasters at post offices at which registered letters shall arrive, directed to any such person, firm or corporation, to return all such registered letters to the postmasters at the offices at which they were originally mailed, with the word "fraudulent" plainly written or stamped upon the outside of said letters; and all such letters so returned to such postmasters shall be by them returned to the writer thereof under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe. Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to authorize any postmaster or other person to open any letter not addressed to himself.

SEC. 291. That if any person, having devised or intended to devise any scheme or artifice to defraud, is to be effected by either opening or intending to open correspondence or communication with any other person, whether resident within or without the United States, by means of the post office establishment of the United States, or by inciting a cl other person to open communication with the person so devising or intending, shall, in and for executing such scheme or artifice, or attempting so to do, place any letter or packet in any post office of the United States, or take or receive any therefrom, such person, so misusing the post office establishment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished with a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, with or without such imprisonment as the court may direct, not exceeding eighteen calendar months. The indictment, information or complaint may severally charge offenses to the number of three in relation to the same scheme within any six calendar months; but the court thereupon shall give a single sentence, and shall proportion the punishment especially to the degree in which the abuse of the post office establishment enters as an instrument into such fraudulent scheme and device.

SEC. 292. That all letters, packets or other matter which may be seized or detained for violation of law shall be returned to the owner or sender of the same, or otherwise disposed of as the Postmaster General may direct.

SECS. 293 to 306 (inclusive). Refer to suits arising under postal laws.

SEC. 307. That no claim for a credit shall be allowed upon the trial of any suit for delinquency against a postmaster, contractor or other officer, agent or employee of the Post Office Department, unless the same shall have been presented to the auditor for said department and by him disallowed, in whole or in part, unless it shall be proved, to the satisfaction of the court, that the defendant is at the time of trial in possession of vouchers not before in his power to procure, and that he was prevented from exhibiting to the said auditor a claim for such credit by some unavoidable accident.

SEC. 311. That one-half of all pecuniary penalties and forfeitures incurred for the violation of any law relative to the postal service shall be for the use of the person who shall first commence prosecuting for the same, and the other for the use of the United States, except where other disposition thereof is specially provided.

SEC. 312. That in all cases where debts are due from defaulting or delinquent postmasters, contractors or other officers, agents or employees of the Post Office Department, a warrant may issue against all real and personal property and legal and equitable rights belonging to such officer, agent or employee, and his sureties, or either of them, in the following cases:

First. When such officer, agent, or employee, and his sureties, or either of them, is a non-resident of the district within which such officer, agent, or employee was appointed, or has departed from such district for the purpose of permanently residing out of the same, or of becoming a citizen of the United States, or of avoiding the service of civil process.

Second. When such officer, agent, or employee, and his sureties, or either of them, has concealed himself or is about to convey away his property, or any part thereof, or has removed or is about to remove the same or any part thereof from the district wherein it is situated, with intent to defraud the United States.

And when any such property has been removed, certified copies of the warrant may be sent to the marshal of the district in which the same has been removed, under which certified copies he may seize said property and convey it to some convenient point within the jurisdiction of the court from which the warrant originally issued. And alias warrants may be issued in such cases upon due application, and the validity of the warrant first issued shall continue until the return day thereof.

SEC. 313. That application for such warrant of attachment may be made by any district or assistant district attorney, or by any other person authorized by the Postmaster General, before the judge, or, in his absence, before the clerk of any court of the United States, held at the place of residence of the said defendant. And such application shall be made upon an affidavit of the applicant, or some other credible person, setting forth the existence of either of the grounds of attachment enumerated in the preceding section, and upon information of legal evidence of the debt.

SEC. 314. That upon any such application, and upon due order of any judge of the court, or in his absence without such order, the clerk shall issue a warrant for the attachment of all the property of any kind belonging to the person named in the affidavit, which warrant shall be executed with all possible dispatch by the marshal, who shall take the property attached. If property, real or personal, be attached, it shall be subject to all interlocutory or dual orders of the court.

SEC. 321. That at any time within twenty days before the return day of such warrant, the party whose property is attached may, on giving notice to the district attorney of his intention, give a plea in abatement, traversing the allegations of the affidavit, and denying the ownership of the property attached to be in the defendants, or either of them, in which case the court may upon application of either party, order an issue of fact trial by jury of the issues raised by the affidavit and plea, but the parties may, by consent, waive a trial by jury, in which case the court shall decide the issue formed. And any party claiming the ownership of the property attached, and a specific return thereof, shall be entitled to the remedy herein afforded, but no right to maintain replevin, or other action for damages, shall in the matter be implied hereby.

SEC. 322. That when the property attached shall be sold on any interlocutory order, and the money arising from such sale or revenue shall be invested in securities of the United States, under the direction of the court, and all accretions shall be held subject to the orders of the same.

SEC. 323. That immediately upon the execution of any such warrant of attachment, the marshal shall cause due publication thereof to be made, in the case of absconding debtors for two months, and of nonresidents for four months. The publication shall be made in some newspaper published in the district where the property is situate, and the details thereof shall be regulated by the order under which the warrant is issued.

SEC. 324 That after the first publication of such notice of attachment as required by law, every person indebted to, or having possession of any property belonging to, the said defendants, or either of them, and having knowledge of such notice, shall account and answer for the amount of such debt and the value of such property; and any disposal or attempt to dispose of any such property, to the injury of the United States, shall be illegal and void. And when the person indebted to, or having possession of the property of, such defendants, or either of them, shall be known to the district attorney or marshal, such officer shall serve that personal notice of the attachment is served upon such person; but the want of such notice shall not invalidate the attachment

SEC. 325. That upon application of the party whose property has been attached, the court, or any judge thereof, may discharge the warrant of attachment in the property of the applicant, provided such applicant shall execute to the United States a good and sufficient penal bond, in double the value of the property attached, to be approved by a judge of the court, and with condition for the return of said property, or in answer any judgment which may be rendered by the court in the premises.

SEC. 326 That nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit or abridge, in any manner such rights of the United States as have accrued or been allowed in any district under the former practice of or the adoption of State laws by, the United States courts

SEC. 327 Repeals a large number of acts and parts of acts, relating to and parts of resolutions, inconsistent with, or superseded by, this act.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper it closing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the correspondiog whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 112 or any lower number, will please remit at once.

N. B.—The wrappers of the MAIL being written some time before the issue of the paper, it often happens that the change of figure cannot be made on the paper sent immediately succeeding the receipt of a remittance. In such cases the change will be made on the second paper.

Enlargement of the Mail.

Our readers will perceive that the present number of THE UNITED STATES MAIL appears in a considerably enlarged form, and (as we think) decidedly improved in appearance. We have found that the growing importance of the postal service, involving constant improvements and changes, in regard to which it is our aim to keep the patrons of THE MAIL fully informed, called upon us for more space than the former size of our paper would afford. The increase in size has of course correspondingly increased the cost of publication, but we propose to make no increase in the subscription price, and will continue to furnish it at the same rate, One Dollar a Year—as formerly. But while this is the case, we wish to have it distinctly understood that we do not propose to publish the paper at a loss; and therefore can afford to send it to PROMPTLY PAYING SUBSCRIBERS ONLY. Many of our present subscribers are in arrears, and to them we desire to say: THE MAIL is amply worth the subscription price you have agreed to pay for it—it is a price you can well afford to pay—it is a just debt, voluntarily contracted—and nothing but heedlessness has prevented its payment. Therefore, before the excitement of the approaching Political Campaign fairly begins, and before the increasing burdens of official duties and business cares begin to be felt, take the time to pay your overdue subscription to THE MAIL—and there is no time like the present.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL,
DIV. OF POSTAGE STAMPS AND STAMPED ENVELOPES,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1, 1872.

CIRCULAR ENVELOPES AND NEWSPAPER WRAPPERS.

By recent act of Congress the postage on transient printed matter, and circulars, is one cent (1) cent for each two (2) ounces or fractional part thereof. Accordingly the denomination of the embossed postage stamp on transient newspaper circulars and on newspaper wrappers (now 2 cents) will be changed to one (1) cent. The new circular envelopes and newspaper wrappers will be sold at the following rates, viz:

No. 5, letter size envelopes, ungummed..... $11 50 per 1,000
No. 5, extra letter sized envelopes, ungummed..... 12 50 per 1,000
No 9, newspaper wrappers..... 11 25 per 1,000

No two (2) cent circulars or newspaper wrappers will, in future, be issued; but those now in the hands of postmasters can be used for inclosing outstanding (more than one rate (2 ounces)), and they MUST NOT, IN ANY EVENT, BE RETURNED TO THE DEPARTMENT. The two (2) cent stamps on the Postage Stamps outstanding among postmasters must also be retained by them.

Postmasters making exchanges for private individuals will do the same at par, and accredit such stamps or envelopes acquired in this way cannot be returned to the Department.

POSTAL CARDS.

Congress having authorized the issue of Postal Cards, they will be put into circulation at the earliest practicable moment. It is not expected, however, that able can be done inside of the next sixty (60) days.

Postmasters making orders, made with reasonable promptness, should be separate from all other orders, in which case they will receive due attention when the distribution is commenced.

Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

[OFFICIAL.]

Reduction in the Rates of Postage on Correspondence exchanged between the United States and Switzerland, via Bremen and Hamburg.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17, 1872.

An additional postal arrangement has been concluded between the United States and Switzerland, and will be carried into operation on the 1st of July, 1872. It provides for a regular exchange of correspondence, in closed mails, between the two countries, by means of the steams employed in transporting mails between New York and Bremen and Hamburg.

The rate of postage chargeable in the United States on correspondence for Switzerland, under this arrangement, are as follows, viz.:

On letters 8 cents per single rate of ½ ounce or under, being 2 cents less than the rate by the route via Belgium.

On newspapers, 3 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces, or fraction thereof; being one cent less than the rate by the route via Belgium.

On prints, patterns and samples, if not exceeding one ounce in weight, 2 cents, or the same as the rate via Belgium.

When exceeding one ounce, but not exceeding two ounces in weight, 4 cents; being the same as the rate via Belgium.

When exceeding two ounces, but not over four ounces, 8 cents, being 2 cents less than the rate chargable by the route via Belgium.

And for packets exceeding four ounces in weight, an additional rate of 6 cents for every additional four ounces or fraction of four ounces; being 2 cents less per rate than by the Belgium route.

The prepayment of postage on ordinary letters is optional, but on registered letters, newspapers, prints, patterns and samples, prepayment is obligatory.

Registered correspondence is subject, in addition to the postage chargeable thereon, to register fee of 8 cents, which amount, together with the postage, is in all cases required to be prepaid.

It, however, the postage on any correspondence, other than registered, should be insufficiently prepaid, it will nevertheless be forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage and a fine of 24 cents one or 5 cents, on delivery.

All correspondence which the senders may desire to have forwarded by the route via Ostend or Hamburg must be so marked, otherwise it will be forwarded by the route via Belgium, and charged with postage accordingly.

By order of the Postmaster General

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN Supt. of Foreign Mails.

Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries with which Postal Conventions have not been Concluded.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15, 1872.

Under the provisions of Section 183 of the New Postal Code, approved June 8, 1872, entitled "An Act to Revise, Consolidate and Amend the Statutes relating to the Post Office Department," the rates of United States postage to be levied and collected hereafter, on mail matter sent to or received from foreign countries, with which different rates have not been established by postal convention or other arrangement, when forwarded by vessels regularly employed in transporting the mails, are as follows, viz:

Letters—10 cents per each single rate of ½ oz. or under.

Newspapers—2 cents each.

Pamphlets, Periodicals, Books and other printed matter—2 cents per each 2 ounces or fraction thereof.

Postmasters will levy and collect postage accordingly on and after this date.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent of Foreign Mails.

See Sections 183 and 106 of the Postal Code.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO POSTMASTERS.

We send of this issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT a large number of specimen copies addressed to Postmasters throughout the country, and we ask each one of them whom it reaches, to careful read and examine it, confident that his doing so will result in his making up his mind (as our present subscribers have all long since done) that he

"Can't Afford to be without The Mail."

If he should be in any doubt upon this point, however, it will be dispelled by the consideration of the fact that THE UNITED STATES MAIL publishes printed in the country.

It should be remembered, however, that this Table is SUBJECT TO CHANGES at any time, and is corrected MONTHLY, in accordance with instructions received from the Post Office Department by the Editor; and therefore every Postmaster should make it his business to be regularly supplied each month with a copy of THE UNITED STATES MAIL, in compliance with the following official recommendation of the Postmaster General:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, 1869.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT, a monthly postal journal, published at No. 79 Nassau st., New York, by J. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent of this Department, is recommended to Postmasters and the public as a useful publication, giving valuable information respecting postal operations, the laws and regulations of the Post Office Department, rates of foreign and domestic postage, lists of the newly-established and discontinued post offices, and such new orders and regulations as are from time to time promulgated by the Department, and furnished for publication.

The table of rates of postage to foreign countries, corrected monthly for publication in this journal, furnishes correct information to Postmasters and the public of the rates of postage chargeable on correspondence of all kinds addressed to or received from foreign countries, which rates are necessarily subject to frequent changes.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL

was established in 1860, under the official sanction and patronage of the Post Office Department, and is designed to convey to Post masters and the public full, accurate, and reliable information on Postal affairs, including the Official Doings of the Department, its latest Decisions and Instructions, the new Laws of Congress, complete Domestic and Foreign Postage Tables, monthly lists of New Post Offices established, and the Routes by which they are to be supplied, Days of Departure of Foreign Steamers, and a convenient summary under appropriate heads of all the current Postal Laws and Regulations now in force, together with miscellaneous reading of special interest to persons employed in the Post Offices or other branches of the Mail service.

In no other way can many of the current changes in the Laws, Decisions, &c., be communicated to Postmasters and others.

A principal feature of each number is the column of

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS,

in which replies are given to all questions which may be addressed by subscribers to the Editor concerning Postal Laws, Decisions, Regulations, and Duties. There is not a Postmaster into whose hands this paper may come, who has not felt himself in doubt—even after a careful reading of the Regulations of the Department—on some point of official duty—tha proper rates to be charged on certain kinds of mail matter, the correct method of registering letters, the keeping of the Quarterly and General Accounts, the collection of newspaper postage from regular subscribers, tha Franking Privilege and who are entitled to it —on these and a hundred other matters connected with Postal Laws, Regulations, and customs, every Postmaster is liable to find himself without the necessary information to enable him to perform properly his duty to the Department and to the public. To such THE UNITED STATES MAIL offers a ready medium by which all perplexity on such subjects may be solved without difficulty. Each subscriber has only to address a letter to the editor, stating the circumstances of the case concerning which he is in doubt, and the matter will be decided for him in the next number of THE MAIL, under the head of "ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS." The answers are prepared with great care, may always be relied on for correctness, and are in important cases, always submitted to and approved by the First Assistant Postmaster General, before publication.

NO POSTMASTER WHO INTENDS AND DESIRES TO PERFORM HIS OFFICIAL DUTIES PROPERLY, (AND AT THE SAME TIME CONSULT HIS OWN COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE), WILL FAIL TO SUBSCRIBE FOR "THE UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Retaining Letters before Advertising, &c.—M. C. L., K——, Ind.—1. At offices where the salary amounts to five hundred dollars, letters are to be advertised once a week; no allowance is now made to pay for advertising, except at first-class offices; and if no paper will advertise free, a manuscript list must be posted up in the office. 2. In filling out the blank notices to postmasters that newspapers are not taken from the office, the cause of the refusal should be stated, whether refused, dead or moved; in the last case it would be better to state to what place moved, if known. 3. Small religious papers sent in packages to one address at the one cent rate of postage should be delivered to the party addressed, and not the paper to individual subscribers.

Held for Postage.—L. W., G——, Miss.—Letters prepaid one full rate of 3 cts. should be forwarded, charged with the amount due; if not so prepaid, they should be held for postage. Secs. 151 and 193, Code of 1872.

County Papers.—R. H. H., P—— B—— N. Y.—A subscriber may receive county papers free of postage, at an office out of this county, if it is the office at which he receives his mail matter regularly. Sec. 228, Reg. 1866.

Paying Money Orders.—H. T. L., R——, Ind.—A postmaster should be satisfied he pays a money order to the right person. If an order, signed by the principal, is presented by an employee of the principal, it is for the postmaster to satisfy himself that he is correct in paying the order. There should be no doubt about it.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF RULINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY COMPILED FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE DEPARTMENT FOR JUNE, 1872.

1. Correspondence addressed to members of Congress is entitled to free transmission by mail, subject to the restrictions in P. L. & Reg. Sec. 324.

2. Exchanges can only be sent from one publisher to another, and should be addressed and delivered to the office of publication. They cannot be forwarded to any other place without prepayment of postage at the usual rates.

3. A presentation of his commission by a newly appointed Postmaster, is sufficient authority to the Incumbent to deliver the office to him.

4. Circulars sent in bulk by mail to one address are subject to postage at the rate of 2 cents for each four ounces, or fraction thereof, to be prepaid by postage stamps affixed.

5. There is nothing in the Postal Laws or Regulations forbidding a Postmaster to sell goods in the building in which the office is kept, provided he complies with the regulations, sections 24, 25 and 26.

6. If quarterly postage is paid at any other time than the beginning of a quarter, viz: On the first day of January, April, July and October, it is paid for the end of the next quarter.

7. Photographic cards sent by mail should be enclosed in unsealed wrappers, or wrappers opened at one or both ends so that they can be examined without destroying the cover or envelope in which they are subject.

8. Letters to persons not found at the office addressed may be forwarded to any other office without additional postage; but letters, when finally delivered according to their address cannot be remailed without prepayment of postage at letter rates by postage stamps affixed.

9. Articles of clothing are subject to letter postage by mail, except to non-commissioned officers and soldiers in the U. S. military service, as provided in Postal Laws, section 72.

10. No postal cards, except those issued by this Department, can be recognized or admitted into the mails as such. The Postmaster General will, at an early day, cause suitable postal cards to be issued under the law, for the accommodation of the public.

11. Any communication wholly or partly in writing, sent by mail, is subject to letter postage whether sealed or unsealed except book manuscript and corrected proofs passing between author and publisher. Manuscript sent by mail for publication in newspapers, magazines, or periodicals, is subject to letter postage.

Regulations under the New Code

The Postmaster General has appointed Mr. J. M. McGREW, Chief Clerk of the Auditor's office for the P. O. Department, and Mr. WM. M. INGLAND, Chief Clerk of the Finance office of the Department, a committee to prepare Regulations under the New Postal Code, and prepare them for publication. Both these gentlemen are admirably qualified, by long practical experience in postal affairs, for the duty to which they have been assigned, and we confidently anticipate that the result of their labors will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Postmasters will be furnished with copies as soon as they can be published, which will probably be within a few months.

OBITUARY.—We regret to announce the death on the afternoon of the 1st inst., of Mr. A. C. Cameron, one of the corresponding clerks in the Appointment Office, P. O. Dept., and editor of the P. O. Gazette. Mr. Cameron was a thorough and efficient officer. Every one who has met him in business intercourse will join with us in the regret we have expressed.

THE space occupied by the new Postal Law and Regulations has compelled us to omit a very large amount of original matter prepared for this issue, consisting of Official Decisions, Mail Routes, Answers to Correspondents, etc.

NOW IS THE TIME to subscribe for the MAIL. Send in your subscription early, so as to insure having your names entered in the subscription book in time to receive the August number.

To Advertisers.

It will be seen that a larger number than usual of advertisers have availed themselves of the advantages of the MAIL as an advertising medium, to which fact we call the attention of other advertisers, or those who may intend advertising. Our paper circulates largely among postmasters, at offices where attention is given to the proper performance of official duties, and among the business men of the larger cities. On account of the valuable official information it contains (PUBLISHING THE ONLY FULL AND CORRECT TABLE OF FOREIGN POSTAGES PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES) is preserved for reference and kept on file by its readers, instead of being cast aside and destroyed as soon as read. The advantages which this fact offers to advertisers will be at once appreciated.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Railway Mail Service.

For the convenience of those who may find it necessary to dispatch letters by the 8 A. M. and 8 P. M. trains from New York to Boston after the closing of mails for those trains at the New York Post Office, a letter box is placed in the baggage room of the New York and New Haven Rail road depot at Twenty-seventh street, from which letters are collected up to five minutes previous to the starting of each of the trains mentioned.

Letters can also be mailed at any car on which mail matter is distributed, but this accommodation is intended only to correspondence too late for the regular closing of mails.

The following statements of times of arrival and departure of trains on which mail matter is distributed, are mainly for the guidance of Railway Post Office Clerks and Route Agents, and it is proposed to continue them each month:

[OFFICIAL.]

Partial Regulations under the New Postal Code, 1872.

The following instructions, based on an act approved June 8, 1872, entitled "An act to revise, consolidate and amend the statutes relating to the Post Office Department," commonly known as the postal code, are issued for the guidance of postmasters till the code can be published with full regulations

The regulations of 1866 when not inconsistent with or superseded by these instructions, are to be observed, as heretofore, until otherwise ordered.

1. The division of mailable matter into three classes remains as heretofore First, letters; second, regular printed matter; third, miscellaneous matter.—(Code, § 130.)

First Class.

2. This class embraces all correspondence, wholly or partly in writing, except book manuscripts and corrected proof-sheets passing between authors and publishers.—(Code, § 131.)

3. Letters by mail from one post office to another, for each half ounce or fraction thereof, prepaid by postage stamps, 3 cents.—(Code, § 156.)

4. Drop or local letters at letter-carrier offices, for each half ounce or fraction thereof, prepaid by postage stamps, 2 cents. Drop or local letters, at other than letter carrier offices, for each one half ounce or fraction thereof, prepaid by postage stamps, 1 cent.—(Code, § 157.)

Postal cards, with postage stamps impressed upon them, 1 cent.

NOTE.—By section 170 of the new postal code, the Postmaster General is authorized and directed to furnish such items to the public "postal cards," with postage stamps impressed upon them, to be transmitted through the mails at one cents each, for messages, orders, notices and other short communications; and until such cards are issued by the Department, which will be done in due time, the law cannot go into operation. When they are issued, postage on postal cards other than such as may be furnished by the Depa tment, with stamps impressed upon them.—(Code, § 170.)

5. Letter-postage shall be charged on mail matter, not lawfully franked or entitled to pass free, when oil so wrapped or secured as to permit of its examination without destroying the wrapper.—(Code, § 158.)

6. Letter postage shall be charged on all mail matter which is wholly or partly in writing, except book manuscripts and corrected proofs passing between authors and publishers, and local or drop letters; on all printed matter which is so marked as to convey any other or further information than is conveyed by the original print, except the correction of mere typographical errors; on all matter which is set in violation of law or the regulations of the Department respecting inclosures; and on all matter to which no specific rate of postage is assigned.—(Code, § 158.)

7. Manuscripts for publication in newspapers, magazines or periodicals, are subject to letter-postage.—(Code, § 160.)

8. Letter postage shall be charged on mail matter subject to the third letter rates, in which is inclosed or concealed any letter, memorandum or other thing, or upon which is any writing or memorandum; except—

1. That publishers of newspapers and periodicals may print or write, upon their publications sent to regular subscribers, the address of the subscriber, and the date when the subscription expires, and may inclose therein bills and receipts for subscription thereto, without subjecting such publications to extra postage. (Code, § 141.)

2. No extra postage shall be charged for a card printed or impressed upon an envelope or wrapper.—Code, §§ 142, 159.)

9. All domestic letters, deposited in any post office for mailing, on which the postage is wholly unpaid or paid less than one full rate, as required by law, except letters lawfully free, and duly certified letters of soldiers, sailors and marines in the service of the United States shall be sent by the postmaster in the road letter office to Washington: Provided, That in large cities and adjacent districts of dense population, having two or more post offices within a distance of three miles of each other, any letter mailed at one of such offices, and addressed to a locality within the delivery of another of such offices which shall have been inadvertently prepaid at the drop or local letter-rate of postage only, may be forwarded to its destination through the proper office, charged with the amount of the deficiency postage, to be collected on delivery.—(Code, § 145.)

10. Letters prepaid one full rate shall be forwarded, charged with the amount due, to be collected on delivery.—(Code, § 15.)

11. L tters which by unpaid shall be sent to the dead letter office; but when, by inadvertence, they reach their destination, double the unpaid rates should be collected on delivery.—(Code, §§ 152, 153.)

12. Prepaid and free letters shall be forwarded from one post office to another at the request of the party addressed, without additional charge for postage; but letters having been delivered according to their address, requiring postage at prepaid rates, when returned to the office for remailing.—(Code, § 199.)

13. All letters published as non-delivered shall be charged with one cent in addition to the regular postage, to be accounted for as part of the postal revenue. —(Code, § 193.)

14. The compensation for publishing the list of non-delivered letters shall in no case exceed one cent for each letter so published.—(Code, § 1.R.)

15. Every postmaster shall post, in a conspicuous place in his office, a copy of each list of non delivered letters immediately after its publication.—(Code, § 191.)

16. When the writer of any letter on which the postage is prepaid shall indorse upon the outside the roof his name and address, such letter shall not be advertised, but, after remaining uncalled for at the office to which it is directed thirty days or the time the writer may direct, shall be returned to him without additional charge for postage, and, if not then delivered, shall be treated as a dead letter.—(Code, § 194.)

Second Class

17 This class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods from a known office of publication, without addition by writing, mark, or sign.—(Code, § 132.)

18 The following are the quarterly rates of postage when paid quarterly or yearly in advance, on newspapers and periodicals issued from once a week or more frequently, and sent to actual subscribers from a known office of publication:

20. On newspapers and other periodicals sent from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, the postage shall be paid before delivery, for not less than one quarter, nor more than one year; which payment may be made either at the office of delivery or that of mailing, commencing at any time; and the postmaster shall account for said postage in the quarter in which it is received.—(Code, § 161.)

21 Regular dealers in newspapers and periodicals may receive by mail such quantities of either, as they may require at the above rates pre-paid, and may supply scribers to such publications, and may transmit the same to other dealers or regular subscribers: the postage at aggregate rates to be paid at the office of mailing or delivery.—(Code, § 161.)

22. The rate of postage on newspapers, excepting weeklies, periodicals not exceeding two ounces in weight, and circulars, when the same are deposited in a letter carrier office for delivery by the office or its carriers, shall be uniform at one cent each; but periodicals weighing more than two ounces shall be subject to a postage of two cents each, and these rates shall be prepaid by stamps.—(Code, § 90.)

23. Weekly newspapers, one copy to each actual subscriber within the county where the same is printed and published, shall be allowed to pass free in the mails; but letter-carriers shall not be required to distribute such papers unless postage is paid upon them at the usual rates.—(Code, § 184.)

Third Class.

24. This class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, magazines, bound volumes of newspapers, and corrected proof-sheets, book manuscripts, proof sheets, corrected proof sheets, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns samples of merchandise not exceeding twelve ounces in weight, sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes and wrappers, cards, plain and ornamental paper, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and other matter which may be declared mailable by law and all other articles not above the weight prescribed by law, which do not, from their form or nature, liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise injure the contents of the mail-bag, or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. All liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials and obscene books shall be excluded from the mails. All matter of the third class, excepting books and other printed matter, book manuscripts, proof sheets and corrected proof sheets, shall not exceed twelve ounces in weight, and all matter of the third class shall be subject to examination and to rates of postage as hereinafter provided. Samples of metals, ores and mineralogical specimens shall not exceed twelve ounces in weight, and shall be subject to examination and to rates of postage as hereinafter provided.—(Code, § 133.)

25. On mailable matter of the third class, except as herein stated, postage shall be charged at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof Double these rates shall be charged for books, samples of metals, ores, minerals and merchandise prepaid by postage-stamps.—(Code, § 163.)

26 Packages of woolen, cotton, or linen clothing, not exceeding two pounds in weight, may be sent through the mail to any non commissioned officer or private in the Army of the United States, if prepaid, at the rate of one cent for each one ounce or fraction thereof, subject to such regulation as the Postmaster General may prescribe.—(Code, § 164.)

27 No package weighing more than four pounds shall be received for conveyance by mail, except books published or circulated by order of Congress.—(Code, § 134.)

28. This embraces—

First. All mail-matter sent to the President or Vice-President.

Second. Official communications addressed to chiefs heads of bureaus, chief clerk, or franking officer of either of the Executive Departments.

Third. Letters and printed matter sent to Senators, Representatives, or Delegates in Congress, the Secretary of the Senate, or the Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Fourth. Petitions to Congress.

Fifth. Copyright matter to the Librarian of Congress, if marked on the package "copyright matter."

Sixth. All publications sent or received by the Smithsonian Institution, marked on each package "Smithsonian Exchange."

Seventh. Newspapers, periodicals and magazines reciprocally interchanged between publishers, and not exceeding sixteen ounces in weight; to be confined to a single copy of each publication.

Eighth. Weekly newspapers, one copy to each actual subscriber within the county where the same is printed and published; but carriers shall not be required to distribute such papers unless postage is paid upon them at the usual rates

Ninth. Notices to publishers of the refusal or neglect of subscribers to take newspapers, magazines or other periodicals from the post office; to be sent under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe.

Tenth. Dead-letters returned to the writers thereof

Eleventh. Medals, certificates of thanks, or other testimonials, which have been, or may be, awarded, by the legislature of the several States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof; to be sent by the Adjutant Generals of said States and Territories, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe.—(Code, § 184.)

29 All mail matter to and from Mary Lincoln, widow of the late President Abraham Lincoln, shall be conveyed free during her natural life.—(Code, § 185.)

30. Letters upon the official business of the Post Office Department which requires registering shall be registered free of charge, and pass through the mails free of charge.—(Code, § 187.)

31. All postmasters are hereby authorized to register, in the manner prescribed by law, but without payment of any registration fee all letters containing fractional or other currency of the United States, which shall be by them sent by mail to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption; and it shall be the duty of the postmaster at the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, to register, in like manner, without charge, all letters containing new currency furnished for currency redeemed, which shall be received by him from the said Treasurer, in sealed packages, marked with the word "register" over the official signature of the said Treasurer.—(Code, § 190.)

Under this section it is the duty of postmasters to register, without fee, all letters containing fractional or other currency of the United States sent to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption, and delivered to them for mailing.

In every such case they will be governed by the following regulations:

First. They will require the contents of every such letter or package to be exhibited to them, with a descriptive list of the contents giving an accurate and detailed description of the money to be remitted. In the case of fractional currency the number and denomination of pieces will be sufficient; but of currency of denomination of one dollar and upward, the latter, number or series, and date of each note, as well as the denomination, must be given.

Second. This list must be carefully examined and compared with the money to be remitted, and when found to be correct will be filed in the office, to be subject at all times to the inspection of proper agents of the departments.

Third. The money will then be inclosed and the package sealed in presence of the postmaster, who will then give the usual registered-letter receipt therefor.

Fourth. The letter or package will then be disposed of in same manner as is provided for other registered letters; but for the sake of further security the postmaster must be ready to prove, beyond question in every case, by a disinterested witness, that such letter or package was duly mailed in the mode prescribed for registered letters; otherwise, should the letter or package be lost, he will be held responsible therefor.

The Branding Privilege.

32. The following persons are entitled to frank:

First. The President, by himself or his private secretary, to cover all mail matter.

Second. The Vice-President, to cover all mail matter.

Third. The chiefs of the several Executive Departments

Fourth. Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress, and the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives, to cover their congressional documents, all printed matter issued by authority of Congress, and all speeches, proceedings and debates in Congress.

Fifth. Such principal officers of the Executive Departments, being heads of Bureaus or chief clerks, as the Postmaster General may by regulation prescribe, to cover official communications only. For such official correspondence the franking privilege is allowed to the following officers: The First and Second Comptrollers of the Treasury; the Solicitor of the Treasury; the Auditors of the Treasury; the Treasurer of the United States; the Register of the Treasury; the Assistant Secretary of State; the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury; the Assistant Secretary of the War Department; the Assistant Secretary of the Navy; the Assistant Secretary of the Interior; the Commissioner of the General Land Office; the Commissioner of Pensions; the Commissioner of Patents; the Commissioner of Indian Affairs; the Commissioner of Pensions; the Assistant Postmasters General; the Superintendent of the Foreign Mails; the Superintendent of Money Order Office; the Adjutant General of the Army; the Quartermaster General; the Inspector General; the Commissary General of Subsistence; the Commissioner of Immigration; the Commissioner of Public Buildings; the Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau; the Solicitor and Naval Judge Advocate General; the Solicitor of the War Department; the Paymaster General; the Chief Engineer; the Surgeon General; the Colonel of Ordnance; the Chiefs of Bureaus of the Navy Department; the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent of the Coast Survey; the Superintendent of the Census; the Commissioner of Agriculture; the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner of the Internal Revenue; the Provost Marshal General; the chief clerks of the Executive Departments; the Congressional Printer; the Commissioner of Education; the Supervising Architect of the Treasury.

Seventh. Assessors and collectors and their assistants and deputies, for the interchange of official communications only.

NOTE.—The refers to the officers of the internal revenue only.

And no person entitled by law to the franking privilege shall exercise said privilege otherwise than by his written autograph signature on the matter franked; and all mail matter not thus franked shall be charged with the legal rate of postage thereon.—(Code, § 180.)

33. That the franking privilege of Senators, Representatives and Delegates in Congress, and of the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House, shall commence with the term for which they are elected and expire with the first Monday of December following such term.—(Code, § 181.)

Postmasters will carefully observe the foregoing instructions. JOHN A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster General.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

The Messrs. Harper are doing an educational work so important that we can only think of the absence of their periodicals as an irreparable national loss. Such a periodical as HARPER'S WEEKLY is a public benefaction.
—The Methodist.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

There is no monthly Magazine an intelligent reading family can less afford to be without. Many Magazines are accomplished. Harper's is edited. There is not a Magazine that is printed which shows more intelligent pains expended on its articles and mechanical execution. There is not a cheaper Magazine published. There is not, confessedly a more popular Magazine in the world.—New England Homestead.

HARPER'S WEEKLY
JOURNAL OF CIVILIZATION.

The best publication of its class in America, and so far ahead of all other weekly journals as not to permit of any comparison between it and any of their number. Its columns contain the finest collections of reading-matter and pictures printed. * * * Its illustrations are numerous and beautiful, being furnished by the chief artists of the country.—Boston Traveller.

HARPER'S BAZAR

It is really the only illustrated chronicler of fashion in the country. Its supplements alone are worth the subscription price of the paper. While fully maintaining its position as a mirror of fashion, it also contains stories, poems, brilliant essays, besides general and personal gossip.—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

UNITED STATES MAIL

AND

POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 11. NEW YORK, AUGUST, 1872. WHOLE NO. 143.

EXTRAORDINARY INDUCEMENTS FOR POSTMASTERS OR THEIR SELECTED AGENTS.

TO ENGAGE IN A PLEASANT AND PROFITABLE OCCUPATION.

Having arranged a POSTAL TRADE LIST, making it AN OBJECT for Postmasters to lend their influence to the continued circulation of the World-Wide Popular Cheap Publications

OF

BEADLE & ADAMS,

OF NEW YORK,

the publishers herewith give a Catalogue in brief of these books, now literally a household word in all sections of the country. Having for their motto "A Dollar Book for a Dime," they have literally placed and, availing themselves of the co-operation of Postmasters, they have circulated more than forty million books among the people.

☞ We supply Postmasters, or their authorized agents, with these books at Trade Rates, viz: In quantities of twenty or more, 6½ cents each when sent by express, or 7½ cents each where we remit the packages, postage paid. When less than twenty are ordered we remit, postage paid, at the rate of thirteen for one dollar.

We also supply all necessary posters, catalogues, &c., free.

All that is necessary is for the Postmaster to exhibit a list of the books and ask his visitors and neighbors to examine this list and select their books. As often as once a week he can thus obtain orders enough to make up a package. Some idea of the may be formed from the list published below. All ages and tastes will find in the several series something to their tastes and wants. Each volume is a complete work—a perfect book, neatly printed and well bound in paper covers.

REMARKABLE VARIETY AND INTEREST OF THE VOLUMES

Popular School Books, Hand Books, Song Books and Novels.

BEADLE & ADAMS, Publishers,
98 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Miscellaneous Matter.—E. F., P——, N. Y.—You will find mailable matter defined in sections 131, 132 and 133 of the new Code published in this issue of the MAIL. Section 133 is specially devoted to miscellaneous matter. On our third page will also be found a definition.

Club Newspapers.—B. H. L., O——, N. Y.—No part of the newspapers sent in a club, according to Section 211, Reg. 1866, can be forwarded to another office, except on prepayment of postage at transient rates.

Weekly Sabbath-School Papers.—E. B. C., N—— B——, Pa.—Sabbath-school papers published weekly are subject to the regular quarterly rates of postage for each copy. That is, a package of four oz. or more cannot be sent to one address at the one cent rate; this privilege is restricted to small newspapers published less frequently than once a week. Sec. 160, Code 1872.

Circulars Printed on Cloth.—N. T. A., G——, N. Y.—1. Bona fide handbills or circulars, printed on cloth, would be subject to the same postage as if printed on paper. [Query: Who is so extravagant as to use cloth for such a purpose?] 2. Additions by writing, or printing with a pen, would subject them to letter postage. Sec. 159, Code 1872.

Medicines as Mailable Matter.—J. B., M——, N. Y.—Medicine is mailable matter of the third class, if not "from its form or nature liable to destroy, deface or otherwise injure the contents of the mail bags or the person of any one engaged in the postal service." It must not be liquid, or poison, or contained in glass, or explosive. In other words, it must be harmless in every way to every person or thing, except to the person who intends to use it. On these terms medicine can be sent at the rate of two cents for two ounces. Secs. 133 and 163, Code of 1872.

Notifying Publishers.—E. B., F——, Vt.—1. Notices to publishers should be sent in accordance with section 302 Regulations of 1866; as section 28 of the Partial Regulations under the New Code makes no change in the instructions given there. 2. Newspapers and circulars cannot be forwarded except on the prepayment of postage at transient rates. 3. It such matter is inadvertently forwarded without prepayment double postage should be collected at the office of delivery. Sec. 152, Code of 1872.

Class of Office.—H. J. M, M——, O.—Offices, the salaries of which are $150, belong to the fifth class.

Separating Offices.—L. P. B., W——, O.—At offices of the third, fourth or fifth class, the Postmaster General may make allowances for clerk hire. Sec. 84, Code 1872. Apply to the Postmaster General.

Franking.—S. E. V. B., C——, Pa.—We refer you to sections 180 to 186, inclusive, of the new code for information on franking.

County Paper.—P. M. S., Mt. P——, Pa.—Weekly papers may be sent free to subscribers living in the county of publication, but not to subscribers living in an adjoining county. Sec. 23 new Postal Reg.

Basis of Salaries.—B. J. D., B—— V——.—We refer you to section 83 of the new code. The section is too long for us to reprint here.

Post Office Blanks.—G. M. E., D——, Ill.—The blank agent at Washington, D. C., furnishes all the usual blanks required by postmasters. Blanks for the weekly and monthly arrivals and departures of the mails are furnished by the contract office.

Postmaster Administering Oath.—W. W. M., P—— C——, Utah.—A postmaster's commission is not considered the kind of commission referred to in section 53 of the laws of 1860, and section 15 of the new code.

Route Agencies.—H. S., R——, Ill.—Concerning route agencies, mail agencies, etc., we are not prepared to give local information. You had better write to the Assistant Superintendent of Postal Railway Service for your district.

Insufficiently Prepaid Letters.—J. B., M——, N. Y.—Letters prepaid one full rate should be forwarded charged with the amount due. Sec. 151, Code 1872.

Readjusted Salary.—M. T, R——, Mich.—The salary of any particular office is one of the local subjects which it is impossible for us to answer, as it is wholly with the Postmaster General. We may, however, observe that we judge from our correspondence that a reduction in salaries is quite common.

Wrapping Letters.—B. G. L., P——, M——, Conn.—Officers supplied wholly or in part by railway post offices are governed in respect to wrapping by special instructions from the Superintendent of the railway mail service. (Sec. 88, Reg. 1866.) Railway postal clerks have the right to take off wrappers, and in the cases you refer to it was doubtless done by them.

Signing Return Registered Letter Bill, etc.—1. W. H., S——, O.—The return registered letter bill should be signed by the receiving postmaster. It is the receipt he gives to the mailing postmaster for the letter. 2. Domestic mail matter may be registered on payment of postage, at the rate of three cents for each half ounce or portion thereof, and a registration fee of 15 cents for the matter without regard to its weight.

Compensation for Registering Letters.—J. S., S——, N. Y.—There is no extra compensation for registering letters. It is in the course of a postmaster's regular business. 2. Postmasters are required to report quarterly the number of registered letters mailed, stating separately the number of domestic and foreign. Sec. 7, Reg'n Reg. 1868. 3. You will find a great deal of useful general information in the MAIL, but to embrace everything special you require would take too much space. However, it is our intention in the last number of each quarter to give some useful hints in making up quarterly returns.

Postage.—J. P. G., M——, N. Y.—There has been a change in the postage on circulars and newspapers to one cent for two ounces, or fraction thereof.... J. H. B., L——, Pa.—Mail matter arriving at a post office unpaid should be charged double the prepaid rates. Sec. 152, Code of 1872.... L. W., M——, Ill.—We cannot answer questions of dispute on the postage on foreign letters without we have the envelopes to examine the postmarks and foreign and domestic charges.

Mail Messenger Service.—W. J. P., L——, O.—Mail messengers are allowed only at offices more than a quarter of a mile from a railroad station or boat landing. Permission must be obtained from the contract office to employ them. Sec. 471, Reg 1866.

POSTMASTERS who want to conduct their offices properly should take the UNITED STATES MAIL.

Postmasters by Election.

The following remarks on this subject are taken from an article in the New York Nation. While we agree in the main with the conclusions of the writer, one of his statements will perhaps be read with a little bewilderment by postmasters, who are informed by him that the office is a "lucrative" one:

It is curious to observe how our political ideas run in a circle, and how we dodge from one to another of a series of expedients; when one fails, going back complacently to one that failed before, as if it were some new and admirable discovery. It is because we have lost the practice of looking below the surface, and have reduced our notions of political science to a few commonplaces in the way of theory, and a few habits in the way of administration. Several years ago it was decided that pure Democracy required us to give the election of all possible officials to "the people," and that this would secure us a wise, honest, and genuinely popular administration. It was seen, however, in time that the result was something neither wise, honest, nor popular, and it has seemed well nigh agreed by all the strong men that one of the first things to be aimed at now was to reduce very much the number of persons to be chosen by popular election. This one principle at least seemed fully established by the experience of the past twenty-five years.

Now comes civil-service reform. We find in appointed as well as in elected officials a lack of capacity and honesty, and we set to work to remedy this, the most crying evil of our politics. But all at once, in the midst of an earnest and hopeful effort, we are surprised by the reappearance of this old principle, tried and discarded in regard to one set of functionaries, and now put forward as a new idea which will put an end to all trouble in regard to another set. We have just come to the conclusion that popular election is a bad way to choose certain officers, and a fatal way to choose certain others; that it is much safer and better to leave their selection to a magistrate whom we can trust, and who is distinctly responsible. If this is so, what reason is there to think that popular election would work any better for postmasters than it does now for judges and commissioners?

We know very well what popular election means. It means that a set of politicians, a "ring," or a "regency," or, in the best case, a "committee" pick out one of their own number whose turn it is, and present his name for the party to vote at the polls. When a long list of names is to be voted, this is inevitably and universally the case with all but one or two. With regard to the leading names—the Governor, the Mayor, the Member of Congress—it is somewhat different; that is, with regard to prominent and responsible places, there is a certain amount of popular sentiment to be considered, a certain feeling of the necessity of presenting honorable names, and a certain, if small, power of control at the polls. But with regard to the great majority of names voted, they are as truly appointed as if the Governor selected them and sent them in to the council or the legislature for confirmation. The only difference is that they are appointed by irresponsible, instead of responsible persons. Now the question is whether the postmaster would come under the first head or the second. His is a purely administrative office, calling merely for good business abilities and habits, not at all for political qualities; why should it be filled by a person selected on political grounds any more than a station-master or express agent? In the next place, the office is a lucrative one, and would inevitably be the subject of even greater scheming and intriguing than is the case now. Anything that should add to the present scramble in politics would be a calamity.

We do not think, therefore, that it would be a movement in the direction of civil-service reform to have postmasters elected by the people. We fear that it would result in an even worse state of things than at present, because the scramble for the office would be in irregular and irresponsible caucus, instead of before an upright and responsible secretary; and because it would be throwing an attractive and lucrative post into the most open competition of common politicians. We choose too many persons now by popular election. Nobody—but the wire-pullers themselves—knows even the names upon the ticket that he votes. The vote is simply the expression of a desire that a certain party may be in power, and of confidence (if it goes so far as this) in the leaders of the party, who have selected the list of names which he puts into the box. This is all very well, in the highly organized and intense life of the present day, we cannot expect more of the mass of voters than just this. But it shows that the way to turn to account this expression of will and confidence is to place before the community only a very few names, and those of well-known persons, as candidates for important and responsible positions. Then voting would mean something; and one who had received this mark of confidence could be left very well to make subordinate appointments on his individual judgment.

We do not say that the proposed change would work harm in the rural districts where towns are small, and where there is constantly operative the restraints of public opinion, each man knowing every other man, and knowing pretty much all about him. But until there is general acknowledgment of a truth which certainly is not now generally acknowledged; until we all agree that large towns must be governed in a way entirely different from that which we invented in the days when the country was a country of villages; until we admit that the method of government proper for New York when New York was half the size of Harlem is not the proper method for the Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston, New Orleans, Baltimore, San Francisco, St. Louis, and Brooklyn of to-day, each of them with its numerous rings—until we admit this, and act upon the knowledge, it will not be time to give the people any more elective offices to fill. It is already the case in small towns that the postmaster is practically elected by the people among whom he lives. He must, as a rule, be of the dominant party, though that is not necessary, and the rule has frequent exceptions, but the men who unite to recommend him, and who may be said to re-elect him, are of all parties. They choose him because they know him to be capable, honest, and obliging, because ever since he was a boy they have had opportunity for examining into his character and discovering whether he is a person into whose hands they are willing to confide interests so important to them. And we dare say the records of the Department would show that the class of postmasters thus chosen to manage small post-offices, where the emolument is so slight as to be pretty well out of the scramble for political power, have proved themselves as faithful and efficient as any servants the public has in place. They are like the town clerks of our smaller towns, in any of whom have been in office for a long term of years, whose politics are largely matter of indifference to their fellow citizens, who are subject to the form of election, but who never have the reality, and who serve the public capably and with fidelity. These two classes of officers, the appointed and the elected, are alike good officers; and they both are good for the same reason. They are picked out by their neighbors who know them thoroughly; they are existing illustrations of that reform in the civil service which would give us public servants intelligently selected instead of public servants who are put in office because they have been the private servants of some one who could get higher offices than they, and would put them into the lower.

But apply the rule of election which really or practically prevails in country towns to the postmastership of a city like New York or Boston, and we shall simply offer one more inducement to the politician by trade to continue in business, and have one more election or one more candidate for whom to vote.

Gossip about Letters.

"A foot-post doth come from Bury, in Suffold, to the 'Green Dragon,' in Bishopsgate street, every Wednesday, by whom letters may be conveyed to and fro." So writes the water poet, John Taylor, in his "Carrier's Cosmography," A. D. 1637. In like manner we learn that a foot-post from Wasinghum came every second Thursday to the "Cross Keys," Holburn; one from York, to the "Rose and Crown," in St. John street. Letters, however, could be sent every Monday to Scotland "by the post that doth lodge at the 'King's Arms,' at the upper end of Cheapside." Letters did not travel then as fast as a certain general made one travel, by enclosing it in a cannon-ball, and firing it into a besieged town, for the purpose of conveying a message. Between the time when the first letter was written, and that signaled by the postman's knock this morning, there never was a more singular mode of despatch.

The first letter ever written! Where is it? Let us be content to know, as beyond dispute, that the earliest sample we have of a letter is that of David to Joab. When we remember the contents and the purpose of that letter, we may be honestly ashamed of the writer. We could have wished this letter had not been preserved; and we turn from it readily to consider the letters of more recent and less sacred kings.

* * * * *

In the days of heavy postage no one had the slightest scruple in cheating the revenue. Persons leaving home, whether for inland or foreign travel, were importuned by friends to carry letters for them to other friends. An idea prevailed that, if the letters were carried "open"—that is, unsealed—there was no infraction of the law, and that, consequently, no penalty could be exacted. This was a popular error. The law, moreover, was evaded in another way. A newspaper was sent by post in an envelope; inside the latter a long epistle was often written in invisible ink, generally milk. When this ink on the writing could not be seen. By holding the paper to the fire the writing came out in a sepia color, and the law was broken. The post office authorities discovered this pretty trick, and parties were threatened with prosecution; but as the receivers invariably protested that they did not know who the senders were, it was almost impossible to obtain a conviction. Senders, indeed, grew a little nervous, and many changed their method of conveying information in spite of the law. In place of writing in milk on the covers of the newspapers, they made slight dots in ordinary ink under such printed letters as suited their purpose for conveying intelligence. This was troublesome for both sender and receiver, and it was therefore used only for brief messages. The postal tax pressed most heavily on the poor, but the ingenious poor discovered means to evade it. For instance, a son or daughter in town dispatched a letter to parents in the country who were too poor to pay the postage. The parents declined to take such letter in, which they had legal right to do. Returned to the General Post Office, the letter, on being opened, was found to be a blank sheet of paper. The fact is, that parents and children had agreed to send these blank sheets as indications that all was well with the sender; the receiver got that much of news and had nothing to pay for it. The letter was never taken in unless a particular mark was on the cover, which intimated that something of importance was to be read within.

Although a high rate of postage fell most heavily upon the poor, there was scarcely any one who did not feel it. Every one wished to be relieved from it. We can hardly realize how peers, who could frank a large number of letters daily, and how members of Parliament, who could frank, every day except Sunday, a few, were beset by friends for franks for themselves, or for their friends, or for their friends' friends. We have an illustration of this fact in the "Diary, Letters and Journals of Sir George Jackson," an exceedingly amusing and instructive book, recently published by Sir George's widow. Writing to his mother at Bath, in 1802, the then apprentice diplomatist says: "My sister tells me Bath was never so thin. I sympathize with her, knowing how voluminous her correspondence is, and that the thinness of Bath means 'a dearth of frank men,' there being, she says, only Lords Rosslyn and Harcourt to fly to."

Those old days heavy postage made long letters. As the receivers paid the postage they naturally expected their money's worth. Often a sheet of Bath post, or even a foolscap, was crossed and recrossed, and not a hair's breadth of the paper was left without its line. A letter then was written bit by bit, day after day, till the whole was completed. It was, in its way, a newspaper or a book; it was sent all through the branches of a family; it was lent to friends; it even went to mere acquaintances, and strangers made extracts from the choicest parts of it. In the second series of Miss Mitford's "Letters and Correspondence" she refers to one of these epistles. It was written by a lord who had been traveling on the Continent, and it was a clever, sensible, and instructive document. Miss Mitford borrowed it for the purpose of copying the contents, to accomplish which it cost her six mortal hours, which the lady did not think were ill-spent.

When postage was high, letters were luxuries in which persons far above the condition of those who are called poor, could not often indulge. We cannot give a better illustration of this than one we had in a letter addressed by Mr. Collins, the artist, to his brother, in 1816, when the landscape painter was twenty-eight years of age. Collins was then at Hastings sketching, and had invited his brother to come down from Saturday to Monday. "The whole amount of the expense would be the coach, provided you put two biscuits in your pocket, which would answer as a lunch; and I would have dinner for you, which would not increase my expenditure above tenpence. I shall be at the place where the coach stops for you, should you be able to come. Write me nothing about it unless you have other business, for a letter costs a dinner." This was the artist who was overjoyed to receive fifty pounds for his "Cromer Sands," the picture for which, at the sale of the Elliott collection, a purchaser was found to give, quite as joyously, three thousand seven hundred and eighty guineas.

It has been said that, if heavy postage produced essays, cheap postage makes epigrams. But the latter were not wanting in the very earliest days. Nothing could be more epigrammatic than the note sent by one Irish chief to another: "Pay me tribute, or else"—To which the equally epigrammatic answer was: "I owe you none, and it"—Of this sort were the notes between Foote's mother and Foote. "Dear Sam—I'm in prison. Yours, E. Foote" The old lady was under arrest for debt. The son's answer was: "Dear Mother—So am I. Yours, S. Foote." And again, the letters between old Mrs. Garrick and young Edmund Kean: "Dear Mr. Kean—You can't play Abel Drugger. Yours, &c." To which intimation Edmund wrote back: "Dear Madam—I know it. Yours, E. K." Instances occur now and then where a joke has been played, the fun of which was to make a man pay heavy postage for very unnecessary information. When Collins, the artist, was once with some friends around him, one of them resisted every attempt to induce him to stay to supper. He withdrew, and the friends in council over their banquet, resolved that the sulky guest should be punished. Accordingly, on the following day, Collins sent him a folded sheet of foolscap, in which was written: "After you left we had stout and oysters." The receiver understood what was meant, but he was equally resolved to have his revenge. Accordingly, biding his time, he transmitted, in a feigned hand, to Collins, a letter in which the printer read only, "Had you?" Therewith the joke seemed at an end; but Collins would have the last word. He waited and waited, till the thing was almost forgotten, and then the writer of the last query opened a letter one morning in which he had the satisfaction of finding an answer to it in the words, "Yes, we had."

COMMUNICATIONS.

A Suggestion.

POST OFFICE, C——, Ga., May, 1872.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL: This is the first time I have troubled you with any of my suggestions, and I will not ask you to read these unless you have the time. I was appointed Postmaster of this village in April of last year and about that time saw a copy of the MAIL. I subscribed at once, and have been up to this time a constant reader of the same, and would not be without it for double the price of subscription. That to collect unpaid postage is a very important duty, but at the same time a very unpleasant one, all will admit, and that the government loses largely from this cause alone I believe no one will deny. Scarcely a week passes but what we postmasters in this section have some unpleasantness with some one in regard to unpaid postage. Now for the remedy. Compel letter writers to fully prepay all letters. When any letters are dropped in the letter-box not fully prepaid, cancel the stamps that are on them and forward them by the first mail (without advertising) to the dead letter office. This would cause parties, the writer imagines, to be careful to fully prepay their correspondence, or at least they would not suffer many letters to be sent to the "D. L. O.," for they would lose the stamps first placed on their letters. That the dead letter office would have to employ more clerks for the first six months after the passage of such a law I do not doubt, but it would be, as I think, much better in the end. I may on a future day make some suggestions relative to the prepayment of newspapers, etc. Hoping you will give this a place in the June number of the postmasters' organ—the MAIL,—I am, very respectfully, F. P. B——, P. M.

The Postman's Ring.

BY MRS. A. D. T. WHITNEY.

Of all the parables, day by day,
That thrill the heart of this life of mine—
Making strange and beautiful sign
Of gracious meaning in common way—
The very blithest and dearest thing
Is the sound in the house of the postman's ring.

It tells a story. Though deep and far
Stretch the want and the wish of man,
Bid in the bud of an infinite plan,
All blessed and sure providings are.
God's loving tongue the bell at the door
That the postman stands and waits before.

For He knew when He made it—earth and sea,
The world so wide, and his child so small,
Something must reach across all
From heart to heart that would listening be
And so from the first he laid away
Seed of purpose that fruits to-day.

And because no service of man to man—
No thought or method that matches near—
With outward emblem can half way read
The depth divine of the heavenly plan,
Almost the dearest and hopefullest thing
In the livelong day, is the postman's ring.

It minds me well of so sure a hand,
So glad a summons, may tell and send
Our earthly tidings from friend to friend,
There cannot be less in the Perfect Land.
Soul messages may not be stayed or crossed:
Out of God's mails no letter is lost!

Dear heart! that dwellest I know not where—
So near—so distant—I may not see
While I am held with thoughts of thee
Is some such magic of gladness there?
Do the angels come to thy door and say,
"We have brought thee a word from her to-day?"

Letter Addresses.

To Pleasant Brook post office I bid you go,
In New York State, neither fast nor slow,
And find D. A. Lovejoy, both tall and straight,
That sad young man without a mate.

Go, little missive, in pursuit
Of Edwin McI——, the sweet galoot,
In Williamstown city, New York State,
Where he resides, or did of late;
And if by chance he does neglect you
Come back to me and I'll protect you.

☞ The postal telegraph system is working very well in England. During the last week of June, the messages ran up to more than three hundred thousand—an excess of seventy thousand over the corresponding week of last year. For the quarter ended in June, the increase exceeds a million over the same quarter in 1871. These figures have great significance. When the lines were worked by the companies an annual augmentation of ten per cent. was thought high; but at present, under the government, the rise is more than thirty per cent.

"Post-Official Redtapery."

Under the above heading, there is published in the New York Nation the following letter to the editor of that paper:

POST-OFFICIAL REDTAPERY.

To the Editor of the Nation:

SIR:—Some weeks ago, while in the City of New York, I received from Hartford, Conn., sundry proofs, covered by a two-cent stamp and inclosed in an envelope marked "printed matter," and having the opposite corners cut open. I had already received several similar envelopes at Washington, D. C., and returned proofs in like manner from that place; so, naturally having no doubt about the propriety of what was allowed at headquarters, I undertook to do the same thing from New York. The proofs did not reach their destination. On enquiry, I was informed by the New York post-office that they were "held for postage," without further explanation. But I afterwards ascertained indirectly that the letter of the law excludes all regularly-made envelopes, however cut open at the ends or corners, and that, to be on the safe side, the sender must take the trouble to paste a piece of paper around his printed matter. Many postmasters, however, do not feel themselves bound to carry out this literal strictness. Hence the rule becomes oppressive by its uncertainty. I may be asked, "Why make a fuss about nine or twelve cents postage?" I answer, it is not that which I am concerned about; indeed, I shall always take good care hereafter to put my proofs into a regular envelope and pay letter postage on them. It is the false pretence and the disappointment. Besides, I do not pretend to make myself a standard. There certainly seems to be persons to whom the difference in postage is an object, or is supposed to be; else why pass such a law?

It may also be said that, as paternal government is looking up, especially since Greeley's nination, these little technicalities are of rice to the public, and teach us to be pre- and conscientious, and not to violate the r of an absurd law, even if some of the chorities connive at our violation. Leaving out all other objections to this plea, one sufficient answer is that the greater penalty usually falls on the party who did not commit the fault. Thus, in the present instance, while I did not escape entirely unscathed, being put to the trouble of writing several letters on the subject, the principal sufferer was the Philological Association, whose whole machinery was brought to a stand-still for ten days.

In short, the "printed matter" regulation seems to be a part of that carefully-arranged system by which our erudite government so sedulously discriminates against all the higher branches of literature and learning. Just look at the items. First, the denial of international copyright, owing to which, as one of the Harpers' own tools confesses, lexicons, critical editions of the classics, and learned commentaries generally, are almost unknown as native productions. Then our judicious tariff trebles, or more than trebles, the price of many books required in special subjects, and never by any possibility republished here. Then we have a supremely absurd law about manuscripts en postable at low rates, provided they are each manuscripts—which constitutes perhaps one per cent. of the written matter despatched to editors and publishers, not to speak of the impossibility in many cases of deciding beforehand whether a manuscript is "book" or not. Finally, we have this petty, piddling legislation about printed matter. And all the while we brag and crow about our national encouragement of literature, which consists chiefly in plundering the foreign and snubbing the native author. CARL BENSON.

LENOX, MASS., June 10, 1872.

Now, if Mr. Benson had taken the trouble to obtain his information directly, instead of "indirectly," he would have ascertained that "the letter of the law" does not "exclude all regularly made envelopes, however cut open at the ends or enrners," but simply provides (Sec. 39, Act of March 3, 1863) that "the Postmaster-General has authority to prescribe by regulation the manner of wrapping and securing for the mails all matter not charged with letter postage nor lawfully franked, so that the same may be conveniently examined by postmasters; and, if not so wrapped and secured, the same shall be subject to letter postage." And the regulations (312 and 213) based on this law are as follows: "212.—It is the duty of the postmaster at the mailing office, as well as at the office of delivery, carefully to examine all printed matter, in order to see that it is charged with the proper rate of postage, and to detect fraud." "213.—If postmasters cannot make this examination without destroying the wrapper, they will rate the package with letter postage and collect the same on delivery." Regulation 80 further provides that "All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing * * * proof sheets * * * * * must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such package must be rated with letter postage."

The obvious intent of this law and these regulations is to guard against the frauds (often attempted) upon the revenues of the department, resulting from the concealment of written communications in packages of printed matter. Of course, no one who knows Mr. "Carl Benson" would suspect him of such fraudulent concealment; and, presumably, the officers of the Philological Association are equally incapable of such conduct (though it is within the knowledge of the writer that several clergymen and a good many ladies are not); but we think that neither he nor they would seriously claim to be exempt from the operat on of a law affecting all their fellow citizens, nor contend that a postmaster can "carefully examine," with a view to detect possible fraud, the contents of a sealed envelope, from two corners of which a small piece has been clipped.

Copyright and tariff matters are out of our line, and we, therefore, have nothing to say in reply to Mr. Benson's remarks on those subjects; but as to the "book manuscript" question, we think he is bound to produce a good reason why the "manuscripts" of the "watering place correspondent" of the Daily Trumpeter or of the gentlemen and ladies who write the love stories for the Weekly Sensation, should not be charged the same rates of postage as the letters of less gifted mortals, before he can fairly make the fact that they are so charged a cause of complaint or a reason for bringing railing accusations of "piddling legislation" and "red-tapery" against Congress and the Post Office Department.

The "Champion" Mail Robbery.

In May last the post office at New Rush, South Africa, situated in the midst of the recently discovered diamond fields, was entered and robbed of a mail pouch destined for Cape Town, which contained a large number of diamonds inclosed in letters and packages, as well as about one thousand pounds sterling in bank notes, and a number of drafts and checks. For some time no trace of the depredator could be found, but at length he was, almost by accident, discovered in the person of an Englishman named Harding, recently arrived at the diamond fields, who was arrested on a charge of having robbed a fellow-passenger of £100. A search revealed no less than 2,374 diamonds, weighing six pounds, concealed in a powder flask and in the barrels of his gun, and the greater portion of the money in a small courier bag belonging to him. After one day's examination before a magistrate, Harding made a full confession, which is thus detailed by the correspondent of the New York World:

He said that he heard that a warrant was out for his apprehension for stealing the £100, and one night he was standing by Dn Beers' post office when he saw the postmaster leave with his assistant, and it occurred to him that he would certainly find £100 in a mail bag, and he would thus be able to save himself. He then went to the office and broke through the window by forcing his elbow through a pane of glass, which he smashed. He then drew back the bolt and opened the window. The Cape Town bag was at hand, and he walked off with it under his coat. He then returned to Dn Tuit's Pan, where his tent was, and for some days pursued his usual avocation. On opening the bag, he found that he had become possessed of a white elephant, and he did not know what to do with the immense quantity of diamonds he had. How he secreted them the evidence given in court shows. The letters and papers, with the drafts, are all buried, and he has given the authorities all the information which will lead to their restoration. The prisoner, in fact, seems to be doing his utmost to repair the mischief he has done. The greatest sympathy is felt in the town for the relatives, who live at Acton, in Surrey, and are people well to do. He has been committed for trial on both charges.

I have never seen so splendid a collection of diamonds as those taken out of Harding's courier bag and gun barrels. Some one suggested that 2,374 diamonds were so heavy that if they were placed in a gun it would be difficult to carry such a weapon so loaded. After seeing the 2,374 I arrived at the conclusion that it would not be difficult for a moderately strong man to carry off half a dozen guns so loaded. But if their weight is nothing, their appearance is splendid. There are of course a large number of off-colored stones, a few splints and some boart. The diamond of eighty-nine carats is white and could be octahedron, but that one side is splintered off. It is otherwise a white stone, but not of much value. It has specks. The sixty-two carat stone is almost a decided yellow, perfect in shape, and free from flaw or speck. Then from the large mass is a small regiment of white stones, perfect octahedrons, of dazzling brightness, some of which throw a delight glimmer in flashes of fire like a summer's sun on a sea of glass. Aladdin, with his wonderful lamp, never dreamed of conjuring up anything so dazzling as these 2,374 diamonds when all spread out. How are these diamond to be returned to their owners? Can any one go among the 2,374 and swear to a certain diamond being his property? With the exception of the large splintered one we do not believe that any one can. The sixty-one, possibly, could be identified, but we do not know how the others can be sworn to."

We don't know to whom the proprietor or postmaster of Du Beers' post office is reaponsible; but it seems to us that the more prndent of the lucky finders of diamonds in that neighborhood will scarcely venture to intrust their treasure, in future, to the custody of gentlemen who exercise so little care in protecting it.

Death of Alexander W. Randall.

On the 25th ultimo, HON. ALEXANDER W. RANDALL, formerly Postmaster General, died at his residence in Elmira, N. Y., at the age of fifty-three, after a few weeks' illness. He was born in Montgomery county, N. Y., but at an early age he went to Wisconsin, where he studied and practiced law, and was, in 1847, elected a member of the Territorial Convention which framed the Constitution. In 1856 he was elected Governor of the State, in which capacity he was most active and efficient in promoting the raising of troops in defense of the Union. In 1861 he was appointed U. S. Minister to Rome, and, though he filled the post but a short time, his duties were performed to the eminent satisfaction of the State Department and the nation. In 1863 he was appointed First Assistant Postmaster General, and on the resignation of Postmaster General Dennison, in 1865, he was appointed his successor, retiring in 1869. He was eminently fitted for the duties of that office, and fulfilled them with ability and fidelity. Personally, he was a courteous gentleman and a faithful friend, whose loss will be deeply regretted.

The Registration Fee.

Section 127 of the Postal Code provides that the fee on domestic registered matter "shall not exceed twenty cents," and some postmasters seem to have construed this provision as fixing the fee at twenty cents, and have charged that amount. We are hardly able to see how this strange misconception could have occurred—especially as the former law (Sec. 279, Laws of 1866) also provides for a fee "not exceeding twenty cents"—the fee being fixed at first (Sec. 353, Reg. of 1865) at twenty cents, and reduced on January 1, 1869, to fifteen cents, which rate has not since been changed. And although the Regulations of 1866 are declared to be still in force, so far as they are not inconsistent with the Regulations under the new code, yet as the Regulation (332) of 1866 fixing the fee at twenty cents was superseded by the Regulation of 1869, which reduced the fee to fifteen cents, the latter Regulation only is in force.

THE Magazine, Weekly and Bazar published by Messrs. Harper & Brothers stand in the front rank of American periodical literature, and brilliantly defy competition and rivalry in their several spheres. Among their constant contributors they number the most eminent and popular authors of Europe and America, and offer literary and artistic attractions which may be truthfully characterized as unparalleled for quality, variety and quantity. The Magazine, with lavish prodigality, gives us in the same number serials by Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins and Miss Thackeray, the magnificent papers of St. Emilio Castelar on the "Republican Movement in Europe," and a rich variety of illustrated articles, stories and poems. The Weekly treats of all topics of current interest, and gives the best illustrations that can be obtained from every available source, both foreign and domestic, besides short stories and serials by such authors as James Payn, George Eliot, Wilkie Collins, Miss Braddon and others whose names have become familiar as household words. The Bazar, a journal especially adapted to home reading, is also rich in literary and artistic attractions, and well worthy of its great and constantly-increasing popularity.

The unparalleled attractions of these periodicals have made them a necessity in every American family, and postmasters and other agents will find them the most popular publications to canvass for. By reference to the advertisement in another column it will be seen that the publishers offer very liberal terms with reference to clubs, etc.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We are drifting on a sea of uncertainty this month. The last Congress, amid its last throes of adjournment, passed a code of postal laws comprising some of those already in for e, amending some, and introducing some entirely new. Very radical changes have been made, some of which will require instructions from the Postmaster General before they can go into effect, and not a few will require official decisions to explain. In our usual article, then, we do the best we can under the circumstances, leaving open a wide door by which to escape, if time should prove that escape will be necessary.

In noticing a communication which suggests the complete reversal of the present style of addressing a letter, viz., first the State, then the county, then the post office, and lastly the person's name, we are reminded that a similar proposition was made some years ago, and had quite a run through that instrument of reform, the press. Why it was abandoned we do not now recollect, probably because for a while it would lead to a mass of inextricable confusion in the forwarding and delivery of letters. Our personal conviction, however, is that if by one sweeping common consent among letter-writers the system could be adopted, it would be beneficial, as it is more rational....Again we must protest against the use of the word post-mistress. If we may be allowed an old, hackneyed word-play, we would say, the business of the Department is only with the mails, and any lady who is rendered happy by an appointment to the charge of a post office, must for the time be content to become a male, so far, at least, as to be called post-master. While on this subject we must congratulate those of our married lady citizenes who have official aspirstions on the fact that the new code provides a way for their gratification. (Sec. 65.)....We have received several communications on the readjustments of salaries lately made. We must make our usual reply, which is, we can only state the law on the subject and cannot undertake to explain why the salary of any individual office is increased or decreased, further than affected by the law. ....Our correspondent who desires to know to whom to send for blanks, should read the preface to the Post Office Directory, on the "Organization of the Department." He and others who wish for information of this character will find it there....One correspondent "cannot do without the MAIL; he likes Mons. Tonson's good hits at delinquent postmasters, and would not miss that part of the paper for anbscription." He is a man of taste and the Judgment. Another has left the service, but "can't enjoy good health without the MAIL." May he live long and enjoy excellent health through the good things we send him monthly. But we must close. It is very pleasant to repeat these "kind words;" but they are hardly "post office matters."

LIGHT IN THE DISTANCE.—The new Post Office building at New York is progressing finely. Good weather and favorable winds to waft hither the granite-laden vessels will keep the superintendents and artisans in working trim, and materially aid in the speedy completion of the splendid superstructure.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF RULINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY COMPILED FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE DEPARTMENT FOR JUNE, 1873.

1. Correspondence addressed to members of Congress is entitled to free transmission by mail, subject to the restrictions in P. Reg. Sec 124.

2. Exchanges can only be sent from one publisher to another, and should be addressed and delivered to the office of publication. They cannot be forwarded to any other place without prepayment of postage at the usual rates.

3. A presentation of his commission by a newly appointed Postmaster, is sufficient authority to the Postmaster to deliver the office to him.

4. Circulars sent in bulk by mail to one address are subject to postage at the rate of 2 cents for each four ounces, or fraction thereof, to be prepaid by postage stamps affixed.

5. There is nothing in the Postal Laws or Regulations forbidding a Postmaster to sell goods in the building in which the office is kept, provided he complies with the regulations, sections 24, 25 and 26.

7. Photographic cards sent by mail should be inclosed in manila wrappers, or wrappers opened at one or both ends so that they can be examined without destroying the cover—otherwise they are subject to letter postage.

8. Letters to persons not found at the office addressed may be forwarded to any other office without additional postage; but letters, when once delivered according to the address cannot be remailed without prepayment of postage at letter rates by postage stamps affixed.

9. Articles of clothing are subject to letter postage by mail, except to non-commissioned officers and soldiers to the U. S. military service, as provided in Postal Laws, Section 221.

10. No postal cards, except those issued by this Department, can be recognized or admitted into the mails as such. The Postmaster General will, at an early day, issue suitable postal cards to be issued under the law, for the accommodation of the public.

11. Any communication wholly or partly in writing, sent by mail, is subject to letter postage whether sealed or unsealed, except bona fide manuscript and corrected proofs passing between author and publisher. Manuscript sent by mail for publication in newspapers, magazines, or periodicals, is subject to letter postage.

12. Letters addressed to fictitious persons or firms, or to no particular person or firm, not being deliverable under the Regulations, should be returned at the end of each month to the dead letter office.

13. Letters containing indecent, vulgar, or profane language on the envelope should be excluded from the mails. Laws section 221.

14. The Postal Laws give no authority to the Postmaster General to remit the postage on mail matter directed to any public institution or private individual.

15. Postmasters should collect postage on sample copies of newspapers, arriving at their offices, unpaid; and on marked matter sent along with letter rates of postage should be collected. Postage, at transient rates, should be collected on newspapers forwarded from one post office to another.

16. Samples of cloth, with card attached containing description and price in writing and figures, are subject to letter postage.

17. Subscribers to weekly newspapers, printed and published in the county in which they reside may receive the same free of postage.

18. It is no part of the duty of the Department or of a Postmaster to inquire by whom the subscription to a newspaper has been paid.

19. The Congressional Globe and Appendix are permitted to pass by mail free of postage. Laws, section 201 A.

20. The publisher of a newspaper has a right to enclose his bill to the package which he has sold to a news agent or dealer.

21. Writing on the margin of a transient newspaper subjects it to letter postage, which should be collected before delivering.

22. It is contrary to the rules of the Department to frank copies of papers on file, except when a suit is pending and counsel certify that such copies are material to the issue.

23. All mail matter passing by mail at less than letter rates of postage must be so inclosed as to admit of examination without destroying the wrapper—otherwise letter postage must be collected. Regulation, section 216.

24. The law only authorizes book manuscript and corrected proofs to pass by mail between author and publisher at printed rates of postage.

25. Letters paid one full rate (3 cents) should be sent to their destination, unless the Postmaster is satisfied that the sender designed to have them mailed unstamped.

26. There is no provision in the New Postal Code allowing the use of postal cards other than such as may be issued by the Department, with stamps impressed upon them. Substitutes for them are subject to letter postage.

27. Publications issued less frequently than once a quarter must be prepaid at the mailing office by postage stamps affixed at transient rates of postage.

28. Quarterly rates of postage cannot be accepted for less than one quarter.

29. Postmasters should not stop letters passing through their offices on account of insufficient postage, the Postmaster at the office of delivery should correct such mistakes and collect the deficient postage.

30. Ordinarily letters should be delivered according to their address; but parents are entitled to control the correspondence of their minor children, residing with and depending upon them for support.

31. A Postmaster has no right to deliver mail from his office directed to another office, unless the office addressed inclose an direction thereof, and has a Postmaster the right to forward printed matter, except upon the prepayment of postage, at transient rates.

32. Circulars enclosed in sealed envelopes with the corners cut are subject to letter postage.

33. A request to return upon the wrapper of printed matter should not be regarded. Only matter prepaid at letter rates can be returned at the request of the sender without extra postage.

34. The New Postal Code, section 139, provides that where packages of newspapers or other periodicals are received at a post office directed to one address and the name of the subscribers to whom they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, are inclosed to the Postmaster he shall deliver them to the subscribers.

35. The New Postal Code, section 149, provides for the detention of letters and circulars which relate to illegal lotteries only. All mail matter sent by or to legal lotteries is entitled to pass by mail.

36. Postmasters are not required to distribute newspapers not received by mail, except weeklies printed and published in the county and sent to subscribers residing therein; nor are they permitted to do so when it interferes with the regular duties of their office.

37. The 4th of July and the 25th of December are legal holidays and may be observed by Postmasters the same as the Sabbath; and in like manner Postmasters should observe Decoration and Thanksgiving days.

38. The Postal Code, section 149, provides that all publications sent or received by the Smithsonian Institution marked "Smithsonian Exchange" shall pass free in the mails.

39. A written order is not necessary to authorize a Postmaster to forward letters to a party who has left the place; a verbal request of the person himself or of some one authorized to make such request is sufficient. No additional postage is required for forwarding if the letter has not been delivered; but when once delivered according to its address postage, at letter rates, is required if it is returned to the office for remailing.

40. No Postmaster, Assistant Postmaster, or Clerk employed in any post office shall be a contractor or concerned in any contract for carrying the mail.

41. Circulars and other miscellaneous printed matter, except books, can now be mailed at a prepaid postage of 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof to one address, under the New Code. This refers to circulars by mail from one office to another. Circulars dropped into a letter carrier office, unsealed, for local delivery are subjected to 1 cent each, to be prepaid by postage stamps affixed.

42. Newsdealers have the right to mail newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers without prepayment of postage, the same as publishers; but cannot mail weekly papers free of postage.

43. New Code, section 159, provides for the payment of postage quarterly or yearly in advance on newspapers sent to subscribers—payment to be made either at the office of mailing or delivery, as the subscriber may elect. If paid at the mailing office the Postmaster should notify the Postmaster at the office of delivery.

44. Bilked currency loses its legal value and cannot be received in payment of postage.

45. When a subscriber to a newspaper pays postage in advance, and, before the expiration of the term paid for, changes his post office and orders his paper sent from the office of publication direct to his new address it is the duty of the Postmaster, on being satisfied of such payment, to deliver the paper without further postage charge till the expiration of the time paid for.

46. In the event of the death of a Postmaster his Deputy should sign the official papers as provided in Regulation, sections 296 and 567.

47. Chromos, protected by thin boards, may be sent by mail in packages not exceeding twelve ounces in weight for 1 cent for each two ounces, &c. On packages of greater weight letter postage is required.

48. The New Code, section 149, requires that all liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials, and obscene books shall be excluded from the mails.

49. The postage on transient newspapers is, under the New Code, 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, instead of 2 cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof, as heretofore.

50. A Postmaster is not authorized, under any circumstances, to open letters deposited in his office not addressed to himself. A letter dropped into a post office, without address, should be sent to the Dead Letter office.

51. Book postage, under the New Code, is 2 cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof instead of 4 cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof, as heretofore.

52. Periodicals, when sent as transient matter, cannot be allowed to pass by mail at less than 1 cent for each two ounces, or fraction thereof, but postage stamps affixed, to one address.

53. Citizens cannot be permitted to put up letter boxes for the use of Postmasters are required to collect rent for all boxes used, no matter by whom owned. At least one quarter's rent should be collected when a box is assigned to any person.

54. The Department furnishes marking stamps free to all offices entitled to them. But never sells them.

55. Specimens of "Radiology and Conchology," when sent by mail, should be rated as third class matter, and prepaid, by postage stamps affixed, at 2 cents for each two ounces, or fraction thereof, to one address—packages not to exceed twelve ounces in weight. New Code, sections 135 and 163.

56. Newsdealers cannot return their surplus stock of magazines, &c., to their publishers without prepayment of postage at the rate of 1 cent for each two ounces, or fraction thereof.

57. A business card printed impressed, or pasted on the wrappers of sheet music or other transient matter does not subject such package to additional postage.

58. The law makes no provision for remailing printed matter, except upon payment of postage at transient rates before remailing.

ABSTRACT OF RULINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY COMPILED FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE DEPARTMENT FOR JULY, 1873.

1. Postmasters on taking charge of an office to which they have been appointed will receive and receipt to the outgoing Postmaster (in duplicate) for all the property belonging thereto.

2. Packages may be sent by mail in packages not exceeding 12 ounces in weight for one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. New code. Letter postage must be charged when the packages exceed 12 ounces in weight.

3. The pay of letter carriers in cities of less than one hundred thousand population is not increased, under the present rule, to exceed $ 800 a year.

4. Samples of goods can be sent as merchandise, limited to packages of 16 ounces in weight. New code, sections 132 and 133.

5. Outgoing postmaster should render returns up to the date his successor takes charge of the office.

6. Money order offices are not established until the salary of the postmaster amounts to $ 200 a year, and then only at the beginning of each fiscal year.

7. The law only authorizes book manuscript and corrected proofs to pass between authors and publishers at printed rates of postage. Manuscript intended for publication in newspapers and periodicals must be prepaid at letter rates of postage.

8. When any newspaper or magazine [illegible] mail, has been refused or not called [illegible] the subscriber for one month, the postmaster should write a statement of the facts to the postmaster at the mailing office, to be by him communicated to the publisher. Reg. 1868, sections 201, 202.

9. The words "please exchange," in writing, on the wrapper of a newspaper, subject it to letter postage.

10. A request to return, on printed matter, cannot be regarded unless postage stamps are remitted to prepay such return at transient rates.

11. The department neither owns nor rents boxes in post offices, except in offices in buildings owned by the Government.

12. A postmaster should not change the site of his office without authority from the Department.

13. Under the new code "electrotypes" may be classed as mailable matter of the third class, and pass by mail at a prepaid postage of 2 cents for each 2 ounces, or fraction thereof, on packages to one address, limited to 12 ounces.

14. Packages of stereotype dies and plates may be mailed as third-class matter at a prepaid rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces, or fraction thereof, in packages not exceeding 12 ounces to one address—prepayment by postage stamps required.

15. The postage on newspaper "outs" is 2 cents for each 2 ounces, or fraction thereof, on packages to one address, and not exceeding 12 ounces in weight, to be prepaid by postage stamps.

16. There has been no change in the law in regard to small newspapers. New Code, sec. 160.

17. Samples of wheat, flour, coffee, tobacco, etc., may be transmitted by mail at the rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof in packages not exceeding 12 ounces to one address, to be prepaid by postage stamps.

18. Applicants for employment in the postal service must state definitely the position they desire, and they must reside within the delivery of the office to which they desire to be appointed postmaster.

20. The Act of Congress changing the rates of postage on newspapers, etc., approved June 8, 1872 (the new Code), is now in full force.

21. The postal laws do not authorize newsdealers to return their surplus stock of magazines, etc., to their publishers, without prepayment of postage at the rate of one cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof.

22. The Department invariably refuses all applications for the erection of bulletin boards, signs, notices, etc., to or about any building or room occupied as a post office.

23 Postmasters are forbidden by Regulations to take out of the mails any matter not addressed to their offices, except in case of discontinued offices, to which they are nearest.

24. Stencil plates inclosed in packages not exceeding 12 ounces, to one address, and so inclosed as to permit of examination without destroying the wrapper, may be mailed at the prepaid rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, when not accompanied by writing.—New Code, sections 132, 133 and 163.

25. At post-offices where letter carriers are not employed, postmasters are not required to distribute daily, semi-weekly or monthly papers deposited in their offices for distribution to subscribers. They may do so as an act of courtesy, if it does not interfere with their regular official duties.

26. It is contrary to the rules of the Department to furnish papers on file, or copies, except upon certificate of counsel that the same are required as evidence in a pending suit.

27. Weekly papers only are entitled to be sent free to subscribers within the county where such papers are printed and published.—Regulations, section 278, edition 1866.

28. When a mail arrives at an office on Sunday, it is the duty of the postmaster to keep his office open for one hour or more, if the public convenience requires it, unless it be during the time of public worship, in which case he should keep his office open for one hour or more, if necessary, after the religious services have ceased.

29. Under the new code, packages of circulars may be transmitted to the mails at the prepaid rate of one cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof.

30. Postmasters are not required to refund any difference in postage between the old and the new rates, except such as may be collected after notification of the departmental mail order reduced rates are in force.

31. Printed matter cannot be forwarded from one office to another unless the postage is furnished for such purposes at the transient rates.

32. Postmasters are required to be always in readiness, in person or by deputy, to receive the mail when it arrives.

33. Bank books, bank receipts and bank checks having writing thereon are subject to letter postage. The domestic rate (6 cents the half ounce, etc.) is established for all available matter wholly or partly in writing. (Laws, section 244, edition 1866.) Only book manuscripts and corrected proofs passing between authors and publishers are excepted.

34. Circulars and cards not having any writing on them may be sents (under the new code now in force) in unsealed envelopes, to one address, at a prepaid rate of 1 cent for each 2 ounces, or fraction thereof.

35. There is no provision in the postal laws for forwarding "drop letters" prepaid by a 2 cent stamp (less than one full rate for mail letters). Such letters addressed to residents of the city temporarily at summer residences or places of resort, within the delivery of other offices, cannot be forwarded unless full rates of postage are furnished for such purposes.

36. Small packages of merchandise, not exceeding 12 ounces in weight, composed of dry material not calculated to damage the mails, may be mailed to one address for 2 cents for each 2 ounces &c., prepaid by postage stamps, if not connected with any written matter except the address.

37. The postal laws do not exempt postmasters from working on the public roads.

38. Packages sent in bulk (by a privileged person) should have a frank on each separate address to justify a postmaster in delivering them free of postage.

39. Seeds, cuttings, bulbs and scions are classed in the new code (now in force) as third-class matter, and limited to 12 ounce packages, subject to examination.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mnths, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretts, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natol, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germaey, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destienfion.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted in the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates as given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each four ounces or fraction thereof. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM GREECE, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—Newspapers not over 1 ounce, 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 6 cents; over 2 oz. and not over 4 oz., 10 cents; and 10 cents for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. Book packets, patterns and samples not over 1 oz., 4 cents; over 1 oz. and not over 2 oz., 8 cents; over 2 and not over 4 oz., 14 cents, and 14 cents for each additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, according to the tables in the fourth page, prepayment reqnired.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, 4 cents each, if not exceeding 4 ounces in weight, and an additional rate of 4 cents for each additional 4 ounces or fraction thereof; book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the postage on such article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces of weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces as additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, according to the tables in the fourth page; prepayment required. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and Greece, by the North German Union. The rates of paragraph 4 are also in full to destination except for the deficient postage and fine, in cases of insufficient prepayment. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediarics, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all corresponden e wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class. Sec. 131, Code of 1872.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in the form of, and regularly issued at stated periods, from a known office of publication, without addition by writing, mark or sign. Sec. 132, Code of 1872.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples of merchandise, metals, ores, &c., not exceeding twelve ounces in weight, except matter phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. All matter of the third class, except books and other printed matter, book manuscripts, proof-she ts and corrected proof-sheets, is limited to twelve onnces in weight. Sec. 133, Code 1872.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. Sec. 156, Code 1872. On drop letters where there is a free delivery two cents a half ounce or fraction thereof, and where there is not n free delivery, one cent a half ounce ounce or fraction thereof. Sec. 157, Code 1872.

The rate of postage on mailable matter of the third class is one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, except for books, samples of metals, ores, minerals and merchandise, which are to be charged two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Sec. 163, Code 1872.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communications on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without inclosure franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By Section 154, C. of 1873, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any models, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four onnces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it pertains to official business. Section 134 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on officini business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Depnty Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

Section 180, Code of 1873, relating to franking, enacts that the signatures of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four ponnds, except books published or cirenlated by order of Congress Sec. 134, Code .872.

On all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 156, Code 1872.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., one cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be inclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails. Sec. 133, Code 1872.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, and there must be no inclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves.

No newspaper pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the card, printed or impressed, of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed or written date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registration to any part of the United States is 15 cents. This charge is exclusive of the proper postage. Both the registry fee and the postage must be prepaid by stamps.

All domestic registered packages must be charged a letter rate of postage.

The name and address of the writer must be endorsed on this letter.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. XII., NO. 12. NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER, 1872. WHOLE NO. 144.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

POND LILY, August, 1872.

Home again, after an absence of three long, weary months of travel and sunburn. After my experience at Mayugavia as detailed in the June issue of the MAIL, I felt exceedingly anxious to get back here; but the fate ordered otherwise. By a pre-arrangement I was to meet Jane Mary at Underdone, the terminus of the Pointnopoint Railway, and when I arrived there I was not a little surprised to find Cousin Gracious Saikes and his French valet with her, and luggage enough for a small regiment. I was most cordially greeted by Saikee, but J. M. appeared just a little offish, which, of course, I soon found out was attributable to my failure to report progress at Mayugavia, and to send for her, as I promised. I endesvored to explain, but, armed with a woman's weapons, she cut me to the quick by remarking that "she would never doubt again about the spirits at Mayugavia—my red nose furnished convincing evidence to her that I had been among them." But the dear deme soon grew good natured, and then Cousin Oracious proceeded to unfold his plane. "Friend Tonson, I have came hither to meet you and my relative Jane Mary for the purpose of preventing you from returning to Pond Lily at this time. The ecarching weather is unendurable, and mosquitoes have stormed our castle and are now in peaceable possession. To remain there any longer at this ecason of the year, and in such a torrid and insect-laden atmosphere, was simply a question of life or death; and as I have, I religiously hope, something yet to live for, I unhecitatingly and promptly decided on the life side, and here I am; and now I'll toll you what I have ildetermined upon. I have turned my back on Pond Lily for sixty days, and during those sixty days I dasign to hunt up and enjoy camfort for myself and my two dear relatives. We will go down by the ea shors and then up in the hill tops, and after that we will spend a few days looking at the fearful beauty and listaning to the ceaseless voice of the mighty cataract, and then, traveling slowly homeward, we can sojourn briefly at some of the rural watering places by the way, and thus pleasantly fill up the intermediate time, until cooler days make their appearance." I mildly suggested that it would be necessary for me to visit the old homestead for the purpose of procuring a suitable and sufficient supply of apparel for dame and I; but he incontinently closed my mouth by remarking that going back was out of the question—"we will stop at New Census en route, and there your wardrobes can and shall be replenished to your entire satisfaction. The train by the Broad Geuge route leaves in an hour. I have secured suitable accommodatinns in a sleeping coach, and to-morrow morning we will be in New Censue. So hurry up, my old boy; get your traps ship-shape. I have my stuff all in order. By the by, you drepped something," pointing to an object lying at my feet. Without replying, I picked it up, and saw that it was a lady's glove. I was about to mention the fact, when J. M. rudely snatched it from me, tore it into pieces and threw the fragmente from her in disguet, at the same time hissing into the porches of my ear the words: "Oh, you wicked wretch! Arn't you ashamed of yourself! That glove belonged to a spirit, didn't it, my dear? Oh, you bad, bad mau!"

Providentially the steam scream of the approaching train interrupted this domestic lecture, and in a few minutes we were aboard and on our eastward way. The luxurious fitting of the coach, and the undoubted respectability and good humor of the occupants, had apparently a very soothing effect upon my other half, and every trace of ill-nature soon vanished from her handsome face, and, taking advantage of the fact, I soon succeeded in satisfying her that her suspicions of my marital loyalty were ungrounded and unjust, and we went to sleep at peace with ourselves and all the world. Betimes we were started from our slumbers by the shout of "New Censue," and gently raising a curtain I pcered out and lound we were at anchor in the leviathan depot.

Presently Cousin Oracione made hie appearance and announced that a carriage was in waiting, and in a very little while we were landed at the Maneard Hotel. Cousin Gracious being tho undisputed commander-in-chief of our forces, had ue properly bestowed in elegant apartments, where a reasonable time was devoted to toilet exercises, and then we were summoned to a sumptuous breakfast to which we paid all due respect. After breakfast I proposed that Cousin Gracioue and J. M. should do the necessary shopping, giving as a reason that I had some letters to write, which was assented to; but after they had gone out I changed my mind, and concluded to saunter down to the post office and see some of my old friends, and possibly make some new ones; but unfortunately, as upon a former occasion, it happened to be vacation time, and the establishment was almost deserted. Some had gone down the lake shadfishing, others up the canal on a canoe excursion, and the balance were quartered out among the farmers in the neighborhood, living on milk and spring chicken diet to recuperate their systems, almost worn out with the arduous duties which they were obliged to perform during their working terin.

I found my old friend Doolittle, however, in all his festivencas, hard at work paring his nails, and straining fearfully at a segar which refused to burn, owing, probably, to some dampness in its bowels, and which emitted a very limburgery odor. Although apparently well nigh exhausted by his straining efforts, he rose promptly, cordially greeted me, and after reminiscencing a little, he proceeded to enlighten me on postal matters in genera' and New Census affairs in particular. Since my last visit, things to his mind had improved materially, and he flattered himself that a certain little fellow—nameless for evermore—but not more than a hundred miles off, had a good deal to do with the new order of things. Judge Waver, the assistant, indicated what ought to be done, and the aforesaid little fellow knew how to do it, and he did. People are satisfied with the arrangements for their special convenience, and a certain little fellow will get credit for it some day—and he was willing to wait. Possibly I might think he, Doolittle, was not vigilant because he sested himself in this secluded spot; but it was a mistake, he had his eyas about him, and his ears too, and while enjoying his smoke in this quiet corner, the boys knew he was on the alert, and attended closely to their duties. Just then I happened to peep out into the mailing department, and caw the clerks on opposite sides of the room showering newspapers at each other, many of which in their flight were denuded of their wrappers, and of course would never reach their destination. This circumstance made me a little skeptical in regard to Doolittle's alertness, and he evidently suspected as much, for he parenthetically remarked, "that's nothing; boys will be boys, you know, and must have their fun now and then, but a short cough or a sharp glance from me fetches 'em every time. Please push the door to, and let 'em go it a little. I'll bring 'em up with a round turn presently." As I felt no particular interest in seeing the "round turn" operation performed, I withdrew, leaving Doolittle with a burning match in his hand with which he recommenced his exertions to ignite the obstinate segar.

When I returned to the hotel Saikes and J. M. were there, and had made good use of their time in shopping, and by the evening boat we were off for the coast. Our destination was "Druid'e Cliffe," a famous place for boating, bathing, fishing and feeding, and we anticipated having a good time. By way of interiude we had a little hurricane outside, which made our bost roll and rock pretty lively and caused considerable moaning and groaning among fresh water people. Saikes was not affected in the least, but J. M. and your correspondent suffered beyond description. Oh, dear, how sick we were! I expected every moment that we would both be spasmed to pieces, but the tension of the human frame is wonderful. The strain on our joints and hinges was terrible, but nothing gave way. A disjointed limb or ruptured blood vessel might have mitigated our misery a little, but no such luxury fell to our lot. Diabolical basins stared us in the face, and we were forced to pay tribute to them—while the salcon re-echoed with ejaculations from other victims—"Oh, dear!" "Oh, Lord!" "Oh, my!" "I shall die, I know I shall!" J. M. and I kept our griefs for our own ears, and our subdued exclamations: "Oh, my dear Molly, you don't know how sick I am!" "Oh, my precious husband, this is the last of earth for me!" fell only on our own ears. By and by, however, the winds calmed down, and we got into smooth water again, and then our internal troubles gradually ceased. At an early hour our staunch boat "Sea Weed" hauled into the long wharf at Druid's Cliffs, and we were presently safely ashore and comfortably quartered at the Wannamucce House. Saikes looked as fresh as a new blown rose, but the dame and I were sadly out of repair, and it took us nearly all day to recuperate. A good, refreshing nap eased our aches and a luxurious late dinner revived our spirits, and when the band began to play there was "not a wave of trouble roll'd across our peaceful breasts." Suddenly Cousin Oracious remembered that he had ordered his correspondence to be forwarded to Druid's Cliffs, and asked me if I would be kind enough to go to the post office for him, to which I responded, "with pleasure," and straightway proceeded thither.

I found quite a throng of people congregated in the lobby awaiting the opening of the mail which had recently arrived, and from the length of time occupied, I concluded that it was either a very heavy one or that the people inside worked very leisurely if not lazily. After a little while, however, I edged my way into a corner and was able to get a view of the laborers in this postal vineyard, and was fully enlightened as to the cause of the delay. A very stout elderly gentleman, supposed to be the postmaster, was seatsd on a high stool, while several little boys were busily engaged in assorting and boxing the letters and papers. As each one in turn took from the table a bundle of letters he would submit them for examination to the gentleman on the stool, who would carefully read the superscriptions and then hand them back to the youths with instructione as to how they were to be disposed of. In this way the anxiously waited for missives were handled over and over again before they reached the boxes, and the consequence was that what ought to have been accamplished in twenty minutes took eighty. When everything was ready several small wickets were spruug opon by means of a string held by the postmaster, and a general rush was made for the apertures. Each individual inquired first for his or her own letters, and then for a half dozen others, and I really believe that some inquired for as many as twonty different names, and without a single question being asked mail matter was hnude i out by the little boys. I verily believe, stranger that I was, that I could have obtained half the remaining letters in the office, had I only known to whom they were addressed by simply asking for them and without a demand being made upon me for my authority therefor. I would not have been the least bit surprised to learn that Mr. Saikes' letters had been taken out when I inquired for them, but fortunately they were still there, and were handed to me with two or three others that did not belong to him, which were at once returned. After this when I heer of letters going astray or being lost at this office I will know just what to attribute the trouble to.

While we remained at Druid's Cliffs I was mail messenger for our party. Many of the guests mailed and received their letters at the hotel; but it was a risk that we did not feel like taking.

It appeared to be a cammon custom for one or two young persons to se ze on letters as soon as they were bronght from the post office, and rush up and down the halls with them, shouting out the names of the owners, and keeping nervous and anxious people in auspense by pretending to have called their names in mistake, and in some cases actually concealing their letters for hours, for the very quationable fun of keeping them in suspense, or to enjoy their disappointment. I also noticed in a box kept for the purpose, a large number of letters addressed to coming or departed visitors, many of which had been toru open and otherwise mutilated—some of them several weeks old, which no doubt were eventually destroyed—before they reachsd the parties for whom they were intended. An inquiry at the hotel aftsr their disappearance would certainly be met with the response from the dapper, checky clerks that they hedn't been there, and of corse there could be no other way than that they had been stolen at the post office.

Between us, sojourners at fashionable watering placas suffer matsrially in this way, at the hands of some of these flashy employees, who go in for making money enough outside their legitimate business in ninety days to keep them comfortably without working for the balance of the three hundred and sixty-five. Some postmasters and some hotelkeepers do everything in their power to protect such correspondence, but others again do not care a pinch of snuff whether such letters are lost, destroyed or stolen, so long as no responsibility is entailed upon the post office, or no discount asked on exorbitant hoard bills.

I am strongly in favor of civil service doctrine, but its application at somo places I wot of would be "more honored in the breach than in the observance."

Cousin Saikes procured a complete outfit of bathing apparel for all bands at New Census. He was undoubtedly fond of the water, and battled with the surf regularly thrice daily. J. M. and I tried it only once.

In the first place the bathing babiliments were not becoming to our shapes, and were altogether too limited in capacity and tenacity. Secondly, the apparently inviting breakers were fearfully treacherous and no respecters of persons, inasmuch as they buffeted us about to the serious detriment of our flannel armor and to the utter disguet of our stomachs, which were forcibly supplied with potions of the nastiest kind of brine; and, thirdly and worstly, in our dilapidated condition was the overland passage across the beach from the screen of water to the dressing-rooms, between rows of impertinent people, who evidently made it a practice to station themselves there to witness the egress of bathers of all ages, sexes and conditions, and comment on their fine points as though they were fast horses, and loud enough too to be heard without a resort to ear-trumpets. Yes, we only tried it once, but that once entirely satisfied us. The bathroom in the hotel was entirely good enough while we remained at the Wannamucca House.

MONS. TONSON.

The Postal Telegraph in England.

The London correspondent of the New York Evening Post gives the following interesting facts and statistics concerning the operations of the postal telegraph system in England:

There is nothing like having an energetic man at the head of affairs; take Prince Bismarck, for instance, in Germany, and Mr. Scudamore in England. Every one knows, or thinks he knows, all about Prince Bismarck. This is a great mistake, and proves the innate vanity of human nature. Prince Bismarck is far too astute to let the world know more about him than he pleases. But I will let that pass, and proceed to Mr. Scudamore. By meoy of my readers the name of that gentleman has never been heard. I will inform them, therefore, that Mr. Scudamore is the telegraphic Bismerck of England; the mastermind who welded all the petty telegraphic potentotes into one grand British Telegraphic Empire. It was upon his calculations, and at his suggestion, that Parliament determined to buy up all the private telegraph companies, and transfer their business to the state.

Mr. Scudamore has just issued his first official report, showing the result of the plan he advocated. The telegraph promises to become an important eource of revenue, like the post office, of which it now forms a branch. Careful consideration leads to the conclusion that, after paying all expenses, it will yield this year a net profit of three hundred and fifty thousand pounds sterling to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The income of the Telegraph Department is derived from three sources: private messages, messages to newspapers, and the rent accruing from wires and instruments leased to business firms for the transaction of their private business.

I cannot refrain from quoting a few of the figures contained in Mr. Scudamore's report. Private messages, under twenty words, are sent to any part of the United Kingdom at a uniform rate of one shilling each, without any charge for porterage within a mile of the office. The number of private messages has gone up wondrously and steadily since the accession of Mr Scudamore to his present position. The number for the ensuing year will probably be considerably more than 16,000,000. The increase in press messages is equally surprising. The private companies transmitted about 6,000 words a day. On the 7th of March, the Scotch Education bill was read a second time, and the post office forwarded 111,000 words as press messages. On the 19th of March Sir Charles Dilke's celebrated motion on royalty and the expenditure connected with it came before the House of Commons; the post office flashed 93,000 words in the shape of press messages along the wires; and 58,000 on the 22d of March, an ordinary day, with nothing in particular in Parliament. Sometimes the department has special work to do, and for this a special staff is organized. Thus, during the illness of the Prince of Wales, two members of the special staff were day and night at Sandringham, and the number of clerks was augmented at the neighboring town of Lynn. On Thanksgiving Day the same specials were engaged in St. Paul's Cathedral, while once they telegraphed an account of the ceremony as it was proceeding. Dublin needed special aid when the Prince of Wales went there, while the visit of the Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne, her husband, to Inverary, necessitated the dispatch of the special staff to that romantic but out-of-the-way place. It is, however, at races that momentary presence is greatest, and that the very best special clerks are required. When the Derby, or any other great race, is run at Epsom, the twelve windows of the telegraph office there are for several minutes completely blocked up with hands thrusting in messages. The regular business at Northampton is about six hundered messages a week. During the races, by no means important ones, the press messages in two days exceed thirteen thousand words, and there were more than three thousand public messages.

The Telegraph Business.

The country is fast coming under the absoluts control of a gigantic monopoly in the business of telegraphic communication. This business is in its nature a public necessity, just as such as postal facilities, military defense or the administration of justice. In fact, telegraphic communication is but a modification and improvement of the old postal eyetem which was edopted and maintained by Congress under the constitutional authority "to establish post offices and post roads." The end sought was the best mode of correspondence between the people. Mail bags and post coaches were the best means to effect that object a hundred years ago; then came railroads and steamboat lines, and Congress conformed to the advancement of science, and enacted that these new and improved modes of communication should be mail routes.

Still advancing with the genius of the age, when the electric telegraph was made subservient to the daily carrespondence of the country, Cosgress came forward and by law provided that all telegraph companies might maintain and operate their lines over the military and post roads of the United States. This was one step in recognition of the electric telegraph as a legitimate part of the means within the control of Congress in the exercise of its constitutional authority over postal communication. Further argument is annecessary to show that it is the right and duty of our government to assume control of the telegraph system as an important part of the postal eeablishment, as has already been done in England.

To intrust so important a branch of public service to private telegraph carporations is an unwise policy. Experience shows that the tendency of thase corporations is to combine together in action adverse to the interests of the people, or to merge into and be swallowed up by one mammoth company, which thue gets undisputed control of a large business, and carries it on in the well-known spirit of monopoly. The Western Union Telegraph Comp any presents a most striking instance of the principle of absorption. It has swallowed up some twenty or more important telegraph companies, with any quantity of smaller ones, and now owns and operates all their lines. According to its own showing, this company now owns 60,502 miles of telegraph lines and 138,890 miles of wires. Its total capitol is $41,071,510, and its gross receipts from its business for the year ending May 1, 1872, were $8,251,694, of which about one-third was net profit. This enormous business, as the campany truly says in a late European circular, is timed a monopoly of the vast tele graph business of the United States." It is so, indeed; and bnt a few more lines remain to be absorbed in order to render it a complete and all-powerful monopoly.

This mammoth telegraph company now purposes to put up a building for its central office on Broadway, New York city, at a cost of one million and a half of dollars. Its next step will probably be to buy up and absorb one of the ocean lines, and extend its monopoly to the shores of the Old World. Its recent European circular, designed to elicit the confidence of foreign capitolists, may, perhaps, pave the way for this more extended scheme of securieg to itself the sole business of ocean telegraphing. The ostensible purpose of the circular is to put on the English market the company's asven per cent. bonds for one million and a half of dollars, with which to build its projected Broadway building. It is quite clesr, however, that a company with over forty millions of capitsl, and an annual net profit of nearly three millions, need not make so great an effort to obtain such a comparatively moderate eum, and that there must be some ulterior purcose in view in displaying so magnificent an exhibit of its resources hefore the capitalists of Europe.

The national law in reference to lines referred to above was passed in July, 1866, and among other things it provides that Congress may at any time after five years from that date purchase for postal use the telegraph lines, property and effects of all companies maintaining lines over the post-roads of the United States, at an appraised value to be ascertained by disinterested persons. This provision is properatory to the adoption of the postal telegraph as a part of the Government post-office establishment—a measure which was recommended at the last session by Postmaster-General Creswell, but failed of adoption. In view of the giant strides of the Western Union Company toward a complete monopoly, it is a matter of the utmost importance to the public welfare that Congress should carry out that recommendation. There is no measure of public reform of greater moment than this.—Boston Globe.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A Cry for Monsieur Tonson.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL: My dear Sir—Being an old subscriber to the MAIL, and consequently, as I have been taught to believe, entitled to some consideration, I do not hesitate to speak my mind freely upon a matter which not only interests me and my grown-up daughters, but which must be of incalculable benefit or detriment, according to the manner in which it is managed, to the great Post Office Department to which you and I have the happiness of belonging.

I allude to the omission of the letters of the great and good Monsieur Tonson, who, permit me to say, knows more of post office business in a minute than any other man does in a month. My eldest says that Mons. T. must be dead; but I tell her it is not so. The great and good never die. But she sighs just the same, and I grieve to notice that the post office is not swept out as clean, and the once nimble fingers which used to assort the mail seem tired of their work now, since your paper does not bring the welcome communications which in times past adorned its first page. I regret that in place of Monsieur Tonson's letters you publish some novels to sell; true, they are Beadle's, and I suppose must relate to some church matters; but since my daughter attended church with Mons. T. she does not believe in religious novels, and is surprised that you should admit such advertisements to your pages." She declares that Mons. T. must be dead certain, or else he is gone away heart-broken at the manner in which you conduct your paper—advertising novels and all that sort of trash instead of good, sound reading like Monsieur Tonson's letters. Allow me to say this is my opinion too, Mr. Editor, for no father can miss more than I do the once radiant emile, fresh as the sunrise on a June morning, which once beamed in the post office, from sunrise till twilight, and filled with gladness a doting old father's heart.

My daughter is fading, Mr. Editor; I say this to you in confidence. You must know that I am a widower, and have no one to depend on but my four grown-up daughters and the post office, and when these fail me I know I shall sink in sorrow to the grave.

You must know that Mons. Tonson once had the happiness of stopping at my house. He was let down by the coach late on Saturday night. He was tired, but declared he must go on Monday morning. We sat up late after supper that night, and he related his travels. Oh! where hasn't he traveled? He is truly a man after my own heart, and I admire his parts, but his stronghold is the post office business.

You should have seen him on Monday morning a helping Jerushe arrange things in the post office. You would not have thought him the same being who sat so proudly by her side in the sanctuary on the day before; and really, Mr. Editor, they were the most likely-looking couple there, if I do say it myself, who ought not, being the postmaster and of course friends with all respectable parties in the village. Yes, they were a handsome couple, but I think he is happier in the post office business, and would make a better postmaster than he would a deacon. But you should have seen him and my daughter arrange the post office. I always thought I understood the system. But such system, such neatness as was brought about by these two in one short week. Yes, he stayed with us a week. I had to be away a large part of the time, and when I came home everything was done, even to arranging for the prompt delivery of newspapers to subscribers, and since that time I have never had a single complaint of any kind at my office. Everybody says it is the most correct office in forty miles, and the most prompt in delivery of mail matter.

Well, I did my friend Tonson good-by, and Jerushe accompanied him to the coach to get his last instructions in relation to the post-office business, and finally the coach waited while they both went into the post office again to see that everything was right, and perfectly understood. Jerushe understood it, and she has been a perfect queen of a postmistress ever since. Latterly, though she seems to be running down, I tell her she needs a change of air, and that I will have to send her to her aunt's to stay awhile and recruit up. But she says she don't want to leave the office.

Between you and me, Mr. Editor, she expects to see Mons. Tonson get down from the coach again some day.

Now, Mr. Editor, I appeal to you as a father to get Mons. Tonson to write for your paper again. I say as a postmaster that it is necessary for the proper conduct of my office, that I should have the hints of instruction, which he has been in the habit of communicating to the public through the instrumentality of your paper, and which being authorized by the government is, of course, official and can't be gainsaid.

It is true some of the editorial columns of your excellent paper sound when read aloud exactly like the oracular utterances of my old friend Tonson, which only goes to show that the good which men do lives after them, as is notably instanced in the improvement in my post office. I sincerely true, how ever, that Mons. T. is not departed, but will come again.

Yours as ever,
JOSHUA MARTIN, P. M.,
Quaker Run X Roade.

Money Order Offices.

E—— P——, N. Y., Aug. 16, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF U. S. MAIL: There are some things in which I think the makers of post office laws have erred, and one of these is in relation to the establishment of postal money order offices. Now, as I understand, the chief object of money order offices is to euable the customers of post offices to send small amounts of money to business men or friends in payment of orders, debts, &c., and thus accommodate both parties. The money order system by the mail gives the best facilities for reaching all classes in inhabited communities, and, therefore, should be (in the opinion of the writer) allowed to all post offices, in like manner as the registered business is established. One-half, if not more, have not these facilities, because the salary does not equal or exceed $250 annually. In cities and large villages there are express companies, banks, &c., which can be used by those who desire to remit money; but in small places where they do not have any of these facilities, they must resort to other means.

Now it frequently happens that a person in the country desires to procure some book, or other merchandise, from the city or elsewhere. The mail cumbles him to write for what he wants, addressed to the proper individual or company; but he does not always like to inclose money in a letter and trust to chances of the party addressed receiving it; and if it is received he has no proof of it (in case the party is dishonest or neglects its acknowledgment), if he does not inclose a money order or have the letter registered.

There are some in the community who object to having their letters registered, because they are forwarded in a special envelope and easily distinguished from other mail matter, and also because the department makes no allowances for those lost or stolen. In conclusion, I remark that if the Post Office Department desires to accommodate its patrons residing in country hamlets and villages (although they are not as numerous, but their wants are just as necessary as though they reeided in cities), let it establish the money order system in all post offices in like manner as the registered business is established.

H. J. S., Assistant Postmaster.

There is no doubt that the establishment of the money-order system at all, or nearly all offices would be in itself a desirable thing—the difficulty lies in the fact that it is not at present practicable, and this for various reasons which we have not space to enumerate. But it is always practicable to register letters, though it would be decidedly impracticable for the department to guarantee the safe delivery of their contents without raising the fee to a pretty heavy percentage of the amount inclosed. As to the objections to the "special envelope," our correspondent can inform the objectors that since the use of said envelope began, the losses of registered letters have decreased amazingly, and that it is really the best protective feature of the registration system. But we presume he has found, as we have, plenty of people outside the post office who imagine they know much more about its working than those on the inside.

Troubles of a Watering-Place Postmaster.

The following extracts from a letter written by the postmaster at a watering-place not far from New York, in reply to certain inquiries by a special agent, set forth how times are often "made lively" for post office officials during the summer season at such places:

POST OFFICE, B——

——, Esq., Special Agt. Post Office Dept.:

SIR—Yours of the 20th is at hand. The letters you inquire about, addressed to Mrs. H., are safe: not only three, but four, are now in my possession. The first one, postmarked New York, August 14, was sent by messenger to the hotel; it was not received, because the lady had left, and was returned to the office; two are postmarked the 15th and one the 20th, and of course have not been out of the office.

* * * * * * *

You ask about the messenger, "how it is done, as complaints are so frequent, etc." Years ago, under the old system, the Postmaster General appointed a carrier from this office for three months in summer. They continued for about four years, and gave general satisfaction. After it was changed to a salary for carriers we made application, but the department refused to appoint.

In 1869 we had no carrier: letters would be taken by employees of hotels, hackmen, coachmen, waiters, servants, and they would call for all directed to their hotel. The letters would be stuck in the rack at hotels, and get handled and soiled with flies, and at the latter end of the season many returned to the post office in that condition. Then there were numerous complaints of every possible kind, some because they were sent, and others because they were not sent, by first opportunity.

In 1870, Mr. ——, of your city, came to me to know if some plan could not be devised to have the mail matter sent as before. I replied that the department would not grant any carrier, and the only way I could suggest would be for himself and neighbors to draw up an order to the postmaster. The following is a copy:

"To the postmaster R——. Please send all letters and mail matter addressed to me and to my care to my residence during the summer, and I will pay the bearer two cents for each letter and one cent for each newspaper so sent, from July 1, 1870."

Another order was drawn for hotels same as above, with the addition, "addressed to me or to my house."

Some private houses and a few hotels declined to order, and they get their letters, sometimes in two, sometimes three days' mail at a time, and I have been blown up by visitors at one of the largest of these hotels for not getting letters more promptly. This day's mail for them who order is now (3 P. M.) delivered, while for the hotel above spoken of ten letters and some papers remain.

Our post office is located midway between the village and a now and fashionable place called W——, and one month or so ago a man from W—— came in, boiling over with rage because he did not get his paper at all regular; said we stole his paper, and demanded it forthwith! He left still boiling, threatened complaining and severe litigation. We survived the attack, and the next time he called he had cooled some, but was still distrustful. A day or two after his papers came postmarked at two other offices, with a request by the postmaster of one of them written on the cover, to have the address on his paper changed to R——, as it should be, as very many of his papers had come to that office. The next time he came he had cooled, and had the address changed as requested, and all came right.

Perhaps these two in their rage helped to make the "complaints that are so frequent as to excite the anxious attention of the department."

I have written much because I have much to say; however, I am willing to make any alteration or amendment suggested by yourself or the department.

Respectfully, J. H. J., Postmaster.

Rates of Postage to the West Indies.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, D. C., August 3, 1872.

Notice is hereby given that hereafter the full postage (United States and British) on all mail matter for the West Indies, British as well as foreign, forwarded via St. Thomas or via Havana, and thence by British mail packets to destination, is required to be prepaid at the office of mailing in the United States, at the following rates, viz:

Letters, 18 cents per half ounce.

Each newspaper, price current and trade circular, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, four cents.

Book-packets, patterns or samples, ten cents per four ounces or fraction thereof.

Registered letter fee, eight cents per letter in addition to the postage.

The rates of United States postage to Cuba, Jamaica and other West India Islands, forwarded from the United States to destination by direct steamers, remain as follows, prepayment compulsory:

For letters, ten cents per half ounce.

For newspapers, two cents each.

For book-packets, samples or patterns, the United States domestic rates.

Mails for the West Indies.

The steamers of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, running between New York and Aspinwall, having ceased to make Kingston (Jamaica) a port of call, the mails for the West Indies (including Jamaica, British Honduras and Hayti), heretofore dispatched by said steamers via Kingston, will be forwarded from New York by the steamers of the U. S. and British Mail S. S. Co., sailing on the 23d of each month.

The rates of postage to be prepaid on correspondence for the West Indies will remain unchanged, except that the postage on correspondence for Jamaica will be the same as charged to the office West Indies, served with mails by British Mail Packets from St. THOMAS.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS, WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3, 1872.

SIR: I have to request that you will please cause the accompanying notice, in regard to postage to Kerasunde, Asiatic Turkey, to be published in the next issue of your paper, and amend the Table of Postage in accordance therewith.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL, New York, N. Y.

Postage to Kerasunde, Turkey.

The Austrian Post Department, having established a post office at Kerasunde, Asiatic Turkey, notice has been received from the German post office that the prepayment of postage on letters from the United States for Kerasunde will henceforth be optional. The rates of postage chargeable on such correspondence remain unchanged, the only change being from compulsory to optional prepayment.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent of Foreign Mails.

Partly Prepaid Matter.

The following letter embodies an important ruling of the Department in regard to the proper charge on mail matter which reaches the office of destination not fully prepaid. Under this decision postmasters will in future collect double the amount which remains unpaid. Double postage is also of course to be collected on wholly unpaid matter which by inadvertence may reach the office of destination:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24, 1872.

POSTMASTER AT ——:

SIR. The postmaster at —— reports the receipt of a letter weighing over half an ounce, mailed at your office, prepaid three cents, and charged due three cents. Your attention is called to this because the Department rules (under the new code, section 152) that the unpaid postage on all matter on which prepayment is required should be doubled and collected on delivery. Please observe this ruling in future.

JAMES H. MARR,
Acting First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Postal Cards.

A serious obstacle to the issue of the Postal Cards, for which there is already a large demand on the part of the public, has been encountered in the fact that while Congress, in Sec. 170 of the new Postal Code "authorized and directed" the Postmaster General to furnish and issue them, it totally neglected to provide for their cost by an appropriation; and as no outlay can be made, or indebtedness incurred, legally, for any purpose for which a specific appropriation has not been made, no Postal Cards can be issued, or contracts to furnish them entered into, until after the meeting of Congress in December next. So the Postmaster General is informed by the Attorney General.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We have a long letter from Boston, Mass., devoted principally to a question, which has arisen under the new code, of postage on merchandise and other miscellaneous matter. As this question has received attention in our "Answers to Correspondents" we omit further remark here, and notice a request contained in the letter, to "publish in your [our] valuable paper, a concise practical business synopsis of the new law," and give the meaning of various phrases about which hang doubt and uncertainty, especially in the description of mailable matter of the third class. Such a synopsis would no doubt be of practical value, but it is too soon to prepare one, as, for a time, there will arise questions which can only be settled by decisions from the department. Our correspondent seems in some doubt whether 1 cent for 3 ounces or 2 cents for 2 ounces on merchandise is prepaid, and asks "why not call it 1 cent an ounce instead of 2 cents for 2 ounces." In order to secure a uniformity of practice, mail matter is given a standard weight, on which postage is charged at a standard rate—thus the standard weight on letters is one-half of an ounce, at a standard rate of postage of 3 cents, which means that postage is to be charged at the rate of 3 cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof. The standard weight of newspapers to regular subscribers is 4 ounces, at a standard rate of 5 cents per quarter on weeklies, "and 5 cents additional for each issue more frequent than once a week." The standard weight on "miscellaneous matter" is 2 ounces, at a standard rate of 1 or 2 cents, as the case may be. Thus it will be seen that the rate is as much on the fraction of a standard weight as on the whole, and that a change of phraseology, as suggested, would mislead as to the proper postage. Our "Miscellaneous Information," on the third page, will be found clear and complete....In our next letter we find an inquiry, What shall be done with newspapers which have been received by mistake with Papers properly sent? If the mistake occurred at a post office the papers should be sent on the proper course. If not, they should be held, and, if not claimed in good time, should be sold, and the proceeds credited to the department....In our next, the writer wants to know why postage stamps are used on official letters from the New York office; he is aware that the postmaster cannot frank all the envelopes used. We reply, section 186 of new code provides "that all mail matter not hereinbefore specially made free must be prepaid by postage-stamps." And section 180, that postmasters may frank to cover official communications to other postmasters only. It is, therefore, evident that postmasters must either frank official communications or pay postage on them. There are those who claim that return registered letter bills passing between postmasters, being a part of the machinery of registration, require neither frank nor postage, but should pass through the mails by virtue of the registration regulation requiring them to be sent. Probably our correspondent is one of these....We have received many commendations on the improvement in the MAIL, especially in the addition of the department rulings and the schedules of railway service. We hope to do better and better, as we find a demand.

We append two extracts, which show what the paper is considered:

"I think your paper fills the hill entirely in relation to postal matters, and could not conduct a post office without it." * * * *

"And trust it [the MAIL] may continue in the future, as in the past, to be just what every postmaster and all those connected with the Post Office Department needs in the discharge of their respective duties."

Peckaniff on the Post Office.

Some years ago the hours of the Sunday delivery at the New York post office were from 9 to 10 A. M., and from 12:30 to 1:30 P. M. As experience showed, however, that the bulk of the delivery was disposed of during the first-named hour, and that the time of the clerks detailed for Sunday duty was almost entirely unoccupied after the expiration of that hour, thus depriving them uselessly of a good portion of the rest appropriate to the day, a change was decided on, and for some time past the Sunday delivery has been limited to the two hours between 9 and 11 A. M. This arrangement was found to work in a very satisfactory manner, not a single complaint has been received from any citizen on the subject, until a short time since, when the illustrious Seth Pecksniff, Esq., (it can be none other than he, though with characteristic modesty he neglected to sign or send his name), favored the postmaster with the following:

P. H. JONES, ESQ., POSTMASTER:

Dear Sir—Will you pardon me for addressing you a few lines on the Sunday mail delivery.

Very many years ago, when I was a youth, and the post office was in Gardon street, so numerous were the merchants then residing down town that there would be quite a delivery on Sabbath morning; but since then the merchants have removed to such a distance from the office that it is quite impossible for their letters to be reached before the morning church service.

Until somewhat recently there has been a noon or one o'clock delivery, which suited well, citizens then having time to get their letters and reach their dwellings for their dinner hour. Hence, that after morning service hour was quite acceptable and availed of.

With us it is of less importance; residing at a less remote distance, we can receive our letters, if they chance to be ready, before morning church service.

But you will observe that, as the assorting is constantly going on, the letters which might be obtained, as formerly, at the noon delivery, would very far exceed in number the limited morning receipt.

Indeed, the early opening amounts to nothing. Being not far from the office I always attend, but I seldom find any other applicants at the boxes.

Very respectfully yours,
OLD GARDEN STREETER.

Though I am much nearer the post office than most merchants, your morning hours are apt to delay my promptness at church.

And bless your snuffling old soul, Pecksniff, what "a power of good" the sermon must do you when you sit in your pew, after you have got to church, with your pocket full of letters—especially if the text should happen to be about keeping holy the Sabbath day, or concerning the Pharisees who lay on other men's shoulders "burdens grievous to be borne!" Of course you don't open your letters before going to church (pious man!), but wait till after dinner, and then, while your worldly-minded neighbor (who thinks the post office clerks have sufficient work on week days, and so lets his letters remain uncalled for till Monday) is "breaking the Sabbath" by driving or walking in the country with his family, you peruse your correspondence and lay your plans for establishing early on Monday morning a "corner in wheat," which will enable you to fill your pockets and empty those of the Sabbath-breaking neighbor, and so teach him the lesson that "godliness is profitable." Ah, Pecksoiff, you really ought to have signed your name to that letter—we think it does equal credit to your head and heart. And next Sunday when you illumine the post office with your sanctified presence, just ask the post office clerk if he doesn't think so, too?

To Route Agents and Railway Post Offices Clerks.

We publish in the present number an important order issued by Roswell Hart, Esq., Assistant Superintendent Railway Mail Service, Second Division, which route agents and railway post office clerks will find conte us information of special value to them. We shall continue to publish such orders monthly, and send specimen copies of our present issue to a number of those whom it particularly concerns.

ONE of the favorite lines of steamers to Europe is the North German Lloyds, sailing from New York every Wednesday and Saturday. The steamers of this line are first class and well appointed, making the passage in an average time of nine and a half days. They take passengers to Bremen, Havre, London or Southampton, in first cabin, second cabin or steerage, or bring them from those ports, at very favorable rates. The wharf of the company is at the foot of Third street, Hoboken, N. J. Oelrichs & Co., No. 2 Bowling Grsen, this city, are the agents.

FRANCIS & LOUTREL, stationers and blank book manufacturers, of 45 Maiden lane, manufacture for the use of postmasters sod others using head stamps a very superior stamping ink, warranted not to gum up the stamp or evaporate. This ink is put up in boxes and can be sent by mail. Francis & Loutrel's stock of stationery is complete, while their blank books are of a superior manufacture. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

THE YALE LOCK COMPANY, who advertise their post office box locks on our third page, inform us that they are manufacturing these very superior locks in large quantities and supplying many offices with them. They are coovenient for small offices as well as large. The key is so small that it can be readily carried in a pocket book; each lock is furnished with three of them. Besides post office locks they manufacture locks of all conceivable styles, sizes and uses. We advise our postmaster readers to send for a circular.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Wrapping Letters.—J. G., B—— S——, H——, O.—1. By Section 89, Regulations 1866, letters for offices not supplied wholly or in part by railway post offices, should be wrapped. The extension of the railway post offices office system, and the changes the system has made in preparing and forwarding packages is such that, when postmasters are in doubt as to the applicability of the regulation referred to, they should obtain instruction from the superintendent of the system 2. You are not required to wrap letters in transit through your office.

Insufficient Prepayment.—G. L. F., S., C——, S. C.—1. All mail matter prepaid one full rate should be forwarded to destination charged with double the postage due. Habitual failure of postmasters to comply with this law is cause for reprimand. But, as it is human to err, there may be in each office a few cases where the neglect is only occasional, and yet in the aggregate, out of the over 30,000 post offices, any one post office may receive a number of letters insufficiently prepaid and on which the postmaster must charge the amount due. 2. Miscellaneous transient matter which reaches an office wholly unpaid, should be charged at double rates, as required by the new Code, Section 152.

Office Hours.—W. L. D., P—— O——, Fla.—1. "The usual business hours of the place" is the proper time a post office should be kept open, Sec. 27, Reg. 1866. 2. The mails should be received and dispatched on schedule time, and no carrier should be allowed "to come sod go all hours of the day and night regardless of schedule time."

Boxes.—W. W. F., C——, N. Y.—The department would not allow the cost of suit in defending a claim to a post office box. As the law requires postmasters to charge rent for boxes a verdict could not be found against a postmaster in such cases, and no justice should entertain such a suit.

Postmarking Stamps.—W. N. C., W—— N——, Vt.—1. Offices that pay the department over $150 a year are entitled to marking and canceling stamps. Sec. 14, Reg. 1866. 2. Official envelopes for registration business are furnished by the Third Assistant Postmaster General. If you write to him for them do not mention any other business in your letter. Sec. 84, Reg. 1866.

Notifying Publishers.—A. O. M., N——, Mich.—Notifications to publishers should be sent to the postmasters at the publishers' places of business. They may then be franked as official communications. Sec. 391, Reg. 1866.

Delivering Letters in Transit.—C. F. H., I——, Y——, Ky.—A postmaster has not the right to deliver a letter from his office addressed to another office, except in case of a discontinued office. Sec. 63, Reg. 1866.

Newspaper Account Books.—N. W. McN., W——, Pa.—The department will not allow offices for the expenses of any of the unofficial newspaper account books, but supplies blanks of its own, free. But these books are worth their cost in assisting postmasters to keep their box and newspaper accounts.

Salaries.—D. W. L., J——, Ala.—The amount of salaries for offices is not affected by the new code, except offices not paying more than $199, and not less than $100, which have been changed to the fifth class, by which charge the salaries may be increased in even dollars, and not in even tens of dollars, as heretofore.

Delivery of Letter to Married Woman.—W. D. H., A——, Mich.—When a married woman orders letters delivered only to herself, the postmaster must obey the order and refuse them even to the husbeod. If you have the MAIL for July, 1867, you will find some valuable information respecting the delivery of letters.

Postage.—C. H. L., V——, N. J.—The postage on drop newspapers, periodicals, books, etc., where there is not a free delivery by carrier, should be charged in accordance with section 163, new code, viz.: one cent for each two ounces on newspapers and periodicals, and double these rates on books, etc....J. G. C., B—— C——, W. Va.—The quarterly postage on regular newspapers published twice a month is at the rate of one cent for each issue on each four ounces or fraction thereof. (Section 158, Code of 1872.)....L. N—— Y——, N. Y.—There are two routes to Ecuador; by one the postage is 22 cents, by the other 20 cents.

Merchandise.—We have received over a dozen inquiries concerning the postage on merchandise. We therefore do not reply individually, by the initials of the various querists, but embrace all in one answer. The code of 1873 has made a very radical change in postage on articles of merchandise. By Section 133 any article not weighing over twelve ounces, and not dangerous to the mails or post officials, is made mailable matter, and, under the name of samples, by section 163, is subject to postage at the rate of two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. This includes wearing apparel, hardware, groceries, and, in fact, as the law provides, "all other articles not above the weight prescribed by law." Another radical change is that, by section 126, all such matter may be registered on the payment of the proper postage and the registry fee. Heretofore letter postage was required on all packages that were registered.

We have been obliged to defar till next month several "answers," prepared for this number.

Railway Mail Service.

SECOND DIVISION, COMPRISING THE MIDDLE STATES.

For the convenience of those who may find it necessary to dispatch letters by the 8 A. M. and 8 P. M. trains from New York to Boston after the closing of mails for those trains at the New York Post Office, a letter box is placed in the baggage-room of the New York and New Haven Railroad depot at Twenty-seventh street, from which letters are collected up to five minutes previous to the starting of each of the trains mentioned.

Letters can also be mailed at any car or which mail matter is distributed, but this accommodation is intended only for correspondence too late for the regular closing of mails.

Blank label slips are now furnished to all chief head clerks in this division for the use of clerks on their lines, and the attention of clerks is called to the following summary of the instructions which have been issued in respect to their use:

The practice of writing the direction of a package of letters upon the letters is forbidden.

Facing slips of paper must be used instead, and each clerk who makes up a package of letters for distribution at a terminal office of his route or for any railway post office or any post office not on the line of his route must, in addition to the necessary address, indorse on the facing slip his name, the name of his route and the date the package was made up.

A slip of paper similarly indorsed should be placed by the clerk who attends to the newspaper distribution in each pouch and caovas sack made up to go off the line of his route.

Clerks and others receiving mail not indorsed in accordance with these instructions are

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF RULINGS AND INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY COMPILED FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE DEPARTMENT FOR AUGUST 1872.

1. Postage on pamphlets and other transient printed matter must be prepaid, by postage-stamps affixed, at the rate of one cent for each two ounces, or fraction thereof, to one address. New Code, secs. 132 and 163.

2. Letters or papers permitted to pass free by frank of a privileged person who notoriously has not been in the vicinity for several days, should be treated as other unpaid mail matter. Reg. 1866, secs. 127, 128, and 129.

3. No extra charge is made for any business card or address printed on the wrapper of any miscellaneous mail matter, but a written memorandum on a newspaper or other printed matter will subject the matter to letter postage. Code, sec. 142.

4. No additional postage should be charged for the correction of mere typographical errors. Code, sec. 156.

5. When a subscriber to a newspaper pays postage in advance and changes his post office before the end of the term paid for, and orders his paper sent from the office of publication direct to his new office, it is the duty of the postmaster at such office, upon being satisfied of the payment, to deliver it without further charge.

6. A postmaster is not obliged to keep his office open on Sunday, unless a mail arrives on that day, in which case he should keep it open one hour or more, if the convenience of the public requires it. Reg. 1866, sec. 27.

7. Monthly publications are subject to a postage charge of one cent a month (payable quarterly) for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof to regular subscribers.

8. Postage on all printed matter passing from a publisher to a subscriber must be paid for at least one quarter in advance, either at the office of mailing or delivery. The postmaster at the office of delivery is fully justified in withholding all such matter until the postage is paid.

9. No postmaster's bond is made in a less sum than $500.

10. Where postage is paid on regular papers at the office of mailing or delivery it is not the province of the postmaster to inquire how the subscription is paid.

11. Old account books, plans of houses, or drawings of any description, made with pencil or pen and ink, are subject to letter postage. Code, sec. 156.

12. Photographs sent by mail in sealed envelopes open at the corners are subject to letter postage.

13. It is the duty of a postmaster to forward prepaid or free matter remaining in his office, at the request of the party addressed, to any other office without extra charge for postage. But printed matter esunot be forwarded unless the postmaster is furnished with postage to pay the transient rate for forwarding.

14. Woolen, cotton, or silk goods, when sent by mail, in packages not exceeding two pounds, to non-commissioned officers and privates in the U. S. army, at the rate of one cent for each ounce or fraction thereof. Code, 164. But when sent to other persons they are subject to a postage of two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof, and the package is limited to 18 ounces.

15. Flowers and blossoms when sent as merchandise may pass at the rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, in packages not exceeding 12 ounces in weight.

16. Matter of the second and third class cannot be registered unless prepaid at letter rates

17. The pay of letter carriers is not increased under the rule of the Department to exceed $800 a year in cities of less than one hundred thousand population.

18. Manufacturers may pay postage upon their returns to assessors for their district.

19. Books are subject to postage at the rate of 2 cents for each 3 ounces or fractios thereof (code, 163), to be prepaid by postage stamps. If only part paid the unpaid amount should be doubled and collected on delivery.

20. No package weighing more than 4 pounds should be admitted into the mail, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Code, sec. 134.

21. A letter prepaid one full rate should be forwarded. Code, sec. 151. In large cities and adjacent districts of dense population, having two or more post offices within 3 miles of one another, any letter mailed at one of such offices and addressed to another of such offices, inadvertently prepaid at the drop rate of postage should be forwarded charged with double the unpaid postage. Code, sec. 152.

22. The postal law does not exempt postmasters from working on the public roads.

23. Postage is required to be paid before delivery on newspapers and periodicals, sent from a known office of publication to regular subscribers, for not less than one quarter. Payment may be made either at the office of mailing or delivery, commencing at any time.

24. Attention may be called to any article in a newspaper by a simple mark without subjecting it to letter postage.

25. Newspapers arriving at an office stamped "prepaid" should be treated as unpaid in the absence of other evidence that they have been prepaid.

26. Parties using horses in post offices must pay the rent of them, no matter by whom they are owned. Citizens owning boxes in post offices have the right to take them away if the postmaster refuses to hire them, but so long as they permit them to remain persons using them must pay the rent. Code, secs. 43, 44, 154.

27. Postmasters are not authorized to deliver letters addressed to other offices, unless the office addressed has been discontinued and theirs is the nearest to it.

28. It is contrary to the rules of the department to furnish copies of papers on file, unless certified to be material to the issue in a suit already pending.

29. "Bankrupt papers," wholly or partly in writing, are subject to letter postage by mail. Laws 1866, sec. 244.

30. Unsealed circulars are permitted to pass, by mail, at the rate of two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof without regard to number, limited to four pound packages. (Unsealed circulars deposited in a letter carrier's office for delivery by the office or its carriers, shall be uniform at one cent each, prepaid by postage stamps. Rep.) Code, 99.

31. Packages of merchandise, not exceeding 12 ounces in weight, and not liable to damage the mail, are subject to postage at the rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof when unaccompanied by any writing other than the address, and so wrapped that their contents may be examined. Code, secs. 133, 163. Packages not to exceed 12 ounces.

32. "Spectacle cases" may be sent by mail at the rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof. Code, sec. 133.

33. To inclose a letter in an envelope having a business card printed on the face or back thereof is not a violation of the postal laws, and does not subject such letter to extra postage.

34. Illegal lotteries are those which have not been authorized by the Legislature of any State, and persons depositing, for transportation by mail, letters or circulars concerning such illegal lotteries, render themselves liable to the penalty prescribed by the Code, sec. 149.

35. Any printed matter, except books, may be sent at one cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof to one address limited to 4 pounds. Books are subject to a postage of 2 cents for each 3 ounces or fraction thereof, limited to 4 pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress. Code, 134.

36. Samples of metals, ores, mineralogical specimens, engraved plates, stencil plates and electrotypes, limited to 12 ounces in weight, and so wrapped that they may be examined, are subject to a prepaid postage of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof.

37. Ladies' garters, in packages not exceeding 12 ounces, if so wrapped as to be conveniently examined, and unaccompanied by writing other than the address, are subject to a postage of 2 cents for each 2 ounces, etc., prepaid by stamps. If not fully prepaid the amount due should be collected at double the prepaid rates. Code, secs. 133, 134, 127, 163.

38. Boots and shoes may be mailed at a prepaid postage of 2 cents for each 2 ounces, &c., provided the package does not exceed 12 ounces, and is so wrapped that its contents may be examined without destroying the wrapper.

39. Regular dealers in newspapers and periodicals may receive and transmit, by mail, such quantities of either as they may require, and pay the postage as received, at the same rates, pro rata, as subscribers to such publications who pay quarterly in advance. Code, sec. 161.

40. When a newspaper or magazine regularly sent, by mail, has been refused or not called for by the subscriber for one month the postmaster should state the facts to the postmaster at the mailing office to be by him communicated to the publisher.

41. None but weekly papers pass free by mail within the county where printed and published.

42. In the event of the death of a postmaster the curetles, being responsible, can take charge of the office or employ a deputy to perform the duties until a new postmaster is appointed and qualified.

43. Subscribers to weekly papers can receive them free of postage if they reside in the county in which the paper is are printed and published even if the post office to which they are sent is without the county, provided it is the office at which they regularly receive their mail.

44. The franking privilege travels with the person possessing it and can be used in but one place at the same time. No person entitled to the franking privilege can leave his frank behind him upon envelopes to cover his correspondence in his absence. If letters or papers be put into a post office bearing the frank of a privileged person who notoriously has not been to that vicinity for several days, it is the duty of the postmaster to treat them as unpaid.

45. Members of Congress are entitled to receive letters free of postage. Code, sec. 184.

46. Registering of franked matter does not subject it to postage.

47. Packages of human hair, not exceeding 12 ozs. in weight, and so put up that the contents may be examined, may be sent by mail at the rate of 2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof. Code, secs. 133, 163.

48. Under the new code, sec. 190, postmasters are authorized to register, without fee, letters containing fractional or other currency of the United States, sent to the United States Treasury for redemption.

49 All postmasters are required to register letters whenever requested to do so.

50. All articles of merchandise, not excluded by the code, sec. 133, shall be carried by mail at a prepaid postage of 2 cents for each 2 ounces, &c., when in packages not exceeding 12 ounces and wrapped so as to admit of examination, and not accompanied by any writing other than the address.

51. When less than letter postage is paid, the ends of the package should be left open for examination of the contents, otherwise letter postage should be charged.

52. A mail carrier cannot carry letters outside of the mail unless they are inclosed in postage-stamped envelopes, except letters handed him more than one mile from a post office, which he should deposit in the first office he reaches.

53. Old bonds (of postmasters) are not returned to them, but are filed in the Auditor's office for settlement of their accounts as required by law.

54 The initials or name of the sender written on the wrapper of a newspaper or other printed matter, to addition to the address, subjects the package to letter postage.

55. Pills and ointment in tin boxes so secured that they cannot damage the mails, but can be examined, may pass by mail at two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof—packages limited to twelve ounces.

56. Seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions sent by mail must be put up in packages not exceeding twelve ounces, and admitting of examination, otherwise letter postage must be required. If put up as indicated they may passat two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Code.

57. Book manuscript, proof sheets and corrected proof-sheets passing between author and publisher may be sent by mail at a prepaid postage of one cent for each two ounces, etc., but manuscript for publication in papers, magazines and periodicals is subject to letter postage. Code, sections 133, 156.

58. The department is not liable, pecuniarily, for losses occuring in the transmission and delivery of letters, but will make all proper efforts to guard against losses.

59. Newspaper postage cannot be paid for less than one quarter, except at transient rates—one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. It is optional with the subscriber to pay his postage quarterly or yearly in advance. The law makes no provision for refunding postage paid on newspapers in advance.

60. No postmaster has a right to refuse to mail a letter that is properly prepaid by postage stamp.

61 Letters deposited in a post office prepaid one full rate (three cents), but requiring two or more rates, should be forwarded with the unpaid postage charged at double the prepaid rate to be collected on delivery. Code, secs. 151, 152, 153.

62 The postage on newspapers (excepting weeklies), when deposited in a letter-carrier office for delivery by the office or its carriers, is once cent each paper to be prepaid by postage stamps affixed. Code, sec. 99.

63. Postmasters are required to perform their official duties in accordance with the laws and regulations of the department.

64 Any person who shall inclose any letter, memorandum or other thing, in any mail matter not charged with letter postage, or make any memorandum or writing thereon, and deposit it for conveyance by mail at less than letter postage, shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay five dollars, and such matter shall not be delivered until the postage is paid at letter rates Now code, sec. 142. Sections 304 and 305, Code, point out the manner of collecting such fines.

65. It is the duty of an outgoing postmaster to deliver to his successor the keys, mails and other property of the office on his application to take charge of the same and showing his commission.

66. Boxes in post offices (except those in Government buildings) are erected by and at the expense of the postmaster, or purchased by him from his predecessor. This, however, is not compulsory.

67. A package containing two or more kinds of mail matter of the third class, to which different rates are affixed by law, should be charged with postage at the higher rate for third-class matter.

68. "Electrotypa plates and wood cuts" may be sent by mail as a prepaid rate of two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. when in packages not exceeding twelve ounces, and unaccompanied by any writing other than the address, and so wrapped as to admit of examination.

69. As a general rule letters should be delivered to the person addressed, or to his or her order But postmasts are entitled to receive the correspondence of their minor children residing with and depending upon them for support. In case of a minor whose parents live separately, the parent with whom the minor may at the time reside is entitled to control the correspondence.

70. "Typographic cards" (for the use of the blind) may pass by mail at one cent for each two ounces, &c., if so wrapped as to admit of examination.

71. All third-class matter, except printed matter, must be limited to twelve ounces.

72. That law does not allow of the use of postal cards (other than such as may be furnished by the Department) at less than twelve ounces.

73. Letters bearing the ledorsement of the Pension Office or its agents should be delivered to the person addressed or to a member of his family, or to a legal representative of the pensioner, but neder no circumstances to an attorney, claim agent or brokor.

74. The department has no fored nor authority to repay postage claimed to have been overpaid.

75. A husband has no right under the postal law to control his wife's correspondence. Letters addressed to her should be delivered to her or according to her order.

76. A postmaster has no right to detain letters at the more request of a directive, but should deliver them according to their address, unless some court of competent jurisdiction should otherwise direct.

77. The unpaid postage on all matter on which prepayment is required by law should be doubled and collected on delivery. New Code, sec. 152.

78. Communications addressed to heads of departments, bureaus, offices, etc., of the United States, or to fraeking officers of any of the departments, are entitled to pass by mail free of postage.

79. To insure the transmission and delivery of merchandise at third class rates it must be unaccompanied by any writing except the address on the wrapper.

80. Liquids, glues, poisons, explosive materials, obscene matter and matter liable to deface, deface or damage the mails or injure any one engaged in the service must be excluded from the mails

81. Any writing or memorandum, other than the address, subjects any printed or other mail matter to letter postage.

82. The publisher of a weekly paper can receive a daily in exchange free of postage—the privilege of exchange having no regard to the frequency of the issue, but is limited to one copy of each publication.

83. A letter deposited for mailing weighing over half an ounce but less than one ounce, prepaid by a three cent stamp, should be forwarded marked "due six cents," to be collected on delivery. Code, secs. 151 and 152.

84 The only "Postal Cards" authorized by law are those to be foreished by the department; private particle cannot use postal cards. But business cards may be mailed (under new code) at one cent each if they contain no writing or memorandum other than the address.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION. FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Special Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries.

The rates of postage to all foreign countries not mentioned in the Table on the 4th page are as follows:

ON LETTERS.—Ten cents per single rate of half an ounce.

ON NEWSPAPERS.—Two cents each.

ON PRINTED MATTER other than newspapers.—Two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is six cents on each letter. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to or from the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, when sent direct in closed mail via England, are also chargeable with a fine on delivery in addition to the postage. In the case of letters arriving in the United States the fine is five cents. In both cases the amount is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery. Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters to and from the North German Union (including Austria and Luxemburg) are chargeable with double the rate stated in the table, credit being allowed for any part prepayment.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Harsburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Betlimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is to addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by the correspondent.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (es well es on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, to Italy and the Roman or Papal States, and to Middle and Lower Egypt, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, to Sweden, Norway or Iceland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Bronswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal parcels than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany, except to Roman or the Papal States. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shenghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the ronte. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

The registration fee on letters, etc., to all foreign countries to which registration is practicable will be found noted to the Table of Postages to Foreign Countries. On such letters, etc., only the postage rates es given in the table need be prepaid, in addition to the registration fee.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cenin each four ounces or fraction thereof. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc., and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four onnces, if four onnces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, who never they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patteros or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the malle all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any rsaterial sent ostensibly as a pattern or sarsple is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patteros or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patteros or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

Mailable Matter.

By Law mailable matter is divided into three classes as follows:

The first class embraces all correspondence wholly or partly in writing, except that mentioned in the third class. Sec. 131, Code of 1872.

The second class embraces all matter exclusively in print, and regularly issued at stated periods, from a known office of publication, without addition by writing, mark or sign. Sec. 132, Code of 1872.

The third class embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, books, book manuscripts and proof sheets, whether entered or not, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples of merchandise, metals, ores, &c., not exceeding twelve ounces in weight, sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different type; seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions. All matter of the third class, excepting books and other printed matter, book manuscripts, proof-sheets and corrected proof-sheets, is limited to twelve ounces in weight. Sec. 133, Code 1872.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. Sec. 156, Code 1872. On drop letters where there is a free delivery two cents a half ounce or fraction thereof, and where there is not a free delivery, one cent a half ounce ounce or fraction thereof. Sec. 157, Code 1872.

The rate of postage on mailable matter of the third class is one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, except for books, samples of metals, ores, mineral specimens, which are to be charged two ceoin for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Sec. 163, Code 1872.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those for foreign countries when prepaid) exceptlog those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departmeots of the government, and the heads of bureaus and the chief clerks, and others tavested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmaster can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

All communiertions on official business, of whatever origin, addressed to heads of the executive departments of government, or heads of bureaus therein, or to chief clerks of departments, shall be received and conveyed by mail free of postage without being franked or indorsed "Official Business."

By Section 184, Cod: of 1872, the Adjntants General of several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the malls, free of postage, any models, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as a personal privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four onnces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege es an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

Section 139, Code of 1873, relating to franking, enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

Packages sent by mail are limited to a weight of four pounds, except books published or circulated by order of Congress Sec. 134, Code 1872.

Ou all matter sent by mail not enumerated above as mailable matter, letter postage must be charged. Sec. 156, Code 1872.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails. Sec. 133, Code 1872.

Patterns or samples must not hear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, and there must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves.

No newspaper pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the card, printed or impressed, of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed or written date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other tecloeure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

REGISTRATION.—The fee for registration to any part of the United States is 15 cents. This charge is exclusive of the proper postage. Both the registry fee and the postage must be prepaid by stamps.

All domestic registered packages must be charged at letter rates of postage.

The name and address of the writer must be endorsed on the letter.

APPENDIX

The accompanying chart lists major institutional holdings of the United States Mail and Post-Office Assistant after volume 12. It seemed pointless to list sources for issues prior to that, though many exist, because that material is reprinted herewith. In most instances, the issues listed in the chart have been examined by us, either in original or microfilm form. A "C" in the chart indicates that the particular issue is complete and suitable to offset reproduction. "P" indicates that the issue exists only partially, meaning anything short of absolute completeness. "P" listings range from issues missing only a few words, to issues missing large pieces or even full pages. As the chart makes clear, ten issues between 1872 and 1874 are missing altogether—five issues in volume 13 and five in volume 14. The missing issues in volume 13 are numbers 3, 4, 7, 9 and 12. The missing issues in volume 14 are numbers 5, 6, 8, 9 and 11. In addition, four more issues exist only partially: volume 13 number 2 and volume 14 numbers 1-3. It is assumed (though not proved) that the publication ceased with volume 16 number 8. If it continued thereafter, copies of subsequent numbers have yet to come to our attention.

In the process of locating the issues reprinted here and recorded in the accompanying chart, scores if not hundreds of libraries were checked, in varying degrees of thoroughness. All of the institutional holders of U.S. Mail, as cited in the Union List of Serials, were searched with the utmost care, usually through what is known as a "stack search"—where library personnel examine what's actually in the stacks, rather than just checking their own card-catalog listing or quoting from the Union List. This process is both time-consuming and expensive, but has proved rewarding. Many of the issues reprinted here (or recorded in the chart) do not appear in the card catalogs of the institutions that hold them, nor do they appear in the Union List.

The majority of libraries checked were in the eastern United States, in mercantile cities which were arbitrarily deemed likely places where U.S. Mail issues might have been saved. Much of the checking was not done by us personally. We deliberately do not list libraries where searching has so far proved fruitless, because we have found, in more than one instance, that holdings of U.S. Mail actually existed in institutions previously searched without success.

The Collectors Club of Chicago has declared its firm intention to produce a third reprint volume, comprising the remaining U.S. Mail issues. Obviously, it is desirable that this work be as complete as possible. Toward this end, we are publishing the accompanying source chart. Most of the institutions listed have agreed to participate in the reprint. In some instances, the original material is already in our hands. Due to the extreme scarcity and fragility of this material, it is not desirable to do any further microfilming from the originals. (Indeed, repeated microfilming has been one of the major sources of deterioration for the surviving material.) However, we have master microfilm for all the issues listed as "P" or "C", and prior to the appearance of the third reprint volume, we will endeavor to share this material with serious scholars who have pressing need for it.

Readers who appreciate the usefulness of the information contained in these two reprint volumes would do a great service to U.S. postal history by checking out their local libraries, to ascertain if they house any of the missing or partial issues. New discoveries should be reported immediately to the authors, in care of the Collectors Club of Chicago, 1029 N. Dearborn, Chicago, Illinois 60610.

—Gloria Kaiz-Jones and Michael Laurence, January 15, 1975
